NAVY SEAPLANES MAY START TODAY IF WEATHER HOLDS

FULL CREWS TO REMAIN

Both NC-1 and NC-3 to Carry Six Men on Journey to the Azores.

Special to The New York Times.

TREPASSEY, N. F., May 13.—Everything is ready but the weather, and that is nearly ready. That sums up today's situation, with bright prospects for a getaway tomorrow. East winds over the western course and not the fact that today is the 13th prevented the navy from starting today the attempt to be the first to fly across the Atlantic. Tomorrow's prospect is for perfect weather all the way. With the present heavy seas subsiding, there is a general feeling of tension here, owing to the belief that the English aviators at St. John's will make a strenuous effort to take advantage of the full moon and get away tomorrow, despite the conviction throughout the British expedition that the Americans will get across first regardless of who starts first.

It is only natural that the officers and men and the small gathering of American observers here all share the eagerness of the country itself that to the honor and glory of the States the navy shall make the pioneer start as well as the pioneer finish, although the feeling may exist in the States, because of the long delay caused by the weather to the British aviators at St. John's, that the American seaplanes here will suffer the same setbacks.

It is remarkably true that the antecedent plans made last February after investigation here have thus far been amply justified by the events. Experts were convinced of that long ago after a study of weather reports in Newfoundland and from the Atlantic for many years back. The average change for better weather here and over the course comes about May 10th. A gradual stabilizing of meteorological conditions justifies the statement that their deductions are correct and it is exceedingly improbable that there will be any long wait at the jumping-off place.

Fog, as predicted last night, arrived on schedule this morning, and for a time blotted out the battlegray craft in the harbor, but by noon it was all blown away and another crystal clear day appeared, justifying the gobs' proud boast that "we Yanks bring our weather with us." The air liners will not start in a fog because of the difficulty of keeping the two or three ships of the little air squadron together, and they likewise desire to avoid the slim but ever-present possibility of a collision.

The flying officers take the latter possibility seriously and elaborate plans have been made to avoid any such mishap.

They cite an occurence off the South English coast during the war as evidence that all out of doors is sometimes not room enough to manoeuvre in. An English flying boat pilot, lost there, finally found the coast, dropped to two hundred and fifty feet and while searching for a landing place became tangled in the aerials of a British wireless station, which was the only thing more than forty feet high within a hundred miles. Incidentally the unlucky aviator hung there until he was rescued.

Will Not Wait for NC-4.

It can now be said definitely that Commander Towers will not keep the two gallant craft moored in Trepassey Harbor from starting on their great adventure on account of the nonarrival of the NC-4, though all the flying detail is exceedingly anxious to have Lieut. Commander Read and his seaplane journey with them. The difficulty of keeping the destroyers on their stations makes it impossible to await her. The flying officers are aboard the Aroostock, where all are comfortably quartered, and they were still hopeful this afternoon that the NC-4 would get as far as Halifax tonight, though the weather between here and there made it next to impossible for her to make a nonstop flight and reach here tonight.

Nevertheless the NC-4 is probably not eliminated, even if she comes too late to set off with her sister ships. If it is in any way possible to keep destroyers on their stations along the coast, she will make the flight alone, perhaps reaching the Azores in time to make the next leg in the company of the rest of the squadron.

No Racing Between Seaplanes.

The aviators, however, are not worrying about the destroyers. They have every confidence that, should the need arise to keep them on their stations longer than the average six days' tour of which they are capable, Uncle Sam's navy will find means of refueling them without the necessity of their returning to their bases. They recognize that some unforeseen and entirely unanticipated delay might necessitate such a re-

Irish-American Delegates Barred for Their Conduct

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 13.—The British peace delegation is incensed over the character of the speeches delivered in Ireland by Walsh, Dunne and Ryan, members of the Irish-American delegation which came to plead with Lloyd George to receive a committee appointed by the convention of the Irish Republic. Lloyd George promised to see the Americans this week, and they left Ireland yesterday for Paris.

I have learned on the best authority that the British Premier, in view of the manner in which Walsh, Dunne, and Ryan have conducted themselves in Ireland, will cancel the engagement.

BLIMP MAY START FOR NORTH TODAY

IN FLIGHT TO NEW LONDON

Special to The New York Times.

MONTAUK, L. I., May 13.—There is a strong possibility that the C-5, the navy dirigible which is expected to join in the race to cross the Atlantic for the first time by air, will leave for Newfoundland tomorrow morning between 7:30 and 8 o'clock if the favorable weather conditions of today continue.

While those in charge of the flight have clamped down the lid on all news of the project and refuse to give out any information whatsoever, it was learned that the crew of the "blimp" was ordered to report at the dirigible hangar at 5:30 o'clock, prepared to go. Fuel for the journey was put aboard the balloon tonight, it was learned, and orders have been issued for food to be ready early in the morning.

The destination of the Blimp in Newfoundland was not announced, and the newspaper men were unable to learn whether she would go to St. John's or Trepassey Bay.

There was a great bustle tonight at the naval station and there was every indication that the "jump off" would be made. The weather reports indicate that the ideal climatic conditions of today would continue. No one was allowed away from the reservation and spectators were kept at a distance from the hangar.

The C-5, carrying its regular crew of six men in addition to Commander W. H. Schofield, aid to aviation of the Third Naval District, and a radio operator, went up shortly after 2 o'clock today and flew to New London, Conn. After circling over that city for about twenty minutes, the blimp returned to its base. Those who made the trip seemed enthusiastic over its performance, and it was later learned that the trip was one of the most successful made. It was said that the flight to Newfoundland could have been made today, but other factors prevented.

The refusal of those in charge of the project to discuss their plans has led to much speculation. In one quarter it was said that the navy was merely experimenting with the C-5 to ascertain just what it could do and there was a possibility that a flight across the ocean would not be attempted at this time. Among the enlisted men the belief prevails that the "blimp" will not go beyond Newfoundland.

The fuel capacity of the "blimp" is limited to journeys of 600 miles, it was learned, but whether additional tanks had been put aboard could not be ascertained. One man familiar with the performances of dirigibles of the C-5 type said that with favorable winds the balloon could go 1,500 miles with ease with fuel for only 600 miles.

Just before dusk tonight an F-5-L seaplane from Rockaway alighted in the water alongside of the torpedo destroyer No. 33. The seaplane, it was said, was carrying extra parts to Chelsea, Mass., for the NC-4, which failed to reach Newfoundland last week with the NC-1 and NC-3. After remaining here an hour the F-5-L went aloft again and headed toward Massachusetts.

Washington Fears Bad Weather.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Despite reports of favorable weather from Trepassey Bay, Newfoundland, indicating an early start of the United States Navy seaplane for the Azores, the weather reports received here indicate that storms are probable during the next twenty-four hours over the route from Trepassey Bay.

The weather along the North Atlantic coast, it was said, probably would be favorable tomorrow. The weather indications, in the opinion of naval officers, made it appear unlikely that the two seaplanes would start on the long flight tomorrow.

It was learned from an authoritative source that should the NC-4 be able to get under way early tomorrow from Chatham, the seaplane would attempt to go direct to Trepassey Bay to join the two other flying boats and that the stopover at Halifax would be omitted.

Weather conditions also were considered favorable for the navy's dirigible C-5 leaving Montauk Point, N. Y., tomorrow for the new flight to Newfoundland.

TO WATCH ECLIPSE FROM A SEAPLANE FAR ABOVE CLOUDS

PARTY SAILS WITH PLANE

Ship Will Be Stopped at Sea at Noon on May 29 to Permit Flight.

PHOTOGRAPHS CHIEF AIM

Professor David Todd, who has charge of the Amherst College Astronomical Observatory, sailed yesterday on the American steamship Elinor, bound for Montevideo, to take observations of a solar eclipse on May 29. Professor Todd will make his observations from a naval airplane at an altitude of 10,000 to 15,000 feet, taking photographs of the phenomenon from the vantage in height thus gained, which is an innovation in astronomical observations.

When he left yesterday he was accompanied by Ensign G. L. Richar, Ensign W. H. Cushing, N. V. Copwell, J. P. Briggs, E. C. Leonard, and A. D. Hallington, all machinist mates, first class. A big naval hydroplane was on the after deck, from which it will ascend to make this experiment.

"By the courtesy of the steamship line," the Professor said, "Captain Anderson, the commander of the vessel, has been instructed to deviate from his direct course from New York to Montevideo in order that I shall be able to make these observations of the solar eclipse.

Pictures Chief Aim.

"The Elinor will be in latitude 2.30 north and longitude 18 west at high noon on May 29, when the sun will be 15 degrees north of the zenith. The ship will be stopped and the biplane-hydroplane in charge of the navy crew will ascend to an altitude of from 10,000 to 15,000 feet above the sea, where it is hoped that we shall be able to get some fine pictures of the eclipse, which will last six minutes and fifty seconds.

"I am taking with me on this expedition an expert photographer, Stuart Whitman, a nephew of the former Governor of New York. If there is room for us both in the airplane, I shall take my telescope and make the flight, but if only one can go besides the pilot then Mr. Whitman will go up, as it is very important to take the photographs, and I shall make my observations from the deck of the Elinor.

"After the airplane reaches the ship again we shall send the result of observations of the eclipse to Ceara, on the coast of Brazil, and to Freetown, in Sierra Leone, West Africa. The Elinor's position will be about 500 miles southwest of Freetown and 1,200 miles from Ceara. It will be rather a long stretch by radio to Brazil, but from the conversation I had with the Brazilian Ambassador, Panima Moreira, recently in Washington I expect that one of the warships will be sent out from Rio de Janeiro to pick the messages up half way and relay them.

"They will be sent on by cable or radio to Buenos Aires and to Washington as quickly as possible. When the Elinor has picked up the airplane she will go back on her proper course and proceed to Montevideo, where the naval officers and men will land with their machine. I shall go to Buenos Aires and probably cross the Andes and return to New York by the Pacific Coast route.

Clouds Usually Interfere.

"The object in going above the clouds to observe the eclipse is to get some clear pictures of the solar corona. Fully 50 per cent. of the former expeditions to observe eclipses on land from the sea level have been failures because of clouds. I have been practising flying and making observations with my telescope from the naval station at Miami, Florida.

"The rays from the corona which affect the human eye are the red ones, while the blue affect the photograph plates. These blue rays are absorbed by the atmosphere in their descent toward the earth from the corona, and the theory of ascending, say, 13,000 feet is that being one-third of the whole of the atmosphere the pictures will be

Germans in Silesia Threaten Outbreak if Joined to Poland

BERLIN, May 13.—Telegrams from various towns and cities in upper Silesia state that the whole German population there is extremely excited over the peace treaty.

All classes and parties of the German element, including even the Independent Socialists, are uniting to demonstrate by mass meetings and processions against annexation to Poland. They demand arms from the German Government "for defense against those who would make them Polish."

Polish circles, though very much pleased with the treaty, remain quiet and there seems to be no danger of a violent clash between the Germans and the Poles, though the former threaten to act for themselves if the German Government should sign the treaty.

Two great mass meetings in the open air took place yesterday at Oppeln. Many miners' associations took part, carrying black, white, and red flags, and singing German songs.

The Berlin Government has received thousands of telegrams from Silesia and many more from all over the country urging rejection of the treaty.

LENIN REJECTS FEEDING PROJECT

Message from Moscow Thanks Nansen, but Says Reds Will Not Stop Fighting.

DECLINE TO BE "DUPED"

Anti-Bolshevist Russian Leaders in Paris Also Protest Against the Plan.

PARIS, May 13, (Associated Press.)—A wireless message received here addressed to Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, head of the commission to feed Russia, from M. Tchitcherin, the Bolshevist Foreign Minister, and relayed by the Foreign Office at Berlin, announces that the Bolsheviki refuse to cease hostilities as a condition of the provisioning of Russia by neutrals.

Tchitcherin says he received Dr. Nansen's communication, dated April 17, on May 4. He thanks Nansen for his interest in the conditions in Russia, but declares that a continuation of hostilities is necessary for political reasons and that it would be poor policy to stop them. The Soviet Government, he adds, is willing to support a movement to feed Russia so long as it has no political character, "but will not be duped."

He then goes on to denounce Admiral Kolchak and General Denikin, and concludes by declaring that it will be impossible to give up fighting, as enemies are attacking on all sides.

The feeding of the Russian population is no solution of the Russian question, it is also declared in a memorandum sent to the Peace Conference by Prince Lvoff, Sergius Sazonoff, and President Tschaikowsky of the North Russian Government. The memorandum says:

"The Allies wish to assist the Russian people and to reduce the starvation brought by the Bolshevist régime. This cannot fail to awake deep feelings of gratitude. It is not merely a deed of humanity, but also a manifestation of the solidarity of peoples.

"Nevertheless, the signers of this declaration consider that the realization of this generous thought will have a contrary result unless efficient measures are taken to prevent the Bolshevist authorities from interfering with the revictualling of Russia. To bring failure to this deed of humanity would be of use only to the protectors of the Bolshevist régime and would help to prolong their domination.

"The task which the Russian National movement must fulfill is to liberate Russia from the yoke of those who have reduced her to her present state of impotence and to the necessity of relying upon foreign countries for her food. The feeding of the famished population is no solution of the Russian question. Consequently, the struggle to liberate Russia from her oppressors and to give Russia a government of her own choosing cannot be stopped for any reason whatever.

"The signers of this declaration wish to state that Russia will pay for the food provided for her, but they hope that the Allies will refuse to give the Bolshevist usurpers the right to dispose of Russia's patrimony."

General Denekin, the head of the Cossack anti-Bolshevist Government in Southeastern Russia, has communicated his program to representatives of the allied powers. The principal points of the program follow:

To continue the struggle against Bolshevism.

Restoration of law and order.

Convocation of a Constituent Assembly based upon universal suffrage.

Adoption of measures tending to protect workers against exploitation by the capitalists and against Government abuses.

STOCKHOLM, May 13, (French Wireless Service.)—The arrival here of General Skoropadski, former Hetman of the Ukraine, is reported by the newspapers. General Skoropadski is on his way to Helsingfors, Finland, where it is understood he will take part in a conference over measures to be taken against the Russian Bolsheviki.

Young Sidis, 'Harvard Prodigy,' Sentenced To a Year and a Half in Jail for Rioting

BOSTON, May 13.—After he had told the court that he believed in the Soviet form of government, but that he countenanced the use of force "only in case it should be necessary," William James Sidis, 21 years old, was sentenced in the Roxbury Municipal Court today to six months in the House of Correction for rioting and one year for assault upon a police officer in the May Day radical demonstration in the Roxbury district.

Sidis appealed, and was held in $5,000 bonds. Eleven others, sentenced on the same charges, also appealed and were held in $1,000 each.

Young Sidis was graduated from Harvard University at the age of 15. He is a son of Dr. Boris Sidis, a psychopathologist.

He admitted that he carried a red flag while going "with the crowd" from one hall to another, but said there was no organized parade. Asked about the Soviet form of government, he said:

"The general principle is that those who do socially useful work are to control the Government and industries of the country."

The youth said he believed in it "in certain ways," and that he believed in the American form of Government "to the extent of the Declaration of Independence."

GERMAN ASSEMBLY ROUSED

SAYS WILSON DECEIVED

MEMBERS CHEER WILDLY

BERLIN, May 12, (Associated Press.)—A declaration by Chancellor Philipp Scheidemann in the National Assembly here today that the peace terms were "unacceptable" brought members of the Assembly, the spectators, and those in the press gallery to their feet in a hurricane of cheers and applause.

The Chancellor reached the climax of his statement on the peace terms ten minutes after he began. He paused in his address, and then thundered out the word which announced the German Government's rejection of the Versailles conditions.

"This treaty," he said, "is, in the view of the imperial German Government, unacceptable, so unacceptable that I am unable to believe that this earth could bear such a document without a cry issuing from millions and millions of throats in all lands, without distinction to party. Away with this murderous scheme!"

With the exception of the Independent Socialists led by Hugo Haase, all factions in the Assembly rose to their feet in vociferous approval. After the Chancellor's speech the leaders of the various parties, with the exception of the Haase group, made speeches in which they declared that they backed up the Government.

Says Wilson Deceived Germans.

The Chancellor described the peace treaty as a "dreadful" document. He said that it would make an enormous jail of Germany, in which 60,000,000 persons would have to labor for the victors in the war. German trade, he asserted, would be strangled should the terms be accepted. He criticised President Wilson, and said that the President by his attitude had deceived the hopes of the German people.

The occasion was the turning point in the life of the German people, the Chancellor said, as the Assembly was to decide the attitude toward "what our adversaries call peace conditions."

"The representatives of the nation," he continued, "meet here as the last band of the faithful assemblies when the Fatherland is in the greatest danger. All have appeared except the representatives of Alsace-Lorraine, who have been deprived of the right to be represented here, just as you are to be deprived of the right to exercise in a free vote the right of self-determination.

"And I see among you the representatives of all the German races and lands, the chosen representatives of the Rhineland, the Sarre, East Prussia, West Prussia, Posen, Silesia, Danzig, and Memel. Together with the Deputies of the unmenaced regions, I see the Deputies of the menaced provinces who, if the will of our enemies becomes law, are to meet for the last time as Germans among Germans.

Appeals for National Unity.

"I know that I am one in heart with you in the gravity and sanctity of this hour, which should be ruled by only one idea, that we belong to one another and must stand by one another and that we are one flesh and one blood and that whoever tries to sever us is driving a murderous knife into the living body of the German people.

"To keep our nation alive—that and nothing else—is our duty. We are pursuing no nationalistic dreams. No questions of prestige and no thirst for power have a part in our deliberations. Bare life is what we must have for our land and nation today while every one feels a throttling hand at his throat.

"Let me speak without tactical considerations. The thing which is at the basis of our discussion is this thick volume in which 100 sentences begin 'Germany renounces.' This dreadful and murderous volume by which confession of our own unworthiness, our consent to pitiless disruption, our agreement to helotry and slavery, are to be extorted—this book must not become the future code of law.

"The world has once again lost an illusion. The nations have in this period, which is so poor in ideals, again lost a belief. What name on thousands of bloody battlefields, in thousands of trenches, in orphan families, and among the despairing and abandoned has been mentioned during these four years with more devotion and belief than the name of Wilson?

"Today the picture of the peace bringer as the world pictured him is paling beside the dark forms of our jailers to one of whom, Premier Clem-

Allies Invite Hungarian Reds to Send Envoys To Paris for Signing of Treaty of Peace

PARIS, May 12, (Associated Press.)—The Hungarian Government has not yet accepted the invitation to name delegates for the signing of the peace treaty, but it is assumed here that the Bela Kun régime will gladly take advantage of this means of establishing relations with the outside world. Allied representatives at Vienna were directed recently to proceed to Budapest for the presentation of the proposal.

It was expected at this time that the Soviet régime was about to fall, but it later developed that it had secured a new lease of life. The instructions to the allied representatives were not withdrawn, however, and the results of this mission to Budapest are awaited.

VIENNA, May 12, (Associated Press.)—Reports from Budapest say that the position of the Hungarian Communist Government appears to have grown stronger in the last few days.

The halt of the Rumanian advance has encouraged the Communists, who believe that the Rumanians undertook more than they were able to accomplish if their intention was to reach Budapest. (Official announcement has been made that the allied troops moving on Budapest were ordered by the Peace Conference late last week to halt their advance.) The Rumanians, however, have effected a junction with the Czecho-slovaks and have cut off communication between Budapest and Russia by way of the Ukraine.

The peace negotiations at Paris are being watched closely by the Communist Government. The Volkstimme and other newspapers in Budapest denounce the peace treaty as "capitalistic," aiming at the enslavement of "our noble German brothers."

HAASE FOLLOWERS FIGHT FOR TREATY

HOPE FOR REVISION LATER

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 12.—When the conditions of the Versailles treaty first became known, the opinion of the Independent Socialists was divided as to whether Germany should accept or reject them. Adolph Hoffman, former Minister of Education, urged their rejection in the Prussian Diet, while Hugo Haase pleaded for their acceptance.

The Independents have since made acceptance a party issue, which their organ, Die Freiheit, energetically supports. The reason for this policy is plainly to be sought in factional interests. They urge acceptance of the terms with the reservation that revision is bound to come within a few years, when the proletarians of the Entente countries, as they hope, shall have achieved the overthrow of the present capitalistic Governments, the overthrow being hastened by the disastrous consequences which they predict this very treaty will have on the social and economic conditions in their own countries of those who are now trying to "enslave" the Germans with the instrument.

Another and more popular argument intended to demonstrate that the treaty must be signed is: "We cannot let our proletarians starve forever." This certainly has some attraction for the masses, who have just tasted American bacon and long for more.

Manoeuvring for Political Power.

But the Independent leaders, it is believed, care very little whether the treaty is signed or not. They hope that in either case the present Government will become extremely unpopular and that political power will revert to them and their friends, the Communists and disaffected Socialists.

All parties except the Independents today are violently against acceptance of the terms; and as their rejection would certainly be followed by terrible tribulations, what would be more natural, it is asked, than that the masses should turn to the Independents as the only party wise enough to foresee the catastrophe? If, on the other hand, the Ebert-Scheidemann Government should sign a perhaps somewhat less rigorous treaty, conditions could not improve quickly enough to prevent the masses from condemning the Versailles peace and those who signed it; and again the Independents and their allies would be regarded as wise in their prophecy. Revision of the treaty is the Germans' last hope.

The Independents are certainly much better politicians than the Ebert-Scheidemann faction. While they let Haase and Kautsky urge acceptance with clever arguments, in speeches, interviews, and newspaper articles, they are staging a sentimental sideshow for those of their friends who can be captured only by an appeal to their emotions.

Yesterday one of their leaders, Richard Müller, called a meeting of all Greater Berlin Labor Councils, which passed a resolution against "the brutal cruelty of the dictated peace which is to be inflicted on Germany by the imperialist Entente powers." After blaming the old German régime for having brought upon Germany the hatred of the whole world, it was resolved immediately to call a congress of the German Workers' Coun-

PEACE TREATY FAILS TO PLEASE BRITISH

Few Sections of Opinion Not Greatly Dissatisfied and None Are Wholly Satisfied.

SOME TAKE GLOOMY VIEW

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 13.—Bonar Law, having returned from Paris today, deprecated Parliamentary discussion of the draft of the peace treaty at the present stage, and though individual M. P.'s may continue to press questions, full dress debates are unlikely till the British plenipotentiaries return with the complete treaty signed and sealed. The alternative of a German refusal to sign continues to be disregarded as not a serious possibility.

While criticism in Parliament is thus held up for obvious reasons, it is growing increasingly apparent that few sections of British public opinion are not greatly dissatisfied and that none is entirely satisfied with the draft of the treaty.

The Independent Labor Party's protest because the millennium has not been achieved is not entitled to as much weight as some American dispatches say is being given to it in the United States. Most of the executive officers of that party who still claim to speak for British labor are equally unlikely to get their way. British opinion on the peace treaty will, according to most competent observers, be found to steer a middle course and will eventually depend principally on the measure of success which seems to attend the League of Nations scheme.

Many good Liberals who have given more than lip service to the League are, temporarily at least, depressed by the apparent recognition by Wilson and Lloyd George that the League is not even in the minds of its principals creators of sufficient use for the very purposes for which it was created.

The proposals for a defensive alliance of the old type, except as qualified by the covenant of the League, are an implication that the Covenant's phrases about a guarantee of territorial integrity require a stronger guarantee than the League is yet able to give. It is also pointed out that the American reservation about the Monroe Doctrine in the covenant means nothing if it does not mean that America is unwilling to confide to the League what she regards as her vital defense.

The exclusiveness of the new combination is also criticised, but The Daily Chronicle suggests that the absence of an undertaking comprising Italy may have been due rather to haste and inadvertence on the part of the peacemakers at Paris than to a wrong purpose. The Chronicle points to the weak link in the League chain when it forecasts the possibility of an anti-League combination.

"For now that France, Great Britain, and America," it says, "have recognized that the League covenant is not by itself a sufficient tie to hold them, other important powers are bound to think and act likewise, and if they cannot contract ties of safety with us they will inevitably look for them elsewhere."

It was recently stated in these dispatches that it was a moot point whether the League of Nations idea had gained or lost ground in British opinion in recent weeks. In the opinion of several authorities consulted when the peace draft treaty was issued there can now be no doubt of the answer to the question. One significant indication is found in a series of articles appearing in the

ORLANDO AND HOUSE MEET

PARIS, May 13, (Associated Press.) The Italian problem seemed nearer of solution when today's conferences began among the allied representatives here, and it was thought probable that a basis of understanding would be reached.

The Italian representatives are reported to be evidencing more of a willingness to make concessions.

The discussions of the day began when Premier Orlando called this afternoon upon Colonel E. M. House of the American delegation.

The Italian representatives have resumed complete participation in the pending peace negotiations by appointing a member of the liaison commission controlling all communications with the German delegation. This commission has hitherto been composed only of British, French, and American representatives.

The Council of Four discussed this afternoon the Turkish and Asia Minor questions and certain details of the Austrian treaty. American experts were called in for consultation on the subject of Austria.

ITALY'S AFRICAN GRIEVANCES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 12.—"We ask the Allies to cede us territories of small importance to England and France, but essential to us, being necessary for the more rational settlement of the frontiers of Eritrea, Somaliland and Libya. These modest claims meet tenacious resistance on the part of the Allies. The Teutonic peril having passed, it seems that egotism has taken the place of gratitude."

In these words the Giornale d'Italia summarizes the feelings of the great majority here with regard to Italy's exclusion from compensations in Africa.

"America, England and France have contracted an alliance while Italy was absent, and did it not only as though she was absent from the Peace Conference, but as though she didn't exist," says the Idea Nazionale, the organ of the intransigeant Nationalists, voicing the dissatisfaction of the greater part of the press with the Anglo-Franco-American alliance.

The Giolittist newspapers continue their attacks upon Orlando and Sonnino, who they say ought months sooner to have realized how the land lay and to have taken a more energetic stand from the beginning, before having approved the pet projects of every other ally.

LUZZATTI VOICES AMITY.

Says He Can't Conceive Possibility of Strained Relations with Us.

ROME, May 12, (Associated Press.)—Luigi Luzzatti, former Italian Prime Minister and during his long political career the negotiator of twenty-eight treaties with statesmen like Thiers, Disraeli, Gladstone and Bismarck, speaking today of the relations between Italy and the United States, said:

"I have never considered, not even conceived, the possibility of there being strained relations between Italy and the United States. The message of your President to the allied States and his noble resolution to declare war on our enemies, his visit to Europe, and his appearance in Italy as 'savior,' consoled me profoundly. I considered all this as the outcome of the intimate friendship between Italy and America, initiated by millions of our emigrants to the United States."

GERMAN ENVOYS SEND FIFTH NOTE TO ALLIES

To be Delivered to Council of Four Today—Want Communication with Austrians.

PARIS, May 13, (Associated Press.)—The German peace delegation announces the dispatch of a fifth note, which will probably reach the French Foreign Office tonight and will be delivered to the Council of Four tomorrow morning.

It developed today that Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German delegation, intends to ask permission to send German delegates to receive the Austrian representatives, according to the Havas Agency. Previously it had been announced that the Allies intended to keep the delegations wholly apart.

The German plenipotentiaries were also reported to be preparing a formal request that they be allowed to communicate with the Austrian delegates during the negotiations.

BERLIN, May 12, (Associated Press.)—The Imperial Ministry met today to discuss the peace terms. Practical questions and considerations relating to territorial cessions which have been transmitted to M. Clemenceau, President of the Peace Conference, by the German delegation were said to be not of fundamental importance, but of an explanatory character.

The Neue Freie Presse of Vienna says that Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau has informed its representative that he is making every effort to secure the union of German Austria with Germany.

GERMAN PLAN FOR LEAGUE.

Want World Parliament, Disarmament, and Labor League.

PARIS, May 12.—The German plan for a League of Nations submitted by the German delegation at Versailles and now in the hands of the Peace Conference Committee on the League of Nations, to which it was referred, contains sixty-six articles, together with a supplement, setting forth the charter for an international labor league. The special aims of the League of Nations devised by the Germans are set forth as follows:

"(A) Prevention of international disputes.

"(B) Disarmament.

"(C) Securing freedom of traffic and general economic equality of rights.

"(D) Protection of national minorities.

"(E) Creation of an international workers' charter.

"(F) Regulation of colonial questions.

"(G) Unity of existing and future international institutions.

"(H) The creation of a Parliament."

Another provision of the draft reads: "The League of Nations shall comprise, (a) all belligerent States taking part in the present war; (b) all neutral States included in The Hague Arbitration League; (c) all others to be admitted by vote of two-thirds of the existing members. Entrance is reserved to the Holy See."

PARTY URGES SIGNING TREATY

Independent Socialist Committee Appeals for Submission.

BERLIN, May 12, (Associated Press.)—"Even if important changes are not made by the negotiations begun at Versailles, there remains no choice but to bow to compulsion and sign the treaty," says an appeal of the Central Committee of the Independent Socialist Party in the party organ, Die Freiheit, this morning.

"Not signing," continues the appeal, "means the retention of our prisoners of war, the occupation of our raw material districts, the tightening of the blockade, unemployment, hunger, and death en masse. It is the proletariat that would suffer the most terribly from the consequences.

"Peace, as hard and as oppressive as it may be, is a necessary assumption for the possibility of rebuilding our social and economic life in the spirit of the revolutionary proletariat."

The appeal is prefaced by a denunciation of the severity of the peace terms. It concludes with a demand that the workmen of all countries unite against capitalism for a world revolution.

NEUTRALS' POCKETS HIT.

Some Who Denounce Terms to Germany Have Big Investments There.

BERNE, May 12.—Private messages from various parts of Germany make it clear that the peace terms have at any rate forced the mass of the German people to realize their thorough defeat. Hitherto they had not really done so. Never throughout the war was public mourning ordained in Germany, but now the national humiliation is such that orders to refrain from all public amusements are scarcely necessary.

In neutral countries adjoining Germany the peace terms have also caused the most profound consternation among certain classes, which is due to the fact that much capital in these countries is invested in German enterprises, and it is therefore feared that should Germany declare herself bankrupt it would all be lost. Some pro-German newspapers, which during the war were consistently subservient to the German General Staff and since the armistice have pretended to be friendly to the Allies, have again come out in their true colors, which are those of Germany. But this is also due to the fact that these newspapers represent numerous readers with large financial interests in Germany. Hence not too much attention should be paid to their lucubrations. These newspapers showed virtually no sympathy with Belgium during the war, or with the suffering of France, but on the contrary applauded all the barbarities of the German army leaders.

The only German-Swiss paper which does not raise its hands to heaven in holy horror is the Neue Zürcher Zeitung, which advises Germany, should she be unable to obtain milder conditions, loyally to accept and endeavor to fulfil the treaty; and then, it says, before long probably the most humiliating clauses will be abolished. Germany's behavior in 1871, it admits, did not afford a precedent for this, but many precedents exist. If, however, the Germans would compare the Allies' peace terms with those proposed in the famous petitions of German commercial associations and of the professors, intellectuals, etc., in 1915, they would find the former amazingly lenient. The German 1916 peace terms included not merely annexation of Belgium, the French Channel coast, and the coal mines, but about a quarter of Russia, and from England the hugest war indemnity possible to extort.

Well-informed circles in Switzerland believe that Germany will sign the treaty, and if she cannot subsequently get it modified will then declare herself bankrupt.

FEAR ANNEXING GERMANS.

Danes Apprehensive of Details of the Peace Plan.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Denmark looks with apprehension upon the addition to its population of a large number of Germans through the rearrangement of the German-Danish frontier by the peace treaty.

"Both Chambers of the Danish Parliament yesterday in a joint confidential sitting discussed the situation created by the peace condition about Schleswig. The following resolution was adopted by a majority consisting of the Left Party, the Radical Party, Socialists, and Professor Birck of the Conservative Party:

"'While the Danish Parliament expresses its satisfaction at the prospect that the coming peace will bring the fulfillment of the national hopes of the Danish people, it insists on its resolution of Oct. 23, 1918, and on the wishes expressed toward the allied and associated powers in Paris with regard to the voting zone in Schleswig by the Parliamentary declaration representing all parties and by the representatives of the Danish Electors' Association in Schleswig.'"

By the decision of the Paris conference, provision was made for righting the wrong done by Germany to Denmark nearly three-quarters of a century ago in seizing the provinces of Schleswig-Holstein. In view of the great changes that have taken place in the population of those provinces, however, the council provided for a division of the former Danish provinces into three separate zones in which plebiscites were to be taken at different periods to determine the wishes of the people as to sovereignty.

In Danish circles here it was explained today that, although the southern zone nearest Germany probably had become almost entirely Germanized, the population possibly would vote to adhere to Denmark to escape German taxation, and Denmark would thereby have as a portion of her population people not [illegible]

FIND BROCKDORFF OBSTACLE TO PEACE

British Particularly Anxious to Have Him Retired by the Germans.

INTIMATION SENT TO BERLIN

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 11.—There is a very strong feeling in allied Peace Conference circles that Count Brockdorff-Rantzau's presence on the German peace delegation is a detriment to a speedy and satisfactory conclusion of peace. It has not taken definite form yet, but is likely to be manifested soon. It is understood that the British are particularly keen to have Brockdorff-Rantzau's services as peacemaker dispensed with, and from what is known it is supposed that they have conveyed an intimation of that sort to the proper German authority. The French are said to sympathize with the British view that the possibility of trouble will be reduced if Brockdorff-Rantzau retires from the German delegation.

That Germany will be obliged to accept the peace terms dictated by the Allies or suffer more severely than the drastic conditions of the treaty provide is certain. A refusal on Germany's part to sign the treaty will cause the allied Governments to adopt measures that will increase the humiliation of the German people to a degree that is only suggested by the treaty terms. In the face of this knowledge, Brockdorff-Rantzau adopted an attitude toward the allied plenipotentiaries, when the German delegation appeared before them last Wednesday, that caused much comment and dissatisfaction. The fact that he did not rise when addressing the allied plenipotentiaries, in contrast with the attitude of the whole allied company in standing when the Germans entered, and the example of Clemenceau in rising when addressing Brockdorff-Rantzau, aroused much feeling. There is a marked desire on the part of the French and British to attribute the apparent discourtesy to German insolence. That Brockdorff-Rantzau was ill when he entered the hall was plain, and the American delegates were inclined to attribute his failure to pay the ordinary respect to the allied body to sheer physical inability to stand on his feet for the period required to deliver the address in reply to Clemenceau. The American peace delegates, however, think he should have had the courtesy to mention the fact that he was ill. As an examplar of manners, Brockdorff-Rantzau does not stand high in Paris today.

But, outside of this, feeling is strong against the head of the German delegation because of the character of his address at the session when the allied peace terms were presented to him. His attitude, it is contended, was defiant and showed that he failed to appreciate how thoroughly Germany had been beaten and how helpless she was to resist the allied demands. It is surmised that the British have some intimate information as to Brockdorff-Rantzau's personal position which leads them to believe he will be a distinct detriment to peace. There is an expectation that he will go to Berlin and Weimar to consult his Government and the National Assembly prior to the expiration of the time limit given to the German delegation for reply—that is, on May 22. If he should fail to return it would cause no surprise in well-informed circles.

Statements from French official sources that if the German delegates should return to Germany now, even if for consultation with their Government, it would mean a severance of the peace proceedings, are declared by high American officials to be nonsensical. The Germans, these American officials say, are free to return to Germany. All that is required of them, it is explained, is that they shall submit their observations on the allied terms within the fortnight from May 7.

THREATEN A BREAK IN GERMAN CABINET

Centrists and Two Democratic Parties to Withdraw if the Treaty Is Signed.

PARIS, May 13.—The heads of the two German Democratic Parties and the party of the Centre have informed Chancellor Scheidemann that their parties will withdraw their representatives from the Government in case the Cabinet decides to sign the peace treaty, according to a dispatch from Berlin received here by way of Basle.

The Socialist newspaper Vorwärts, in commenting on this action, says that it is the first step toward a Cabinet crisis.

LONDON, May 12.—The possibility of a change in the Government of Germany as a result of the presentation of the allied peace terms was discussed by Chancellor Scheidemann at Berlin today, according to a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from that city. The Chancellor denounced the peace terms, which he said represented a "brutal, dictated peace."

The statement was made to foreign journalists in the former Chancellor's palace and, in part, follows:

"We thought that we Social Democrats were strong enough to prevent a peace by violence, but doubted whether the masses in enemy countries could support us, because they are less strongly organized than we. Certain circles in England and France are beginning to advise the necessity of common sense.

"It is too comic when President Wilson's fourteen points are contrasted with the peace terms. They do not mention Mr. Wilson's terms, but are just a brutal, dictated peace.

"It is possible that a Government might be formed which would sign the peace terms, but it is doubtful whether the Allies would be satisfied with such a Government. A reactionary Government is out of all question, and a communist and independent Government would be acting for the people of whom they would represent only a small minority. Even if such a Government did sign the treaty it would be just as impossible for it to fulfill the conditions as it would be for us."

AUSTRIANS TO BE TRIED FOR ATROCITIES IN WAR

PARIS, May 12, (Associated Press.)—In the peace treaty with Austria, now well toward completion, a responsibility clause has been inserted identical with that in the German treaty, with the exception that the first clause, providing for the trial of the former Emperor William, is omitted. The remaining clause makes provision for the trial of military offenders by an international court-martial.

The frontier delimitation of the new Austria presents the one serious issue in the drawing of the treaty, somewhat similar to that of the Sarre Valley in the German treaty. This is as regards lower Tyrol, a section of which is detached from Austria and placed within the boundaries of Italy. It includes the cities of Bozen and Meran, and an estimated German population of about 300,000.

The reason for attaching this German-speaking population to Italy is the establishment of a strategic frontier giving Italy adequate protection from invasion from the north. The old frontier ran south of the Alps, with Italy on the down grade and Austria on the commanding heights. The new frontier reverses this, giving Italy the heights and all the defensive passages. The former status gave Austria seven lines of approach, while Italy possessed only one main line for mobilizing its defenses. The new status places all these lines of approach under Italy's control.

As has been stated, the frontier line as drawn in the terms to be presented the Austrians is the one laid down by the Treaty of London, although the treaty makes no mention of this fact. Italy sought this line as a permanent strategic defense, secured its insertion in the armistice terms, and now secures its incorporation in the treaty.

BASLE, May 12.—The peace which Austria would make would not be the final word. Dr. Karl Renner, the Austrian Chancellor, declared to a crowd outside the Rathaus in Vienna, says a dispatch from that city.

"In this terrible hour," the Chancellor said, "we shall not obtain the peace we expected and which we might have hoped for if the right of peoples to dispose of themselves had been realized. But this peace will not be the last word of the story. Our firmness must show that here lives a people which is determined to realize its rights to dispose of itself."

Brazil President to Visit Rome.

ROME, May 12.—Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, President-elect of Brazil, is expected to arrive here on Thursday. He will be the guest of King Victor Emmanuel at the Quirinal and will also visit Pope Benedict, going first to the Brazilian Embassy accredited to the Vatican.

The Brazilian Ambassador to the Holy See, wishing to celebrate the recent elevation of the Brazilian Legation to the rank of an embassy, gave a dinner and reception tonight which was attended by many Cardinals, including Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, diplomats of the pontifical court, and others prominent in the Church.

Prague to Honor Peacemakers.

PARIS, May 12.—The University of Prague has decided to honor several allied statesmen by conferring degrees upon them, says a message from the Czechoslovak capital. The men to be honored are President Poincaré, President Wilson, Premier Clemenceau, David Lloyd George, the British Premier, and Professor Masaryk, President of the Czechoslovak Republic, who will be made Doctors honoris causa.

cils, to "appeal to the conscience of the proletarians in the Entente countries, asking them to make common cause with the German proletarians against world imperialism."

These phrases deceive none here. The Workers' Councils Congress is convoked to take over the power of the National Convention should circumstances prove to be propitious for overthrowing the present Government.

Kautsky Fears War's Renewal.

In the same issue of Die Freiheit which prints the above resolution Kautsky endeavors to prove that the treaty should be accepted. He writes:

"What now? Shall we sign this treaty even if it is not made less severe? Doubtless acceptance would be suicide, if it were a peace of destruction or a time-limited death sentence. But, hard as the conditions are, they cannot destroy the German people, though they may make life very difficult.

"It would mean abrupt physical destruction if the peace were rejected and the state of war continued. After a few weeks of fruitless resistance, which would cost many lives, we must capitulate. It has been threatened that Germany would throw herself into Bolshevism, and that at the moment when the Russian Bolsheviki are about to make peace with the Entente. Anyway, Bolshevism will lose its terror if it serves merely as a disguise. [illegible] effect will simply be that of a dog in a lion's skin.

"If, however, the Entente permitted itself to be fooled, the consequence would simply be a worse set of peace conditions, because the fear of Germany is the principal reason for the harshness of the treaty. If any improvement of the conditions is possible, it can be achieved only by an appeal to reason, not to fear, not by sympathizing specifically with German interests, but by pointing out that the whole world's interests will be endangered by the conditions to which we are compelled to subscribe."

Hints of Worthless Promise.

Kautsky declares that the Entente's demand for payment of 20,000,000,000 marks within two years is unreasonable and most impossible.

"You can make a starving beggar sign a check for billions with your revolver muzzle at his forehead," he writes, "but as long as that beggar hasn't anything, the check is worthless."

Kautsky would cede Upper Silesia to Poland because the majority of its inhabitants are Polish, though the wealth is almost wholly in the hands of Germans.

"Doubtless Germany must have coal and potatoes," he says, "but it matters little in peace time, when commerce is regulated, whether they come from England or Poland or are found in Germany. In peace times the Poles will gladly sell us coal and potatoes. In war times they will with difficulty be obtained. But then, we want peace, not war."

Kautsky protests sharply against the Polish noblemen who are alleged to have been intrusted with the government of Germany's new neighbor. He concludes with these words, which clearly reveal the attitude of the Independents and their friends:

"One thing is certain: unless our Nemesis should become reasonable at the last minute, this peace cannot last long."

TERMS EMBITTER GERMANS ON RHINE

FORCED TO REALIZE DEFEAT

By EDWIN L. JAMES.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COBLENZ, May 11.—In the sunshine of a perfect May day many Germans this afternoon were seated in their terraced cafés along the banks of the Rhine drinking beer and talking over the peace terms. It is the first day of their week of national mourning, but the only difference appears to be the absence of orchestras.

I am writing this at a window overlooking the long open-air café of the Furstenhof Hotel. The veranda is crowded with prosperous-looking folk in Summer finery. But their faces wear scowls and their voices are angry. The men are doing the most talking, the women sitting humbly by and assenting with nods.

The old Ehrenbreitstein Fort, in doomed majesty, looms across the river. Countless cherry trees dot the green slopes and add beauty to the Rhineland hills.

I can hear the same arguments that I heard Brockdorff-Rantzau make in his speech to the allied peace delegates at Versailles. They are spoken more vociferously. There are many declarations that Germany will never sign such a treaty.

Bitter Toward Americans Now.

Above all the arguments, one hears condemnation of America and President Wilson. Truly there is one new note in the song of fury which the Germans have been singing since the peace terms were given to them.

Heretofore the Americans on the Rhine have heard, night and day, praise of America and Wilson. It has been stated in these dispatches from time to time that this appeared to be merely because the Germans hoped that America and Wilson would save them from their just deserts. Now that they regard it as proved that America and Wilson have not stood between them and justice, one gets the real measure of the value of German protestations of regard for us.

I have been down there on the terrace talking with some of these Germans and without exception they would ask:

"Where are Wilson's fourteen points? We didn't have to make the armistice. We could have fought on. We made the armistice a bargain for a basis of peace on Wilson's fourteen points. Now Wilson has failed us. He has been too weak to stand up before France and England in their wish to destroy Germany. This treaty is a lie. It lies because you cannot find any of the fourteen points in it."

It seems to be impossible to exaggerate the feeling of Germans today against America. They heartily join Ludendorff in saying: "America can go to hell."

Deep Fear of Trade Loss.

It is very interesting to note that the chief cry of the Germans in the Rhineland against the peace terms is not founded on the hurt to their pride in the fact that the French are to occupy this section for ten years. They seem to accept that, but their materialistic minds rise in revolt against the restrictions placed upon Germany's commercial development and trade expansion. That is what seems to hurt them more than anything else.

Nothing stings them so much as the taking away of Germany's merchant fleet. They ask how Germany is to pay indemnities and how she can earn this money if she has no merchant fleet. They see disaster in having to pay English and American shipping rates, which they predict will be ruinously discriminatory. The talk of resentment about the Sarre Basin settlement, which was the centre of the agitation ten days ago, fades before this new misfortune.

These Germans are studying the peace terms, they are vehement against signing a contract to pay reparation charges without fixing of the amounts. They say that the Allies will milk their resources dry and that it is impossible to consummate a peace agreement without more definite stipulations. They have theories and solutions for every point made.

Real Hope Is for Concessions.

Despite the loudness of protest underlying all the discussions of the Germans, they realize that sooner or later Germany must sign the peace. In the hearts of all of them the deep hope is that they will obtain concessions from the Allies. This hope is tempered by the feeling that "Wilson has gone back on us," but the hope of getting modification of the terms is nevertheless very real.

It is difficult to tell whether it is determination and desire to pursue this hope to the utmost that causes the ever-repeated declaration that Germany will not sign the treaty in its present form, or whether, if it is not changed, they would really favor final rejection. They say that, if they do not sign, it would place the Allies in a difficult position, but they realize that it would place Germany in a worse position.

Despite their declarations I doubt seriously if a vote taken today in Coblenz would give a majority against signing the terms, even if no changes were obtained. In considering the protests one must bear in mind that up to this time the Germans had not realized that they had lost the war. As soon as that point has sunk into their minds there may be a change of attitude.

The Germans know now that the Americans are going home quickly and that little of immediate value is to be gained by kneeling any longer before our troops. They believe that Wilson is not going to save their skins. So they are getting just as obstreperous about it as the army authorities will allow.

The news of the speeding up of the American troop movement homeward and the assurance that the army will be away from the Rhine by Sept. 1 have done wonders for the morale of the doughboys, and so far as they are concerned everything is lovely. If the Germans sign the peace terms by June 1, the Sept. 1 plan may be considerably bettered.

PEACE TREATY FAILS TO PLEASE BRITISH

Westminster Gazette, whose Paris correspondent writes:

"The best comment on the draft of the treaty is that peace has been adjourned for fifteen years. It might also be said that active hostilities have been suspended for fifteen years. In fifteen years, in short, we shall be faced with the possibility of peace or war."

The Allies, according to this argument, have evaded the principal problems. The reparation clauses are largely make-believe. Continued occupation of German territory after fifteen years would be a grave measure. Whatever the restrictions imposed by the treaty, Germany's hands fifteen years hence will be more or less free, and scientific invention may by that time have made present conceptions of military security a vain word. For the next fifteen years the Sarre will be a running sore and at the end of that period the wound will be probed perilously.

The only hope for mankind, The Westminster Gazette deduces, is the League of Nations.

"In Europe today, no one," it says, "can see five years ahead. The wisest man in the world cannot tell how Russia is going to shape or what might be the effect upon any or all present plans of developments of labor opinion which may be expected in the next ten years. The hope of the world is that the League of Nations will get to work immediately while all nations are exhausted and sick of fighting and that it will obtain and use power to mold events for the common good."

Bismarck once called the Germans a service nation, and the saying is recalled today as justification for the belief that she will accept the peace terms. In this connection the question as to how much discussion should be allowed the German delegates is hotly debated between those who want a dictated peace and those who claim that unless full opportunity is given to the Germans to put in reasoned argument in opposition to the terms presented, the acceptance by Germany of the League covenant is beyond hope.

enceau, a Frenchman recently wrote: 'The wild beast has been put in a cage on bread and water, but is allowed to keep his teeth, while his claws are hardly cut.'

Sees All Germany in Captivity.

"All over Berlin we see posters intended to arouse a practical love for our brothers in captivity. They show sad and hopeless faces behind the prison bars—that is the right frontispiece for the so-called peace treaty, a true portrait of Germany's future.

"Sixty millions are behind the barbed wire and the prison bars—sixty millions at hard labor, for whom the enemy makes their own land a prison camp. Should the peace conditions be accepted Germany no longer could call anything her own which lies outside these narrow bounds. Germany has ceased to exist abroad, but if that were not sufficient, her cables have been taken from her and her wireless stations can send only commercial telegrams, and then only under control of the Allies. This would separate us from the outer world, for what business can be done under the control of competitors need not be described.

"But this is far from enough. The Council therefore determines treaties between enemy countries to be null and void except such treaties whose execution is in favor of a Government of the allied powers.

"What does President Wilson so aptly say, 'that the first principle of peace itself is equality, equal participation in common benefits.'

Protests Loss of Resources.

"That is the jail picture in its external aspects; without ships because the mercantile fleet passes into Entente hands, without cables, without colonies, without foreign settlements, without reciprocity and legal protection, yes, and even without the right to co-operate in fixing the prices for the goods and articles which we have to deliver as tribute.

"I ask you what honest man will say that Germany can accept such conditions. At the same time as we shall have to bestir ourselves to perform forced labor for the benefit of the entire world, our foreign trade, the sole source of our welfare, is destroyed and our home trade is rendered impossible.

"Lorraine iron ore, Upper Silesian coal, Alsatian potash, the Sarre Valley mines, and the cheap foodstuffs from Posen and West Prussia are to lie outside our frontiers. We are to impose no higher tariff or protection than existed on Aug. 1, 1914, while our enemies may do as much as they like and every point in strangling us at home. All German revenues must be held at the disposal of our enemies for payments, not for war invalids and widows—all as forced labor for products the prices of which will be fixed by our customers.

Charges Robbery by Allies.

"What is a people to do which is confronted by the command that it is responsible for all losses and all damages that its enemies suffered in the war? What is a people to do which is to have no voice in fixing its obligations?

"Because, perhaps, this humiliation and robbery are even yet insufficient and in order to utilize every future possibility of destruction, the yoke must finally be placed on our neck and a miserable enslavement established for our children and our children's children. Germany undertakes to put in force and to publish all acts of legislation, all prescriptions and all regulations which might be necessary to insure the complete carrying out of the terms.

"Enough! More than enough! These are some examples of the treaty stipulations in establishing which, as Herr Clemenceau yesterday informed our delegation, the Entente will be guided completely by the principles according to which the armistice and peace negotiations were proposed.

Puts Hope in Negotiations.

"We have made counter-proposals and shall make still more. With your consent we regard it as our sacred task to come to negotiations.

"Here and there insight and the common obligations of humanity are beginning to make themselves felt in neutral countries: in Italy and in Great Britain, above all, too. This is a comfort for us in this last fearful flaming up of the policy of the mailed fist—and in socialistic France voices are being heard whereby historians one day will measure the state of humanity after four years of murder."

Herr Scheidemann thanked all those in whom the indignation of conscience had found expression, and added:

"I am especially thankful for and re-echo the vow of imperishable devotion and faithfulness ringing across to us from Vienna. Stand by us in paving the way to negotiations; leave no one in the world in doubt regarding the fact that you are one with us.

"We protest against hatred being perpetuated, a curse being established for all eternity. Members of the National Assembly, the dignity of Germany is placed in your hands. Preserve it."

The Assembly is sitting temporarily in a hall of the University of Berlin on Unter den Linden.

WILSON TO SOUND SENATE ON ALLIANCE

If Response Is Favorable He Will Proceed to Negotiate a Treaty.

FRANCE ONLY BENEFICIARY

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 11.—President Wilson's mode of procedure in obtaining the Senate's assent to the proposal that the United States furnish armed help to France in case of unprovoked attack by Germany now seems clear. The first step will be to lay before the Senate a statement of what it is proposed to guarantee to France. With this statement will be a memorandum setting forth the guarantee to the French Government in treaty form. The Senate will be asked to declare whether it would be willing to sanction an arrangement of the character indicated in the memorandum of the treaty. Should its declaration be in the affirmative, the President will proceed through his proper representatives to negotiate the treaty, whose ratification will be a foregone conclusion in view of the prior permission of the Senate for its negotiation.

This is an unusual procedure for an American President to follow, and particularly for Woodrow Wilson, who has been rather indifferent to the sensibilities of the Senate. But the proposal is unusual also, involving as it does the participation of the United States Government in what is construed here generally as a defensive alliance. The memorandum to be submitted to the Senate is now being drafted in Paris. The understanding is that it will embody the form of a treaty with France to carry out the defensive plan.

The guarantee is now openly referred to by officials of the American Peace Commission as a treaty. This means it will require the signature of a French plenipotentiary and ratification of the French Government, and may bind France to certain obligations, although all present information goes to show that the entire obligation is on the part of the United States.

Only a Guarantee Against Germany.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—From what was learned in a high quarter in Washington today it is improper to designate the proposed arrangement between France, England, and the United States, which President Wilson intends to submit to the Senate, as an alliance, in the strict sense of the term. It was asserted that the suggested arrangement would not take the form of an alliance, but would be merely a guarantee or pledge of assistance by England and the United States to go to the aid of France in the event of an unprovoked attack by Germany.

Under the terms of the arrangement, which is designed to safeguard and protect France in any sudden emergency arising before the League of Nations is able to act, France would be under no obligation to come to the assistance of the United States, and it is assumed that there is nothing reciprocal in the pledge as between England and France, England being pledged, under the proposed arrangement, to aid France against Germany if the latter power should make an unprovoked attack on France.

The pledge, it is understood here, would not assure France of the military assistance of England and the United States if France should become involved with any nation other than Germany.

Italy is not a party to the proposed pledge. This is understood to be because Italy has been freed from the Austro-Hungarian menace and is not threatened as France might be. In the case of Italy, it was pointed out that her former enemy had been cut up into a number of parts, each of which was militarily weaker than Italy, and Germany was to be separated from Italy by some of the new States, while the frontiers of France were contiguous to those of the proposed now frontiers of Germany.

AUSTRIANS WILL REACH ST. GERMAIN TONIGHT

Italian Delegates Likely to Have Seats of Honor When the Treaty Is Presented.

PARIS, May 13, (Associated Press.)—Information received by French officials indicates that the Austrian chief delegates will arrive at St. Germain tomorrow evening. General Albertini, head of the Italian Military Mission in Vienna, accompanies the delegation.

The Italians will play a far more prominent rôle in the reception of the Austrians and the presentation of terms than in the case of the Germans. An Italian Colonel, ranking with Colonel Henry and above the other interallied representatives, has been delegated for the military mission, and the Italian plenipotentiaries probably will have seats at the head of the table for the ceremony of the presentation of conditions.

ST. GERMAIN-EN-LAYE, May 13, (Associated Press.)—The arrangements for the reception of the Austrian peace delegates tomorrow evening, for their accommodation in the suburban residence of the early French Kings, and the presentation to them of the conditions of peace, which are to be a duplication in many respects of those handed the Germans at Versailles, are now completed.

It is evident that the Austrians are to be treated less as enemies and subject to fewer restrictions than their German allies. They will be received on their arrival at St. Germain by Prefect Chaleel of the Department of Seine-et-Oise, as the representative of the French Government. The museum of the château, containing relics of prehistoric times, which by unpremediated irony has been selected for the ceremony of turning over to the delegates the peace treaty, is now ready.

The room is much smaller than that at Versailles, where the Germans were informed of the demands of the allied and associated Governments, and the conference tables, which are arranged in exactly the same form of hollow rectangles, crowd it to the limit. Notwithstanding the overcrowded conditions of the room, space again has been reserved for selected representatives of the press.

The Austrian delegation could reach St. Germain early in the afternoon, but, in order to avoid a too public entry into the town, the special train on which they are traveling will be routed so as to arrive in the evening at some small station outside St. Germain. From this station the delegates will be brought in automobiles, as inconspicuously as possible, to the quarters reserved for them in two hotels and three private villas.

The intention to quarter the Turks and Bulgarians in St. Germain, on their arrival here, has been abandoned, owing to lack of accommodations. They will probably be located in Meudon, southwest of Paris.

AUSTRIAN PAPERS ASSAIL PEACE TERMS

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

VIENNA, May 11, (delayed.)—General opinion here on the terms of the Peace Treaty is that they are extremely severe. Some call them impossible. At the press bureau of the Foreign Office the view is expressed that the treaty puts a crushing burden on Germany and at the same time takes away all her coal and other means of meeting her obligations.

The newspapers all comment on the severity of the terms, one declaring that President Wilson broke faith and calling on Germany to appeal to the American people over his head. Nevertheless, there is not much surprise, even in these circles, because it is said the conference assembled with the purpose of destroying.

An editorial in the Neue Freie Presse says:

"America has pledged its word as a free nation that has never broken faith. The Peace Treaty is not based on the Fourteen Points of President Wilson. He prefers to address peoples without regard to their Governments—now Germany ought to address the American people, whose honor is at stake.

"The treaty is a breach of faith because President Wilson promised a peace of impartial justice, while the proposed conditions are an expression of unaccountable greed for destruction. There is no doubt the people of the United States will guard their national honor."

WOMEN MEET AT ZURICH.

ZURICH, May 12.—Miss Jane Addams of Chicago presided today at the opening session of the Women's International Conference for Permanent Peace. The conference will deal with the work of the Peace Conference in Paris and the covenant of the League of Nations, and will elaborate proposals concerning the legal position of women in political and economic life.

One hundred delegates, representing thirteen countries, were present today. The Americans, in addition to Miss Addams, are Emily Balch, Alice Hamilton, Florence Kelley, Jeannette Rankin, and Lillian Wald.

Borden Called Home to Canada.

PARIS, May 13.—Sir Robert Borden, the Canadian Premier, is returning to Canada, according to Reuter's, Ltd., because the political situation there is said to require his presence. Sir George E. Foster probably will take Sir Robert's place as head of the Canadian delegation.

Why Under-Insurance is Prevalent

We have just paid $5,000, the full amount of our bond, in a case where the embezzler got away with $55,000 before being jailed.

In another case, where the bond was $5,000, the embezzler mulcted a country bank in the sum of $130,000 before committing suicide.

Again, where a bond was $15,000, it was found after the embezzler died that he was short over $200,000.

Under-insurance occurs when the insured is not alert to increase his insurance as the purchasing power of money decreases.

In fidelity insurance many bonds remain in the same amount as originally fixed by employers years ago, notwithstanding changed conditions and increased responsibilities of employees.

Under existing conditions losses due to defalcations of employees are more numerous, the amounts embezzled are apt to be larger, and the purchasing power of money realized on defaulted fidelity bonds is less than in normal times.

Our services, backed by 35 years' experience, are at the disposal of employers desiring to increase their fidelity insurance, or to bond employees not now covered.

KNOX APPROVES SCHEME

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 12.—The announcement was made tonight that the United States had sanctioned an international consortium for combining the interests of the American, British, French, and Japanese groups in China and "for undertaking joint financial, administrative, and industrial loans to the Chinese Government." All future development of China undertaken by the financiers of any of these four countries will be pooled with those of the three others.

The consortium was arranged today at a meeting called by the United States Government, with Thomas W. Lamont representing the American group. The American action appears to be a complete reversal of the position taken in the early days of the Wilson Administration, when the Government withdrew its support from American financiers in the Six-Power group.

The American group, which originally had four members, has been extended to include thirty American banking firms. It is emphasized that no guarantees are given by the United States Government to the investments of the American group; but as the group makes its investments only with the approval of the Government, the moral support of the Washington Administration is employed.

New Shangtung Railroads Affected.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, May 12.—The League of Nations offers enough security for the United States Government to sanction American banking interests to take part in financing China today. Thomas W. Lamont, with British, French, and Japanese financiers, has begun the organization of a consortium for Chinese loans.

Heretofore the various powers financed China within their spheres of influence, with the result that on segments of trunk line railroad construction by Great Britain, France, and Germany different methods, locomotives, and rolling stock were used.

In the future the railroads will be built as units, with the four powers merely handling the finances separately and constructing the railroads in combination.

Chinese currency reform will be taken up under a consortium, and mining properties and other natural resources will be developed. In the event of new railroads being built in Shantung, Japan must share the financing with the other powers.

American financial experts point out that the United States Government is not guaranteeing the Chinese loans, but is merely sanctioning them.

PARIS, May 12, (Associated Press.)—Thirty American banking institutions will form the group to represent the United States in the new consortium organized today by American, French, British, and Japanese bankers for the financing of Chinese loans. The American banks will include four which took part in former joint financial operations in China, with the enlargement taking in most of those banking houses which have special interests in Chinese affairs.

The general purpose of the movement is to give assistance to China in the development of her resources along some unified plan, instead of having railway and other development proceed according to spheres of influence. The American Government took the initiative in the movement last August in a note to the three other powers setting forth the principles on which it was proposed to establish the consortium. Pourparlers have since been in progress, and the organization now has been realized.

The part that the Governments will play, it is said, will be in pointing out methods by which financial assistance may be given to the development of China, and the Governments will exercise the right to inspect the accounts of the operations of the consortium. The funds will be advanced to the Chinese Government and its provincial branches, but the Chinese authorities will intrust the work of construction to engineers and officials of the banking group.

Knox Calls It a Vindication.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13. — The announcement in Paris tonight that the United States has sanctioned formation of an international four-power consortium for combining the interests of American, British, French, and Japanese groups in the financing of Chinese loans is regarded by Republican leaders here as a vindication of the so-called "dollar diplomacy" policy which was initiated by Senator Philander C. Knox when he was Secretary of State in the Taft Cabinet, but which was promptly repudiated by the Wilson Administration during the incumbency of Secretary Bryan in 1913.

When the earlier reports from Paris were brought to the attention of Senator Knox today he said:

"I do not care to discuss the matter further than to state it appears to be the same plan that we proposed during the Taft Administration, but which was abandoned by the Democrats when they came into power. It is a good policy now, as it was then."

It was emphasized in the announcement from Paris tonight that, although no guarantees were given by the United States to the investments to be made by the American group of bankers, yet as the group would make investments only with the approval of the Government, the moral support of the Washington Administration would be employed. If the American Government were to guarantee the loans to be made to China this would be going further than was proposed when the previous attempt was made to interest American financiers in the matter. Secretary Knox, when the Taft Administration was in power, did not propose to guarantee the loans, but offered as an inducement to American capital to make the loans the promise of all diplomatic agencies to protect the interests of the bankers. Under the Knox plan the bankers were to assume all responsibility. The American group at that time consisted of a comparatively small number of banks, but that was all the State Department could get into the project then. But Secretary Knox's plan was open to all American bankers, and no one was barred from participation.

The repudiation of the so-called "dollar diplomacy" during the early days of the Wilson Administration was one of the most spectacular acts of Bryan as Secretary of State. President Wilson at that time rejected the six-power plan on the ground that it would be an invasion of the sovereignty of China. The old consortium consisted of the United States, Germany, Belgium, Great Britain, France, and Russia. The six-power group was reduced to five by the withdrawal of the United States. Germany was eliminated when she declared war, and Belgium soon found herself unable to remain in the group. Russia collapsed, and this left only England and France remaining of the original group.

Senator Knox today declined to indulge in any criticism of the change of policy of the administration, but voiced his gratification that the United States Government had come to appreciate the worth of his plan. Mr. Knox has always been of the opinion that the trade possibilities which would be opened by the development of China warranted the United States in lending its financial assistance to that end.

State Department officials today insisted that the action of the representatives of the American Government at Paris represented no change of attitude on the part of the United States from what it had been during the past year. Attention was called to the fact that on July 29, 1918, the Secretary of State had indicated the attitude of the American Government when announcement was made that the Administration had called a number of American bankers to Washington and asked them to interest themselves in a plan to help China with loans to enable her "so to equip herself as to be of more specific assistance in the war against the Central Powers." This announcement continued:

"It is hoped that the American group will be associated with bankers of Great Britain, Japan, and France. Negotiations are now in progress between the Government of the United States and those Governments, which it is hoped will result in their co-operation and in the participation by the bankers of those countries in equal parts in any loan which may be made."

SEES COSTA RICA LOYAL.

Dr. Lara Denies Natives Planned Invasion from Nicaragua.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Dr. Carlos Lara, confidential agent of the Costa Rican Government in the United States, tonight gave out a statement in which he said his Government had been informed that an invasion of Costa Rica had been openly organized in Nicaragua in the last few days with the consent and support of the Nicaraguan Government.

He denied that the force of invasion was composed of Costa Rican exiles, saying that, on the contrary, there were but twenty Costa Ricans, and that the rest of the force consisted of from 600 to 800 Nicaraguans.

President Tinoco, he added, had not "exiled" any one from Costa Rica, but had simply expelled from its territory "two or three pernicious foreigners." Of fifty Costa Ricans who voluntarily went to Nicaraugua thrity had returned he said, and the country was at peace.

"The American colony in Costa Rica is unanimously in favor of the Government of President Tinoco," Dr. Lara said. "It does not matter that this Government is not recognized here, though twenty-three nations have recognized it. It is excluded, to the astonishment of the world, from the League of Nations.

"In the great war the first friend that the people of the United States found on this continent was the people of Costa Rica and the Government of Tinoco. The war was declared by the United States on April 6, and the very next day, April 7, my Government broke with Germany."

AUTO UPSET KILLS AVIATOR.

Two Young Women Companions of Newton Lieutenant Are Injured.

NEWTON, N. J., May 13.—While running his automobile at an estimated speed of forty miles an hour along the Sparta Road, five miles east of this town at 8 o'clock last night, Leonard B. Sherman, 21 years old, recently discharged as a Lieutenant of the Aviation Service, was thrown out and killed, when the right wheel of the machine came off. Miss Mary Earls suffered fractures of the right leg and right arm and Miss Viola Boss was slightly bruised.

Seymour Bellis, a County Road Supervisor, who saw the accident, said the machine skidded forty feet and then rolled over three times, pinning Sherman under the car. Miss Earls was thrown to an embankment. Miss Boss jumped, thereby escaping serious injury. Sherman, who was still in his uniform, was gassed while in France, and at that time was reported to his parents as having died.

CONFER ON NAVAL BILL.

Appropriations Wanted While Composite Ship Plan Waits.

WASHINGTON, May 13. — Arrangements to obtain the passage of the naval appropriation bill, which failed at the last session of Congress, before July 1 were discussed today by Acting Secretary Roosevelt with Senator Poindexter of Washington, prospective Chairman of the Senate Naval Committee. They agreed to urge the House Naval Committee to take up the bill in the form in which it was reported to the Senate last March, including the Senate amendments.

Senator Poindexter indicated that large questions of general naval policy might be left out of the bill in order not to delay essential appropriation legislation. He said that the new three-year building program, the size of the permanent enlisted personnel, and other questions of policy probably could not be determined definitely by July 1, when the appropriations would be urgently needed.

The Navy Department, it is learned, has not yet formulated the final building program which it will urge. Secretary Daniels and his three chief technical aids, Rear Admirals Taylor, Griffin, and Earle, have been studying the question during the European trip from which they will return next Saturday. The final judgment of the department as to the advisability of abandoning battleship and battle cruiser construction in favor of composite craft having both high speed and heavy offensive and defensive equipment, officials explain, cannot be formed until the opinions of the experts have been considered.

The composite ship idea is as radical a proposal, in the opinion of many naval officers, as was the change to dreadnaughts from the old-time battleships with mixed batteries. It is favored by Admiral Mayo, commander of the United States fleet; Rear Admiral Sims, President of the Naval War College, and by many other high officers who saw service overseas during the war. The Navy General Board, the official source of recommendations as to the military characteristics of new ships within the department, is opposed to the project.

WOMAN SHOT THREE TIMES.

Roomer in 10th Street House Seriously Wounded by Man, Who Fled.

Mrs. Lillian Egan, 20 years old, living in a furnished room at 248 East Tenth Street, was shot three times early last night while talking with friends in the basement of the house at that address. The bullets all took effect, one in the mouth, one in the side of the head, and the other in the shoulder. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital in a critical condition.

Mrs. Egan, who was known at the rooming house as Mamie Woolshiser, was talking with Mr. and Mrs. John Fink, occupants of the house, when a boy came in and told her a man in front of the house wanted her to come out and see him. She refused to go out, and the man entered the house. After a brief conversation he drew a revolver and fired three times. He then escaped. Mrs. Egan, according to the police, has been separated from her husband about three weeks and assumed her maiden name, Woolshiser, to hide her whereabouts.

Norwegian Paper Mills Close.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, May 12.—Norwegian paper mills have stopped operation either wholly or in part because of the new restrictions on paper imports into England. Very few of the mills have orders in hand. It is reported that the British restrictions will be withdrawn in six or eight months, but, it is believed, the Norwegian paper industry will have closed down long before that time.

TREDWELL REPORTS RED RULE SHAKY

American Consul Who Was Prisoner of Bolsheviki Says That People Are Discontented.

TERRORISM IS RESENTED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Roger Culver Tredwell, former American Consul Petrograd, who has just come out of Bolshevist Russia, after having been a prisoner of the Bolsheviki for many months, has forwarded to the State Department from Stockholm a statement of his observations, which strengthens the belief of officials here that the days of the Lenin-Trotsky régime are numbered.

A summary of Mr. Tredwell's report, as given out by Acting Secretary of State Polk this afternoon, credits the Consul with the statement that he found general dissatisfaction with existing conditions and a growing feeling against the terroristic methods applied by the Bolsheviki to those who disagree with or who oppose them. He found that the more intelligent workmen in Bolshevist territory had come to a realization that the promised world-wide revolution had collapsed and that the Bolshevist leaders were unable to carry out the policy they had proclaimed.

The summary of Consul Tredwell's statement as given out today at the State Department was as follows:

"In his asserted statement Consul Tredwell says that he wishes to give without prejudice the results of observations made in the course of almost two years spent in Russia, including more than half that time in Turkestan, and that his ten years of Consular career will attest the sincerity of his impartial views and his actual sympathy for Russians as a people.

"Bolshevism, according to Consul Tredwell, has proven to be the replacing of the bureaucracy of the Czar by the dictatorship of new and more ignorant oppressors of the Russian people. The Bolshevist platform tersely stated is:

"'Our country, the whole world; our countrymen, the proletariat; our aim, to demolish nationalities, religions and frontiers; our one enemy, the bourgeoisie, with whom we shall never make peace regardless of the sufferings entailed or the methods necessary to secure results.'

Tactics of the Bolsheviki.

"The majority of Russian people are indifferent to the form of Government, and with their political inexperience and the terrorism created by the Red Army any expression of democratic principles has been stifled. The Bolsheviki took hold of the machinery of the Government by obscuring their methods with idealistic phrases, by playing on the sentiment of the Russian people in their suddenly emancipated and naturally bewildered state. The Bolsheviki drew their greatest support from the strong hatred which developed in 1917 against the reactionary policies of the then governing autocracy.

"The movement of the Bolsheviki, employing always altruistic phrases and playing not upon the intelligence of the great mass of Russian people but upon their human nature, is more of an outburst against oppression than an expression of political feeling.

"The Russian people had been led on to believe that they would become immediately prosperous in a revolution that would assume widespread proportions, but now that this illusion has been dissipated the people are becoming increasingly discontented with the despotism substituted for the promised freedom.

"In the course of his travels from Tashkent, Turkestan, to Petrograd, Consul Tredwell, in peasant clothes and accompanied by a Russian interpreter, mingled constantly with the peasantry, and obtained representative points of view. He found, he said, not only general dissatisfaction with the existing conditions, but a growing feeling against the terroristic methods adopted by the Bolsheviki against those who disagree with them or who are accused of opposing them.

"Mr. Tredwell said that the Bolshevist army, as a rule lacking discipline, is feared and hated by the railway workers, who object to the policy of the present régime and to the augmented number of minor officials with unnecessary functions.

"The discontent was found particularly among the lower classes, who, he said, find working conditions worse than before. Because of the valueless paper currency the peasants have no incentive to produce crops beyond what is necessary for their own immediate needs, and are willing only to exchange crops for manufactured articles.

"Their Slavic passiveness to existing conditions, their nonresisting spirit, weakened by malnutrition and deprivations generally, and the idea that they can get the best results for themselves by joining with the forces in control, along with the general hopelessness and despair, have contributed mainly to the present situation in Russia.

Give In to Strikers at Once.

"Consul Tredwell stated that while in Moscow, and it was there that the greatest strength of the Bolshevist régime was evident, several thousand workmen in one of the largest factories struck against obeying the Bolshevist mobilization order, and they were immediately granted exemption from the mobilization. The Bolshevist authority concentrated at Moscow gradually decreases and greater independence of the central authorities is evident the further the districts are from the centre of the government. Workmen object to payment of 3,000 to 5,000 rubles a month to engineers and experts. Oppressive decrees of the Bolshevist Government have been used to discriminate against or destroy the more intelligent element of the Russian people.

"Peasants in the country districts frequently break out in revolt against the Bolsheviki, with severe reprisals against many towns and villages as a result. The newspapers in the Bolshevist territory only sparingly refer to these revolts.

"Significant in the present situation, Mr. Tredwell says, is the development of a communistic party organized by the few leaders of the international revolutionary movement who are sincere. In the country-wide campaign this communistic party is making not only Bolshevik, a name which now carries stigma, even incomprehensible, but members of other parties are brought under the common banner. This campaign is marked by a purported greater conciliation toward the bourgeoisie and middle class peasants, but this conciliatory attitude on paper is hard to carry out because of difficulty in restraining the passions of the uneducated.

"According to Mr. Tredwell, the more intelligent workmen realize the baleful results of the Bolshevist policies and are discontented with the terrorism and understand the national economic ruin in its wake. They now realize that the promised world-wide revolution has collapsed, that the Bolshevist leaders have proven unable to carry out the policy they proclaimed. The inertia of the better classes, idle disposition of the people and the enforced loss of individuality and lack of moral stamina constitute, he says, the greatest handicap in the way of aiding the Russians."

RED GUNBOAT SUNK BY ALLIES ON DVINA

Counterfire Silences Foe's Guns on Northern Front When They Become Too Active.

ARCHANGEL, May 12, (Associated Press.)—One Bolshevist gunboat is reported to have been sunk on the Dvina River Sunday during an engagement between the British river flotilla and land batteries and the flotilla enemy fleet. The allied, aided by airplanes, also conducted a brisk bombardment along the Vaga River.

LONDON, May 13, (Via Montreal.)—The Bolshevist artillery is active on the front in Northern Russia, but is being silenced by the allied counter-fire when it becomes too active, a dispatch to the British War Office from Archangel says.

The Dvina River is free of ice and river transport is in full swing. The White Sea is not yet clear of ice, but is navigable without difficulty at the mouth.

BOLSHEVIKI MOCK RELIGION.

Seek to Destroy Faith of the Masses by Bringing It Into Contempt.

LONDON, May 5, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—In the Caucasus, as elsewhere in Russia, the Bolsheviki are seeking to destroy religion by bringing it into contempt. According to a message from Reuter's correspondent at Ekaterinodar, they conducted in a church, with all ceremonial, a mock marriage between an aged priest and a mare. The choir was forced, under threats of death, to sing the psalms and canticles of the liturgy.

Among the official publications of the Moscow Soviet is a parody in verse of the Church funeral service, supposed to be performed over the body of a dog. The Moscow Soviet has also issued a pamphlet depicting the supposed orgies of priests. These productions are being sent out in hundreds of thousands as Bolshevist propaganda.

In another church in the North Caucasus a bayonet was thrust through an ikon in such a way as to bore a hole in the mouth of Christ, and a cigarette was put in the hole. Below were scribbled some odious words.

A Moscow dispatch says that Bolshevist leaders, in order to shake the faith of the masses, have caused the exhumation of the bones of Saint Tikhon and Saint Mitrofan.

There is said to be a growing movement among the religious elements in Russia to bring about a protest of all Churches of the world against the Bolshevist violations of religion. The Metropolitan of Odessa may go abroad soon on behalf of the project.

EXTOLS SAVINGS STAMPS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—With the close of the fifth war loan, the last of the great popular subscription issues of Government securities, attention has been directed by Secretary Glass to the war savings stamps as an important part of the scheme of Government finance. He said their possibilities were shown by the fact that $1,000,000,000 worth were absorbed last year, in addition to the enormous Liberty bond subscriptions.

With no further Liberty bond issues absorbing their savings, it was pointed out that the small investors in general would find war savings stamps, which earn 4 per cent. interest, compounded quarterly, an excellent vehicle for increasing their capital and earning power. Secretary Glass said:

"Many persons have not taken the War Savings Stamps seriously as an investment, but the fact that they may be bought in as large a quantity as $1,000 face value during 1919 at such favorable interest return makes them most desirable for the average man or family.

"Definite plans for the continuance of the issue, in coming years, of small Government securities are being worked out. While no definite decision has been reached, it is extremely probable that War Savings Stamps or some variation of them in shape or name will be a permanent institution.

"Although War Savings Stamps sales this year do not nearly approach the high marks made under stimulation of war needs last year, their absorption by the public thus far has been satisfactory under existing circumstances.

"It is customary for savings in all channels to shrink during the early months of the year, and it is expected that War Savings Stamps sales, along with postal savings and savings bank deposits, will grow steadily throughout the year.

"Co-operation is sought earnestly, especially from bankers and merchants, in the matter of keeping thrift and War Savings Stamps on sale, so that no one so inclined may fail to have opportunity to invest his money wisely."

BUENOS AIRES NOT CLOSED

Says Argentine Minister—It Is Handling 45,000 Tons Daily.

The Argentine Consul-General in New York has received a cablegram from the Argentine Minister of Foreign Relations which says:

"Please deny emphatically the report that the Port of Buenos Aires is closed. It has been carrying on all the operations of receiving and dispatching ships for more than a month. In that time there have been discharged more than 600,000 tons, and cargo boats of similar tonnage have departed for their ports of destination. There are at the present moment 170 ships in this port. They are discharging daily about 15,000 tons and loading 30,000 tons. The work goes on day and night and employs 3,000 men. The causes for the strike have disappeared under the adjustments of the Government."

SEES LEAGUE ABOVE PARTY.

Taft Says Covenant Is Vital to the World's Welfare.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 13.—The person who opposes the League of Nations because he dislikes President Wilson is actuated by a "small potato motive that is not worthy of the dignity of the pact," William Howard Taft declared here tonight in an address.

"I am a Republican, believe that party government is the best agency for administering a Republican form of government, but when such issues as the League of Nations are up for consideration we should go outside party limitations," said Mr. Taft. "Civilization needs some such measure as the League to prevent wars, and the issue is too vital to the world's welfare and to our own to be made a party measure.

"Men who object to the clause eliminating armaments, and I do not attack their motives, assert that under such an arrangement we would be naked to the attacks of ruthless foes," he continued. "But I want to assure you the other nations would be naked also."

RELEASED BY REDS, DOUGHBOYS DANCE

ALL PAMPERED BY CAPTORS

But "Never Fell Much for This Bolshevist Stuff," Prize Yank Prisoner Says.

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune.

MOSCOW, April 19, (via Helsingfors and Paris, May 13.)—Happy American prisoners from Archangel, with a captured Y. M. C. A. man, climbed aboard the train for Petrograd and America at 1:30 this afternoon. They were headed for home.

Captured at different times in the fighting in North Russia, the freedom of the city had been given to them, and they were permitted to go anywhere they wanted at any time. They had been fed the regulation rations of the Red Guards, which is more real food than any other ordinary folks get in Soviet Russia. They had been petted, pampered, propagandized, lectured, taken to dances, plays, and feeds. Now to make the thing absolutely unbelievable they are going home without any string whatsoever tied to their release.

A Y. M. C. A. man deserves the credit. A few days ago Louis Philip Penningroth, who hails from Tipton, Iowa, and has been doing war prisoner relief work in Central Europe for three years, dropped into Soviet Russia from the blue sky and quite frankly suggested to Tchitcherin, Commissary of Foreign Affairs, there could be no harm in letting him have six American prisoners of war. And Tchitcherin, who is a mild, gentle man, despite the world's opinion, quite unconditionally told him all right. If it was all he wanted he could have them. So a little while ago the Petrograd train took six, with Penningroth, on the first leg of the journey down the road to happiness.

This morning I went out to the barracks where the men were quartered. Six Americans were swapping yarns with British Tommies with an admiring row of French poilus as audience when Penningroth and I came into the big room. It was a motley crowd. All were attired in strange combinations of Russian, American, French, and British military garb, but we did not have any trouble in picking out the Americans. There was a certain little tilt of confidence about them; then, too, each had held to something of his old uniform—regimental button, shirt, overseas cap, or something from home.

In the centre was Arnold, an army Y. M. C. A. man from Polk, Neb., who was captured when the Bolsheviki took the Village of Bolchezerba in North Russia on March 17. We talked with the boys a while, then Penningroth suddenly said:

"Home, home! Say, can a duck swim?" Bill Schuelke from up in Manistee, Mich., who was captured along with Arnold asked in reply.

"Well, you might as well start getting ready. You are going with me at 1:30 this afternoon," Penningroth continued.

There was silence for about three seconds, then George Albers from Muskegon, who was captured way back in November and for months was the solitary Bolshevist Yank prize, straightened up and said solemnly:

"Say, whatcha kidding us this way for? This going home ain't no joke to us."

Penningroth took half a minute to prove it was not a joke to anybody, but the plain truth. Then, when it finally sifted through, there were yells, dancing, prancing, and tearing the roof down.

"How about us Tommies?" one slender young Scotch boy asked.

Penningroth explained he could, in addition to the Americans, only take six Britishers with him, but maybe the others would be going before long. This cheered up the forty Tommies, but for a while the eleven poilus couldn't make anything of it. Then one of the Tommies who had served in France got across the idea in very limping trench French, with a word or two of Russian thrown in, the Americans were going home. The French joined in the mad dance around the big room at this point while one bearded fellow dug up his only box of cigarettes and tried to pass them around.

Anton Vanis of Chicago, dragged in a Red Guard soldier pal about this time and in wonderful Russian planted in his mind the glorious things. In a minute the Red soldier came back with half a dozen others, and at one time congratulations were being given in four languages.

Everybody was happy, even those that had been there longest and were still going to stay on. Then to make it even more dramatic, a fresh batch of three new American prisoners with Bryant Ryall, the second captured Y. M. C. A. Secretary, dropped in fresh from Archangel. It was too late to arrange for their release, but they did not mind. Their pals were going to get home anyway.

George Albers, the prize prisoner, has been a Bolshevist guest for five months.

"The Russians," he said, "gave us 30 cents a day for pocket money and when we worked regular we got $2.50. And we have been allowed to go anywhere around the city any old time we wanted to. They used to take us to a lot of lectures, but I guess they got kinda tired of doing that. We never fell much for this Bolshevist stuff. What we were worrying about was going home. And oh, boy, watch us go now."

SOCIALISTS CRITICISE LEAGUE AND TREATY

Contend Victors Are Sharing the Spoils Without Thought of the Consequences.

PARIS, May 12.—The League of Nations covenant was described as a league of governments and executives rather than of peoples and parliaments in a statement issued by International Socialists tonight criticising the peace terms and the covenant. It is declared that the covenant seems to be the instrument of a victorious coalition dominated by five great powers rather than an organ of international justice in which all nations ought to find a place.

Failure to include Germany and Russia in the League of Nations, the statement asserts, must be righted speedily if the league is to be made effective for preventing war. The limitation of German armaments without application of restrictions to other nations also is criticised, and the attention of the labor world is called to the danger resulting from the establishment of the boundaries of Poland, which, it is held, does violence to the rights of people to choose their political allegiance, and by separating German States into two separate parts. These things are said to create a danger which will remain a source of trouble and ill will.

"The callous handing over of Shantung with its resources and 40,000,000 to 50,000,000 Chinese to Japanese economic control cannot be passed over in silence," the statement says.

Regarding the Sarrre Valley, the statement recognizes the justice of Germany being obliged to furnish France and Belgium with coal and compensation for the destruction of mines, but utters a suspicion that the arrangements for the administration of the district conceal aims for dismemberment.

The disposal of the German colonies is regarded by the Socialists as "imperialism satisfying itself with the spoils of war." The statement concludes:

"This peace is not our peace. The nations are still menaced by the policy of the victors in sharing the spoils without thought of the inevitable consequences."

The statement is signed by the following Socialists, who were appointed by the Berne Labor Socialist Conference to make a study of the covenant and the treaty: Hjalmar Branting, Sweden; Camille Huysmans, Belgium; Arthur Henderson, J. Ramsay Macdonald, and G. H. Stuart Bunning of Great Britain, and Pierre Renaudel and Jean Longuet of France.

WARNS OF DRUG INCREASE.

Justice Collins Addresses Opening Session of Charities Conference.

The tenth annual New York City Conference of Charities and Correction opened a three days' session yesterday in the United Charities Building, 105 East Twenty-second Street for the purpose of discussing questions relating to public health, war labor problems, and public charities. The sessions will continue until tomorrow.

Justice Franklin Chase Hoyt, President of the conference, presided at the meeting. Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Commissioner of Health, spoke on public health problems; Justice Cornelius F. Collins of the Court of Special Sessions, on "After the Saloon, What?" and Dr. Pearce Bailey, President of the New York State Commission for the Feeble-Minded, on "The Problem of the Feeble-Minded in New York." A general discussion followed each of the addresses.

In his address on the public health problems in New York, Commissioner Copeland emphasized the necessity of a satisfactory milk supply at a price as low as possible in order to overcome the large percentage of malnutrition existing among school children and the children of the tenements in the city. He also emphasized the necessity of providing some means of satisfactorily taking care of the drug evil.

Justice Collins said that an increase of indulgence in habit forming drugs is almost certain to follow after prohibition. He added that legislation should be such as to permit medical judgment in prescribing alcohol.

TO EMPLOY 20,000 IN YEAR.

Guider Says $26,000,000 Is to be Spent for Public Improvements.

At a meeting of the State Reconstruction Commission at the Hotel Bossert last night, in Brooklyn, Borough officials discussed what public improvements were contemplated in the next five years, how much money was to be spent and how many men were to be employed.

Joseph E. Guider, Commissioner of Public Works, said that within three years his department would expend $26,000,000 in public improvements. He said that 20,000 men would be employed within the next year. Among the public improvements he mentioned was a new municipal building for Brooklyn and a boardwalk for Coney Island. Joseph J. Brown, Superintendent of Sewers, said that his department expected to expend $1,379,000 next year and would employ 2,500 people.

Philip P. Farley, a consulting engineer, declared there was a great need for more dwellings in Brooklyn. He said that within the last four months only seventy applications had been filed for building apartment houses. These would accommodate 1,500 families, or 7,500 persons, he declared. Accommodations for at least 100,000 were needed, he says, but it would be five years before the condition would be remedied.

Squeaky Baby-Carriages

Most baby-carriages are not oiled and they squeak or shriek their protest to the unheeding ears of their feminine proponents.

Women do not understand mechanics or explanations mechanical, nor do they pay attention to so masculine a line of reasoning.

How then can you induce women to oil the axles of a baby-carriage?

Follow the line of least resistance. Don't argue; be convincing.

Tell women that "they" have silent-running baby-carriages this season; that a protesting squeak indicates a lack of good form; that to be in style vehicular silence is golden. Discover the "Open-Sesame" into the mind of woman and your appropriation for advertising is multiplied.

QUALITY FIRST

Camouflaged foods may deceive the eye and even the palate, but they cannot fool the stomach.

The digestive organs soon strip such foods of their camouflage and judge them for what they are.

And the sentence is usually a few uncomfortable hours for those who have been deceived.

At CHILDS there is no masquerading of food in deceptive sauces—it is not necessary.

Pure food, properly cooked, stands on its own merits; it is the only kind to be found at CHILDS.

Fresh rhubarb, a harbinger of Spring that everybody welcomes, is now on the menu. Appetizing at breakfast — a fitting finish to luncheon or supper.

The War Appeal of Our Children

The advanced cost of food supplies and help, with other extraordinary demands, have already burdened the Society beyond its resources.

It faces the necessity to combat still more difficult conditions.

Experience in Europe has proved that children have been among the worst war sufferers, and the whole world has answered the appeal to help them.

Membership in the Society is invited to aid its work of rescuing and protecting children from neglect, cruelty, and the consequences of war—the work of conserving to the nation its future citizens.

MAP OUT AIR ROUTES FOR U. S. AND CANADA

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 13.—Development through the agency of the airplane of vast regions now commercially unproductive because of the lack of railways was predicted by speakers at to-night's session of the second Pan-American Aeronautic Congress.

The subject under discussion was "The Pan-American Aerial Transport and Airways Over Land and Sea." The convention took up the subject in its application to the United States and Canada and adopted regulations designed to safeguard and popularize air traffic. As defined in these regulations, the term "airway" is used in speaking of transcontinental and coastal air lines, and connecting links between are designated "air routes." An "airway" is defined as a belt eighty miles wide, and all communities within the belt are considered as "on the airway." An "air route" is forty miles wide.

On a map which has just been completed for the convention there are outlined eight American airways, as follows:

The Wilson Airway, named after President Wilson, extending from New York City to San Francisco; the Wright Brothers Airway, named after Orville and Wilbur Wright, from Washington to San Diego, Cal.; the Langley Airway, named after Professor Samuel Pierrepont Langley, from Philadelphia to Santa Barbara, Cal.; the Chanute and Bell Airway, named after Octave Chanute and Alexander Graham Bell, from Boston to Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Ore.; the Rodgers Airway, after Galbraith Perry Rodgers, the first transcontinental flier, from Newport News, Va., to Los Angeles, Cal.; the Atlantic Airway, from Bangor, Me., to Key West, Fla.; the Gulf Airway, from Key West to the mouth of the Rio Grande, and the Pacific Airway, from San Diego to Puget Sound.

Two Canadian airways and five Canadian air routes are planned. The "all red" airway will extend from St. John's, getaway of the transatlantic air route, to Vancouver, and the "sunset airway" from St. John's, N. F., to Prince Rupert on the Pacific. The air routes are: From Winnipeg to Fort Nelson, on Hudson Sound; Hudson Bay air route, from Saskatoon to Fort Nelson; Peace River air route, from Edmonton to Great Slave and Great Bear Lakes, thence to Dawson City and Alaska; Dawson air route, from Victoria and Vancouver to Prince Rupert and Dawson, and the Detroit-Toronto-Montreal air route.

Because of the interest in the proposed flight of an English dirigible from the British Isles to the airport here, convention officials are considering a proposal to open a booking office for the air liner. A flat rate of $100 for a short cruise over the ocean in the first dirigible to bridge the Atlantic is under discussion. The proposal is to be taken up by cable with the English Government.

Incorporation papers of the Aeroplane Transportation Company, with offices at 763 Broad Street, Newark, were filed in that city yesterday. The firm is capitalized at $50,000. The incorporators are: Aaron J. Schindel of 21 Myrtle Avenue; Ervin Ballough, 231 Clifton Avenue, and John Faness, 31 Clinton Street. Ballough was formerly an instructor of Canadian Army fliers, with the grade of Lieutenant.

An airplane taxi service between Newark and the seashore will be established, according to Schindel. One plane has been purchased in Canada, it is announced, and the company plans "to transport for hire passengers and merchandise through, from and between various cities, towns, villages and communities in the United States and Canada by means of airplanes and hydroaeroplanes."

FLY TO ATLANTIC CITY.

Woman First Passenger on What May Be Regular Service.

A regular aerial passenger service between New York and Atlantic City is among the possibilities for the Summer, Samuel H. MacFarlane, assistant manager of the McAlpin Hotel, announced last night. The first trip to Atlantic City was made yesterday afternoon, with Miss Hazel Allen, hostess of the McAlpin Hotel, as the passenger. The journey was made in a Canadian Curtiss 100 horse power two-seater, with Aviator "Bob" Shanks as pilot, and the distance was covered in eighty-five minutes. A favorable wind aided in making the trip.

The start was made from Belmont Field. The flight was made under the auspices of the Traymore Hotel of Atlantic City, and there was a large crowd in front of the hotel to watch the airplane land on the beach.

BRITISHERS ANNOUNCE DELAY.

Two More Flying Teams Reach St. John's.

ST. JOHN'S N. F., May 13.—Harry Hawker and Captain Frederick P. Raynham, the British aviators who have been waiting here over a month to make a transatlantic flight, announced that weather indications were such that they probably would not be able to make their start before the end of the week.

Two aviation parties contemplating a transatlantic flight in Bolton and Paul and Vickers-Vimy planes, both of British make, arrived here today. While Hawker and Raynham studied weather charts, Captain U. S. Bennet began an inspection of a possible site for the Bolton and Paul three-seater, while Captain A. A. Alicott and A. W. Brown conducted negotiations for the housing of their Vimy machine.

Owing to the scarcity of favorable hangar locations, it was thought probable that the Britishers, whose planes were expected to reach here in time for a flight in June, would use the ground to be vacated by Hawker and Raynham.

MOORINGS SET AT AZORES.

Buoys Planted for Seaplanes at Ponta Delgada.

PONTA DELGADA, Azores, May 13, (Associated Press.)—Everything is in readiness here for the transatlantic flight. Twenty-five destroyers have been stationed between the Azores and Newfoundland to guide the aviators.

Buoys to which the seaplanes will be moored after their arrival were planted today. Good weather is predicted for Wednesday.

NC-4 WAITS ON WEATHER.

Special to The New York Times.

CHATHAM, Mass., May 13.—The NC-4, still at the Chatham Naval Air Station, is all ready to start, and is only waiting for good weather. Lieutenant Commander Read says he may start tomorrow.

FRENCH AIR CASUALTIES.

Inside and Outside the War Zone They Were 7,555.

PARIS, May 12.—The casualties in the French air service in the war zone during the war were 6,328, it was officially announced today. The casualties were divided as follows:

Killed, 1,945; wounded, 2,922; missing, 1,461. Of the missing, it is stated, 700 must be considered to have lost their lives.

Outside the war zone the casualties totaled 1,227, bringing the aggregate for the whole service to 7,555.

SHOTS BRING DOWN A NAVY BALLOON

ANOTHER ALSO FIRED ON

Five Other Balloons Escaped—No One Injured in the Two Gas Bags Hit by Bullets.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Two of the seven balloons which yesterday completed a balloon race from Akron, Ohio, to the Atlantic Coast, under the auspices of the Navy Department, and all piloted by naval balloonists, were fired upon with rifles in Pennsylvania yesterday morning, and one was compelled to descend, according to an oral report made to the department today by Lieutenant H. W. Hoyt, U. S. N., who piloted one of the balloons.

Lieutenant Hoyt reported that his balloon was fired at three times with a rifle yesterday morning near Gettysburg, Penn., but that his balloon was not hit. He also reported that the balloon piloted by Lieutenant Richard Howorth of the United States Naval Reserve Forces was actually shot down by rifle fire near Dever, Penn. He said that Lieutenant Howorth's balloon was fired at seventeen times by some unknown person or persons, and that four of the shots took effect in the balloon, forcing a descent. All the rest of the balloons continued their voyages to points in Maryland, New Jersey, and Delaware. The balloon shot down made its descent in Pennsylvania.

The balloons left Akron, Ohio, at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon, all flying the American colors and each covered an approximate distance of 350 miles, except the one that made its forced descent in Pennsylvania.

It is believed the balloon entered by the ex-navy men of Akron won the race. This was piloted by Ensign P. D. Collins of the U. S. N. R. Force, and landed thirty-seven miles from Ocean City, Md. The winning of the race is between this balloon and one entered by the men of the office of the Superintendent of Construction of the Naval Air Station at Akron, piloted by Lieutenant E. Rodegarts of the United States Naval Reserve Force, which landed three miles west of Tuckahoe, N. J., and about twenty-four miles southwest of Atlantic City, N. J.

PARIS LIMITS AIRMEN.

Official Order Prohibits Acrobatic Feats Over Towns.

PARIS, May 13.—Pilots of airplanes are forbidden by an official order issued Monday to fly over towns or crowds of people except at such a height which permits them to plane down to a landing field in case their motors stop. Acrobatic feats over towns are prohibited entirely. Military pilots are warned against flying over Paris, except under orders, on pain of dismissal from the service.

Numerous complaints have been made against airmen flying over race tracks at low altitudes. This led to the issuance of the order.

Bombing Plane to Attract Recruits.

With the purpose of obtaining 15,000 enlisted men for the Air Service of the United States Army, a De Haviland plane of 300 horsepower and carrying a Liberty motor, which was used by the day bombing squadrons of the American Air Service in France, is being exhibited daily in Battery Park. According to the recruiting officer, the Air Service offers to all men a chance to learn to fly and to acquire an intimate and thorough knowledge of planes, engines, electricity, foundry and machine shop work at Government expense and at full pay. All men interested and who are between the ages of 18 and 40, should apply to First Lieut. George L. Usher, A. S. A., Recruiting Officer, Office of the Department Air Service Officer, Room 902, 104 Broad Street, New York city.

NAVY SEAPLANES MAY START TODAY

turn and the restationing of the destroyers, occupying a number of days in execution, but this chance is too remote to cause any concern. It was made clear today that the original determination to have as nearly a simultaneous crossing as possible would be adhered to and that no element of racing would be permitted between the seaplanes.

The seaplanes will proceed in regular division formation, carrying their regular running lights, the individual planes keeping about two miles apart in the day time and opening out at night, the flagship slightly in advance; but theoretically, at least, all which start will land practically together and none can claim getting there first, unless the craft are widely separated and such an honor is justly earned. Every detail of the start is minutely worked out and every man knows exactly what to do and when.

There was some discussion among naval aviation and the Weather Bureau authorities this morning of the effect of the full moon which occurs here about 8 o'clock, local time, tomorrow night, but since if the start is made tomorrow afternoon, the finish, with reasonably good luck, comes at the Azores in broad daylight, it is not believed that a slight diminution from the fullness at the time the other end of this leg is reached is worthy of consideration. Likewise, while the weather men are stressing the gradual subsidence of heavy seas, the aviators are still calmly convinced that the first landing will come at the designated port, and are entirely unworried over the possibility of a forced descent in mid-ocean.

The gladdest news which has reached the ears of both the seaplanes' crews was the decision reached today that in all probability it would not be necessary to drop the sixth man from each boat. This is due to a rechecking of fuel consumption thus far and the conclusion therefrom, which even yet is not quite definite or unchangeable, that because of a slightly lower than the expected consumption, these two men's weight may safely be included in the load. At any rate, unless there are new deductions from further study, it is probable that an effort will be made to take two reserve engineers, Rhodes in the NC-3 and Christensen in the NC-1. If either or both seaplanes, with these two aboard in addition to the extra fuel margin, cannot rise or does not travel perfectly, the craft thus hampered will drop the reserve engineer.

Working Out the Problems.

It is recognized by the officers here generally that the take off from here with an extra load is going to be a ticklish business and many hours of thought are being devoted to making it the most advantageous possible, with every factor carefully considered. Aside from a natural desire to include the men who have worked long and hard with the others in bringing the enterprise to success thus far, their presence at the Azores is much desired, as they can aid in checking the instruments in returning and in adjusting and attending to many details requiring attention at the end of each leg. The pilots are practically eliminated from aiding in such work if the start is made the day after arrival, as they, above all others, must get their night's sleep, as must Lieut. Commander Byrd, who was in charge of the navigation of the entire expedition from its preparation to the time he was brought here in Towers's craft.

During his stay here Lieutenant Commander Byrd, whose achievements during the preparatory period were warmly praised by his superiors, has rendered excellent service in experiments with special sextants, drift gauges, and other navigation paraphernalia, and if the Aroostook gets him to the Azores before the seaplanes leave there, he again will be most welcome, as such services as his are particularly desired there.

Commander Towers this morning received a message from Rockaway reading:

"Good luck—you will do it!" signed by a group of mechanics there, some of whom had been associated with him since he started navy flying in 1911.

Since arriving here the entire expedition has been glad that the project was so organized that it was possible to detach from Rockaway early, highly trained mechanics. Sent to the base ships at the starting point of each leg, such men here have proved invaluable, yet by starting early and training enough men it was possible to detach them without weakening the efficiency of the force at Rockaway.

Tinkering Still Going On.

To a surprising degree the thirteen men whose wait here on the eve of the adventure whose thrills perhaps they alone ever will quite realize, now lengthening into three days, fail to show any effects of strain or anxiety. Their bearing brings the conviction that they are quite at ease, and, while "set" for their job, they fail to manifest any of that overtension which is sometimes observable among men about to attempt big things carrying with them big hazards. Lieutenant L. T. Barin is suffering slightly from a strained finger on the right hand, sustained when he slipped on the deck of the NC-1 just after the craft had tied to the mooring buoy. Though wearing his hand in a sling, it is definitely known that he will be ready to resume his pilot job when the start comes.

The rest of the men are in perfect condition, and keeping that way by taking long walks along the stone roads which wind about the harbor.

Though there is still a slight amount of tinkering going on and will be so long as the seaplanes are here, nothing really needs to be done and the flying details are finding time to kill for the first time since they joined the enterprise. The only losers, as a result, are Newfoundland trout, the quantity of which is steadily being diminished by the persistence with which they are pursued by all the officers who can get ashore, whether for an hour or half a day.

The destroyer McKean received orders from Washington via Base Commander Captain Orenshaw today to stand by for the coming NC-4. The McKean is still at anchor here, but will resume her station as soon as the NC-4 leaves Halifax.

American Sailors Welcomed.

The American sailors continue to win their way straight into the hearts of such Newfoundlanders as they meet.

They are generally described by the natives, who are proverbially not given to enthusiasm, "as decent men as ever came into this port," and, though a few natives when the first liberty party landed from the Aroostook actually ran into their houses; today the boys in blue are cordially welcome into those same homes.

Father William O'Flaherty, priest of the only church here, is one of those who praise their conduct, and one cannot observe without a smile the lone member of the beach patrol from the Prairie, with belt and club, wandering aimlessly about the town's street, with no prospect of being called upon to do anything but lecture to the natives about aviation.

The single member of the Newfoundland constabulary regularly detailed to this village, with a trifling "beat" extending for twenty miles in either direction, finds time very heavy on his hands.

Not only the sailors' conduct is splendid, but the Newfoundlanders themselves are proverbially lawabiding.

The only time the constabulary meets with difficulties is in case of one of the frequent wrecks which led the natives to describe this end of the island as the Graveyard of the Atlantic.

The Newfoundlander is traditionally convinced that anything which comes up on the beach is his. This queer slant on property rights is as inalienable with him as the Kentucky mountaineer's belief in his right to make whisky from his corn, and sometimes results in trouble when a ship, carried off her course by the swift current hereabouts and fighting hard to make Cape Race, discovers too late that she is traveling into Mutton Bay, far inland from the Cape Race Line, and comes to grief.

Through the courtesy of Commander Daniel T. Ghent, Captain of the Prairie, the correspondents' car, which houses every American living in Trepassey, so far as is learnable, now bears a sign reading "Nancy Five American Press Correspondents U. S. Navy Transatlantic Flight, Trepassey, Newfoundland, May 19."

REPEATER CHARGE IN HOBOKEN ELECTION

ALL TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

Freed by Judge Dougherty, Who Says They Were Brought In to Serve Warrants.

In the course of what was said by politicians to be the mose exciting political contest ever waged in Hoboken Mayor Patrick R. Griffin, the candidate for re-election, was put under arrest yesterday by order of Judge Richard Dougherty of the Circuit Court. Mayor Griffin attempted to retaliate by causing the arrest of Judge Dougherty. Before the end of the day 120 men, some in the uniforms of soldiers or sailors, a few with wound stripes, had been arrested.

These events grew out of the suspicions of the rival candidates for Mayor that efforts would be made to bring "repeaters" from out of town.

Five City Commissioners were voted for, and Mayor Griffin, Democrat, was opposed by two Republican tickets, one headed by William Verdon, candidate for Mayor. Late last night the returns indicated a sweeping victory for Mayor Griffin by a vote of four to one.

Mayor Griffin said he had been advised on Monday that an attempt might be made to introduce "repeaters" to defeat him. At 3 o'clock yesterday morning he went to the terminus of the Hudson tubes in Hoboken and saw groups of men, apparently strangers to the city, some clad in the uniforms of soldiers and sailors, emerge from the station. In small groups the men, followed by the Mayor, went to Turn Verein Hall, 508 River Street.

Hiding in a nearby doorway Mayor Griffin watched the men enter the hall. When it appeared that all the men expected were in the hall Mayor Griffin telephoned for Barnard McFeely, Commissioner of Safety, and the police reserves. Several patrol wagons came quietly and patrolmen surrounded the building. At a signal the police closed in on the building, the patrol wagons rattled up to the door, and the Mayor, with Commissioner McFeely, broke into the place.

One hundred and twenty men were found in the hall. Among them were Judge Dichard Dougherty of the Circuit Court of Hudso nCounty; William Verdon, candidate for Mayor on one of the two Republican tickets; former Councilman Max Miller, a candidate on Verdon's ticket; Patrick Shields, a Verdon supporter, and J. Wallace, Verdon's publicity agent.

Call More Policemen.

The Mayor and Commissioner McFeely ordered the policemen to detain the men in the hall and to use theor revolvers if need be. Hurry calls for more wagons and policemen were sent out and soon several wagons arrived from Jersey City. The Mayor announced that the strangers in the hall were under arrest charged with being "suspicious characters."

"You're making a mistake in this," Judge Dougherty told the Mayor. "I got these men for the purpose of serving warrants."

The Mayor said that he had not deputized the men and would not do so until he was satisfied that they were not lawless persons brought to Hoboken for repeating. The men were then put into the patrol wagons and driven to Police Headquarters in the City Hall.

Mayor Griffin charged the men with being "suspicious characters," and as each man was arraigned before Judge Dougherty, who opened court at once in the City Hall, he discharged him. As the men left the building policemen with drawn revolvers, acting under instructions of the Mayor and Commissioner McFeely, arrested them and took them to the armory on the top floor of the City Hall. Thereupon Judge Dougherty put Mayor Griffin and Detective Sergeant James Clark under arrest, charging them with "causing men to be falsely imprisoned." Mayor Griffin was allowed the freedom of the City Hall.

A hearing of the case was held and Corporation Attorney Fallon, representing the Mayor, asked to inspect the complaint against him. Judge Dougherty said there was no complaint. Fallon demanded that Mayor Griffin be discharged, but Judge Dougherty refused, but paroled the Mayor instead.

In the meantime the 120 prisoners had been finger prited, and examined. Some of them told the poice they had been hired in Newark and sent to Hoboken. About 250 tube tickets were found on William Hunter of Newark, and he said that they had been given to him to use in bringing the men to Hoboken.

Later Mayor Griffin appeared before Supreme Court Justice Swayze, in Hudson County, and asked for warrants against Verdon, Miller, Shields, and Judge Dougherty, charging conspiracy to defeat the election laws and to bring suspicious characters into the city. Warrants were issued for Verdon, Miller, and Shields and a summons was signed for the appearance of Judge Dougherty at 10 A. M. today before Judge Swayze. Shields was arrested and Verdon and Miller surrendered, and all three were released under bail.

Prisoners All Paroled.

It was 8 o'clock last night before the 120 prisoners were marched from the county jail to the Court House in Jersey City, where a hearing was held before Justice Swayze. Nobody representing the Hoboken Administration appeared to oppose the motion of counsel for the men that they be released, and Judge Swayze paroled them until 10 A. M. today. Three of the men were found to have revolvers.

From the examination before Judge Swayze it appeared that the men had been promised from $5 to $10 each to watch at the polls. The men said they were hired in Newark.

A number of affidavits were made by the men before Recorder Carsten. Donald D. Strope, 457 Devon Street, Arlington, N. J., said that on Saturday, while he was in the War Camp Community Service Building at 82 Washington Street, Newark, a man entered and asked the person in charge if he could get fifty men to work in an election district for a day. He promised that the men would get three meals and $5 to act as special deputies to watch for "repeaters."

Jack Goldberg of 104 Waverly Avenue, Newark, swore that he answered a newspaper advertisement on May 12 and reported to 28 Mechanic Street, Newark, where he met a man who said: "I want you to be signed up as a special deputy to work in an election district." "After receiving instructions I was ordered to report at 4 o'clock to Green, who took me and the others to Hoboken," continued Goldberg. "We made inquiries about our money and were told that we would get $5, or maybe $10, for our work."

Another affidavit was made in which the deponent said he had been told the job he was expected to do was legal.

According to the police, word was received in Hoboken several days ago that 600 "repeaters" were to be brought into the city on Election Day to vote in the five wards. The men, so the police said, were to vote in the morning and evening, and would be sufficient in this way to swing the election away from Mayor Griffin. Under a city law soldiers and sailors residing in Hoboken for a year were not obliged to register and in this way, it was said, a loophole was afforded for unfair tactics.

Trenton Commission's Third Term.

TRENTON, N. J., May 13.—The five City Commissioners, who have already held office for two terms, were re-elected today. They are Frederick W. Donnelly, who will be chosen Mayor for the third time; George B. Labarre, Edward W. Lee, William F. Burk, and J. Ridgeway Fell. Donnelly, Labarre, and Fell are Democrats, the others Republicans. There were thirteen candidates in the field, and party lines were not adhered to. The commission will meet tomorrow for organization.

Bayonne Stands by Garven.

At the election held yesterday at Bayonne, N. J., five Commissioners, three Democrats and two Republicans, were voted into office, and the result was considered a triumph for the machine, controlled by Peter Garven, the present Mayor of Bayonne. Dr. Bert Daly, who is at present city physician, probably received the highest number of votes, and will thus become Mayor. The two other Democrats elected were John O. Devlin and Dr. W. Homer Axford. The Republicans were John P. Smith and Robert J. Talbot.

SEEK CUSTOMS EFFICIENCY.

Collectors and Appraisers Would Combine Outside Forces.

A plan for consolidating the outside workers in the United States Customs Service under one head was approved and will be recommended to the Treasury Department by the Collectors and Appraisers of the Customs Service, who met yesterday at their annual conference in the Custom House. At present part of the so-called outside employes are under the jurisdiction of the Appraisers and others are under the authority of the Surveyors in the Collector's branch. Each set of workers is qualified to do the same work, yet under the present system those in one branch cannot be called upon to do work allotted to those in the other branches. This, it was said, resulted in loss of efficiency, for, while one branch might be worked to the limit, those in the other branch might have very little to do.

It was recommended by the conference that the outside employes be all placed under the jurisdiction of the Surveyor's Department. As all these employes are under Civil Service regulations there are certain legal phases to be considered before action is taken, but as the sentiment in the conference was overwhelmingly in favor of the change it is believed it will be made.

The conference sent a telegram to Secretary of the Treasury Glass congratulating him on the success of the Victory Loan, and inviting him to attend the dinner of Customs officials at the Hotel Commodore tomorrow night. It is probable that at this dinner F. M. Halstead, Chief of the Division of Customs, will make his farewell speech, for it became known yesterday that he will sever his connection with the department on Monday and return to the practice of the law.

NAVY TO RELEASE OFFICERS

Reserves to Replace Those Who Volunteered for the War Only.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—All temporary officers who entered the navy for the war period only will be released within the next few weeks, Acting Secretary Roosevelt announced today.

More than 1,000 officers are in this status, and they will be replaced by reserve officers who are accepting temporary commissions with the agreement to remain in the service until six months after peace is declared.

In effect these reserve officers are volnteering their services to tide the department over the emergency until the army shall have been brought home. The result will be to relieve the department of the pressure now brought by the temporary officers who are anxious to get out of the service.

Reserve officers undertaking this temporary service have an opportunity to fit themselves for places in the regular naval establishment of they desire.

PLANS TO MAINTAIN AIRPLANE INDUSTRY

WOULD ORDER 500 PLANES

And Insure Rapid Expansion to Meet Requirements in Case of an Emergency.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Contracts for at least 500 airplanes of the very latest types will be awarded to American manufacturers under plans prepared by the Army Air Service and sent to Secretary Baker today for his consideration. The primary purpose would be to keep the industry in such condition as would insure its rapid expansion to meet the requirements of a national emergency.

Seven types of planes have been approved by the American Air Service as representing tne most modern developments in the science of aviation. They are the Le Pere observation, the Hoening monoplane, the Thomas Morse scout, the U. S. D. 9-A day bomber, the Voight training plane, the Martin day bomber, and the Ordnance-Engineer pursuit plane.

The contracts would be divided among these types so as to insure the maintenance of sufficient machinery and personnel at all times to permit the ready expansion for larger orders. With the exception of the Voight, all seven types were developed in the United States during the war.

To further encourage the airplane industry in the United States, air service officials are prepared to recommend that the War Department and other Government agencies lend domestic manufacturers every assistance in developing markets for their products in South and Central America.

The rapid disintegration of the airplane industry in this country from the pre-eminent position it had reached just at the time of the signing of the armistice has beer viewed with anxiety by officials here. One officer expressed the opinion today that if necessity arose at this time the United States would find itself in almost the same situation regarding aviation as in April, 1917, and that more than a year would be required to again bring the manufacturing facilities to the standard required.

Officers declared that the popular idea that a great surplus of aviation material exists in the United States is entirely erroneous. While hundreds of training planes are on hand, the facilities for producing service planes, especially of the latest types, according to officials, have never reached a "safe" margin of production.

Definite information that Great Britain and France are encouraging domestic airplane manufacturers to perfect the most modern designs of flying craft has reached the War Department and has strengthened the purpose of American officials to prevent this country from falling behind.

APPROVE COURT HOUSE BILL

Bar Association Recommends That Gov. Smith Sign the Measure.

The Bar Association of New York at a meeting last night adopted the report of its Executive Committee recommending that Governor Smith sign the bill recently passed by the Legislature abolishing the Court House Board and giving the Board of Estimate power to dispose of the site of the proposed Court House Building in Centre Street. A. S. Bard offered a substitute resolution that the association oppose the bill and urge that the present site be used for the building of a court house.

Under the bill, which the Governor is expected to sign immediately, the Board of Estimate has the power to sell, lease, or otherwise dispose of the site. A special committee of the Board of Estimate, consisting of Controller Craig, Borough President Dowling, and Robert L. Moran, President of the Board of Aldermen, has already been appointed to handle the matter.

Solicitor General Alexander C. King of the State Department, who succeeded John W. Davis when the latter was appointed Ambassador to Great Britain, addressed the Bar Association on "Some Real Aspects of Government Control of Business."

WOMAN KILLED BY TAXICAB.

Husband Seriously Injured When Couple Are Run Down in Street.

While crossing Riverside Drive at Ninety-seventh Street, shortly after 8 o'clock last night, Charles Hart and Mrs. Hart of 763 Columbus Avenue were struck by a taxicab driven by Arthur Hall of 204 West Eighty-eighth Street and thrown to the curb. The driver of the cab did not stop, according to bystanders, but was arrested several blocks beyond by Motor Cycle Patrolman Mesle, who pursued him.

Mrs. Hart was instantly killed, and her husband is suffering from concussion of the brain and serious internal injuries. The couple were taken to a nearby apartment house, while a policeman called an ambulance from the Knickerbocker Hospital. Hall, the driver of the taxicab, was charged with homicide and felonious assault.

Express Conditions Back to Normal.

Express traffic conditions were practically on a normal basis yesterday following the return of the 12,000 employes of the American Railway Express Company after a week's strike. William A. ARGUE ON REMOVAL OF GEORGE J. GOULD

HELEN FILES DISCLAIMER

Supreme Court Justice Whitaker began hearing argument yesterday on the application by Frank J. Gould and Anna, the Duchesse de Talleyrand, for the removal of their brother, George J. Gould, as trustee under the will of their father, Jay Gould. After about half of the twenty-three attorneys present had spoken for four hours, the hearing was adjourned until this afternoon, when the time will be occupied chiefly by John B. Stanchfield in opposition to the plea for removal.

At the outset Justice Whitaker refused to pass on fourteen preliminary objections raised by Mr. Stanchfield against the hearing of the removal plea at the present time. The court announced that all motions in the case would be heard at one time, and he would take up the objections as to his jurisdiction by means of briefs to be filed by the attorneys.

The chief speaker in the main argument was ex-Judge Samuel Seabury, in behalf of Frank Gould, who spoke bitterly concerning the acts of George J. Gould in alleged violation of his trust. Kingdon Gould, the only member of the family in court, walked out during one of Judge Seabury's attacks upon his father.

The argument developed the fact, hitherto concealed in the mass of affidavits, that Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard objects to the effort of her brother George to make it appear that she was cognizant of all his acts and approved them. Her affidavit refers to certain allegations as "inaccurate and untrue." Judge Seabury read the affidavit to Justice Whitaker and said he wanted enlightenment as to just what Mrs. Shepard meant. Robert W. de Forest, her attorney, said she referred to George's statements as to her participation in the affairs of the estate. "She is neutral in the proceeding between her brothers," said Mr. de Forest.

Howard Gould Not Represented.

It also appeared that Howard Gould paid so little attention to the charges against George and to the accounting proceedings in general that he waived service of the papers upon him, and he was the only one of the adult or infant members of the entire family who was not represented by counsel. Alton B. Parker appeared for Edwin Gould, who is said to support George, but took no part in the argument.

William A. W. Stewart, guardian ad litem for George's two infant children and all his grandchildren, who was named by the father to act, told Justice Whitaker that he "found himself in a difficult position."

"Don't you know what your duty is?" asked Justice Whitaker.

"Yes," replied Mr. Stewart, "my first duty is to give George J. Gould an opportunity to present his side. I should like to hear Mr. Stanchfield's reply before I commit myself." Justice Whitaker consented that Mr. Stewart present his plea today.

At the outset of the hearing some question was raised as to the persons represented by Mr. Stanchfield, who assumed the burden of directing the defense. When he said he represented the "remaindermen," Judge Seabury suggested that there was no occasion for them to be represented. Justice Whitaker asked if he didn't represent George Gould, and he replied that he appeared for Jay, Kingdon, and George J., Jr., the sons, and Mrs. Marjorie Drexel and Lady Decies, daughters of George Gould.

In outlining his preliminary objections Mr. Stanchfield urged that the court had no jurisdiction to hear the case, but said that if the court decided to act, the case should be sent to a referee because of the extent of the ground to be covered. He told of the Jay Gould fortune of more than $80,000,000 and of its holdings of Missouri Pacific, Iron Mountain, Texas Pacific, International & Great Northern, and Wabash railroad securities.

Cites Marriage Clause.

He spoke of the marriage clause in the will, under which it was necessary for the majority of the trustees to consent to the marriage of any of the children, and of their power to withhold half the income of the person who married without such consent. The defense contends that the animus of the charges by Anna and Frank against George is due to George's objection to their second marriages, and that in attempting to enforce this provision George has incurred their enmity.

Mr. Stanchfield's chief preliminary objection was that a petition for the removal of a trustee could not be made in an answer to an accounting by such trustee, but must be an independent action, as, unless it were brought independently, an appeal could not be taken to the Court of Appeals, but the litigation would end in the Appellate Division. The records of courts in this country and England show no such proceeding as one for the removal of the trustee in his accounting action, the attorney said, and there is no record of the removal of a trustee by such means. William Wallace, Jr., counsel for George Gould, joined in the objections.

When Judge Seabury began his argument for Mr. Gould's removal, he said the allegations which George Gould had asked to have stricken out as "scandalous," were not scandalous, but "the acts of George Gould are." He opposed having the case heard by a referee, and contended that it was proper to decide at once whether Mr. Gould should be removed. He added:

"This case presents a trustee who violated his trust for his private gain, and who by his trickery and subterfuge has pillaged and plundered the estate, and as a result millions have been lost to the beneficiaries who should have been the special objects of his care. After a diligent search of all the cases called to my attention in the English and American reports, I find that no case of such flagrant wrongdoing by a trustee has ever been presented to a court. Not only are there single instances of misconduct; there is a persistent and consistent record of wrongdoing by the trustee."

Says Statements Were False.

Concerning the trustees' failure to set apart the separate trusts directed in the will, Justice Whitaker asked if all the trustees could not be removed for the same reason. Mr. Seabury replied:

"There is a grave question whether all are not liable, but George is to blame in particular because he is primarily responsible. Separate trusts must be created when they are ordered in the will, and failure to do so is sufficient cause for the removal of the trustee. If a trustee fails to do so, he is personally liable. It is conceded that these trustees took it on themselves to set their judgment up against that of the testator.

"Edwin paid little attention. Howard is so little interested that he waived appearance in the case. Helen has splendid courage, but she never was fully informed by her brother of his management. George was dominating, aggressive, selfish. He was in complete command of the trust and gave orders to the others. He regarded himself as the banker of the trust, and it was his conception that the trust was his to do with as he saw fit. His testimony on his examination before trial showed that."

Judge Seabury argued that no clause in the will giving discretion to the trustees could justify George's acts. "The quarterly statements to the heirs were known to George to be false when he issued them," he said, "and were sent out for the purpose of deception. If he says he took the figures from the books in good faith, then the books themselves are false."

The attorney said the other trustees knew nothing about the $620,000 commission retained by George on the sale of the Western Union stock until "his conscience was aroused eight years afterward, with the assistance of his attorney, and he repaid the money to the estate." In insisting that there was no reason for the case to be heard by a referee, he said that the facts were chiefly admitted, and "the dispute is as to the inferences to be drawn from them, and they can be drawn by the court." He said a hearing before a referee "would only delay justice."

Attacks Stock Sale Transaction.

Judge Seabury asserted that the Western Union stock transaction "shows the utter failure of George Gould to comprehend the duties of a trustee." He said: "Mr. Stanchfield will show great evidence of astuteness as a criminal advocate if he can discriminate between this act and the crime of embezzlement."

The attorney read the section of the Penal law on that point, and insisted that George Gould's act in retaining the commission on the Western Union stock sale came clearly under the law. "I submit that he stole that profit, and the return of some of it is no justification. If this were the only ground for removal we would be entitled to prevail. The court may overlook a technical lapse of duty in a trustee, but it cannot overlook deliberate and premeditated theft of trust funds."

Referring to transactions in Manhattan Railway and Missouri Pacific stock, in which Mr. Gould substituted for cash due to the estate "dubious debts" due him, Judge Seabury said they compelled "complaint not only of the act, but of the mental attitude of a trustee who tries to defend such conduct in a court of equity." In reply to Mr. Stanchfield's statement that Mr. Gould was amply able to make good any sum found to be due the estate, Mr. Seabury said: "That is of no consequence, because the law for the removal of a recreant trustee applies to the rich as well as to the poor."

"Yes, I think a rich trustee should be treated the same as a poor one," said Justice Whitaker.

"No court of equity can condone such utterly reprehensible conduct," said Judge Seabury. "The burning of the books was an outrageous and infamous act, and was criminal in itself. The burning of these books and papers by Mr. Gould, with the assistance of one of his sons, took place in 1912, when Mr. Gould began to prepare for his first judicial accounting in twenty-three years. He destroyed the most important books he had. That alone warrants his removal."

Lorenzo C. Semple, attorney for the Duchesse de Talleyrand, joining in the petition for removal, said: "The will give the trustees great freedom of action, but it did not give George Gould the right to steal."

VOTE DOWN TRANSIT INQUIRY

Aldermen Table Resolution for Street Railway Investigation.

Alderman William F. Quinn introduced a resolution at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Aldermen requesting the Committee on Rules to appoint a committee of seven with full power to investigate the subject of street railway service in the city. Mr. Quinn is a Republican and the Democratic majority, at the suggestion of Alderman Kenneally, tabled the resolution by a vote of 32 to 17. The Socialist members joined with the Republicans in voting against tabling the resolution. The resolution provided for the issuance of subpoenas and the compelling of witnesses to attend examinations.

"The Alderman doesn't ask for much," commented President Robert F. Moran of the Board when Mr. Quinn finished reading his resolution, which stated, in effect, that the street railway system of the city was demoralized. Later Alderman Quinn made this comment:

"I have had an open mind on municipal ownership, but after the example of Government ownership of railroads and telephone and telegraph lines there is no question in my mind but that the citizens of New York are better off under private ownership. It may be possible that a seven-cent fare was needed. If that be so the Board of Aldermen should know it. Every move Mayor Hylan has made in this matter has been obstructive and we should find out what the real facts are. There is one thing certain, and that is we don't want municipal ownership."

Princess Lvoff to Aid Blind Fund.

Princess Lvoff, cousin of the former Premier of Russia, will attend as patron the Fête du Printemps organized by Mrs. Hy. Princess Lvoff has painted the portraits of fifty leading Americans and of many royal personages in Europe. Among the latest artists to contribute their services are Roshanara, the famous Russian dancer; Blanche Duffield of the American Opera Company and Jefferson de Angelis.

Do Your Feet Ever Burn?

Fast walking or continual standing often cause the feet to burn. It is one of the most annoying feelings possible, but one that is never experienced by wearers of the Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoes.

The pure felt and cork cushion prevents all friction, thereby keeping the feet cool and comfortable all the time. That is one of the reasons for the great popularity enjoyed by these shoes. If you spend much of your time on your feet you certainly need these shoes for comfort.

HARDMAN PIANOS and AUTOTONES (The Perfect Player-Pianos)

WE are very sorry to cause you disappointment, as we feel we shall. We realize the event had come to be an honored institution—a fitting climax to the Opera's end. But this year the unprecedented call for Hardman Pianos and Autotones has made it impossible for our factories to keep abreast of the demand. As the famous instruments return from their season-long studio and opera house associations with such illustrious users as Caruso, Barrientos, DeLuca, Muzio and Amato, they are speedily claimed in the regular course of business by appreciative customers. Music loving New York, that has always made much of the opportunity in years past, will understand our handicap.

We invite you to inspect our complete line of Hardman, Harrington and Hensel Pianos, and Autotones (player-pianos) and Playotones. Moderate Prices. Convenient Terms if desired.

Advertising is Not a "Game"

It is regrettable that advertising should be referred to as a "game." Nothing could be more misleading—nor more erroneous.

The big successes in advertising have been built upon sound merchandising plans which practically eliminate the elements of chance. Business as a whole does not gamble.

Among advertising agencies there has been, for a number of years past, an earnest endeavor to put advertising upon a firm foundation based upon correct principles of merchandising.

On this basis we would be glad to confer with those who contemplate making an agency connection.

TOLEDO UNION MEN PLAN BANK BOYCOTT

WANT GENERAL STORE, TOO

TOLEDO, Ohio, May 13.—Despite the sudden breaking off of negotiations here today between Mayor Schreiber and employes and officials of the Willys-Overland Automobile Company, where 10,000 men were locked out last week when they refused to work forty-eight hours a week, it was stated tonight that both the company and the men had left the way open for further discussion.

Conferences between the Mayor, the men, and the company came to a sudden termination today after four days of negotiating. Neither the men nor the company would issue statements, but Mayor Schreiber had this to say:

"We have reached no definite conclusions. The conference is adjourned with no definite date set for another meeting, and whether additional confrences will be held depends upon further negotiations."

The company continues to let it be known that it will reinstate its men if they agree to work forty-eight hours a week, instead of the forty-five they had been working. The men insist upon a forty-four-hour week and wage increases of from 10 to 25 cents an hour.

Mayor Schreiber will meet with union leaders again tomorrow morning, and in the afternoon the locked-out employes will hold a mass meeting to consider plans.

Withdrawal of the savings of union men from Toledo banks and the establishment of a union bank with a State charter will be discussed Thursday night by the Toledo Central Labor Union. Toledo banks and business houses have gone on record as supporting the attitude of the Overland Company.

The establishment of a co-operative general store for the benefit of the men will be discussed on Sunday by the railroad brotherhoods. Union leaders today appealed to all union men in Toledo to assist the unemployed men financially. Toledo labor union men are being assessed 50 cents a week to help care for the families of the locked-out men. A tag day will be held Saturday for the benefit of the union men.

Proprietors of all union job printing plants in Toledo granted a wage increase of $3 a week, effective on June 1, to their employes today.

While prospects of settling the strike of 400 men at the Ford Plate Glass Company plant, in Wood County, seemed brighter and a conference of all the employes was being arranged, disputes again arose this morning, and differences among various nationalities resulted in the conference being called off. Hungarians, Slavs, and Poles employed at the plant began to disagree, and in consequence three meetings, representing the different nationalities, were arranged, to decide if the men will treat with the company as a unit or in groups.

It was also reported that the general conference encountered difficulty when the men, who thought they were affiliating with a union, became convinced that they were being directed by the I. W. W.

Soldiers in uniform who were among the strike pickets were searched for weapons during the morning by other former soldiers employed as Deputy Sheriffs to guard the glass plant.

Four hundred of the Ford Company employes have returned to work and are making general repairs to the plant.

ELMIRA, N. Y., May 13.—About 300 union workers, including teamsters, carpenters, plumbers, tinsmiths, and electricians, this morning joined the ranks of the striking machinists of the Willys-Morrow Company, who left their work a week ago today. The plant continues to operate, company officials stating that every department is running. The local plant is one of the Willys-Overland Company's factories.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., May 13.—The threatened strike in the paper mills of Finch, Pruyn & Co. was averted today when the demands of the workers were granted at a conference between officials of the company and representatives of the men. Under the agreement mechanics will be paid 60 cents and hour and other workers will receive a flat increase of 5 cents an hour. The pulp, sulphite, and paper mill workers of the company are affiliated with the International Brotherhood, which was in charge of the strike at the mills of the International Paper Company, but they conducted independent negotiations. The situation in the International Company's mills remains unchanged.

LAWRENCE, Mass., May 13.—John Baltuoa and John Mach, formerly members of the General Committee in charge of the textile strike here, were arrested today on warrants charging them with inciting to riot. Baltuoa was found at Salisbury Beach and Mach in Boston.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 13.—The strike on the Rochester & Syracuse Electric Railway Company, inaugurated yesterday morning without warning, was still in effect today. The eighty-six motormen and conductors concerned are standing firm and not a wheel is turning on the eighty miles of track between Rochester and Syracuse. The company has given the men until 6 o'clock Thursday night to comply with its demand that they affiliate with the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes of America.

WINDSOR, Ontario, May 13.—Approximately 200 soldiers from London, Ontario, were quartered at the racetrack here this morning prepared to assist in preserving order when the Sandwich, Windsor & Amherstburg Railway attempted to resume service with strikebreakers this forenoon. The soldiers were summoned late yesterday, following disturbances by strikers and sympathizers which the authorities announced they were unable to deal with.

Shortly before noon the company sent out three cars under protection of soldiers with fixed bayonets. About twenty soldiers were placed on each car, but no passengers were carried. At a downtown street corner a crowd of more than 1,000 persons blocked the passage of one of the cars and the soldiers were compelled to clear a path for it. The crowd gave way without a clash.

The soldiers brought two machine guns with them from London. These were kept in the car barns.

WARN PAPER MILL WORKERS.

War Labor Board Decides That Its Award Is Still in Effect.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Paper mill workers, who argue that the armistice terminated wage and working agreements made for the period of the war, were informed by the National War Labor Board today that such reasoning would have produced industrial chaos if adopted generally by organized labor. The board informed John P. Burke, President of the Pulp, Sulphite, and Paper Mill Workers, that the war would not be over until the treaty of peace was ratified and that his union should abide by the agreement under which it is now working until that time.

Mr. Burke in a telegram to the board said:

"It is my understanding of the award of the War Labor Board that it should remain in effect for the period of the war and for six nomths thereafter. Our members believe the war came to an end with the signing of the armistice.

"We call the attention of the War Labor Board to the fact that President Wilson himself, addressing both houses of Congress, said. 'Thus the great world war comes to an end.' Federal Judge Walter Evans recently decided a case that the war was brought to a close when the armistice was signed.

"When we agreed to submit our case to the War Labor Board we had no knowledge that we were to be held to this award until six months after peace is ratified by the Senate. Our members had a conference in Albany on Feb. 18, and went on record as believing that the war came to an end on Nov. 11. We do not consider that we are under the award of the War Labor Board at the present time."

W. Jett Lauck, secretary of the board, sent the following reply:

"Your reasoning as to termination of the war on Nov. 11 is entirely unfounded and is opposed to the best interests of organized labor in this country. If the National War Labor Board had adopted such reasoning and had held to the point that the war was over on the signing of the armistice, it would have been equivalent to saying that the rates of pay and labor standards established by the war might at once be decreased and repudiated.

"It is essential to the stability of working conditions and the maintenance of adequate rates of pay during the period of the readjustment that the legal interpretation as to the termination of the war with the proclamation of peace be rigidly adhered to. This situation has been obvious to all other leaders of organized labor and to the majority of employers, because it has been plainly evident to them that if the board had interpreted the war as ending on Nov. 11 it would practically have produced industrial chaos and rendered impossible the stabilizing of conditions until the resuming of industrial activity. Your reasoning cannot be supported by organized labor, or by employers, or by any one who has the best interests of the country at heart."

WON'T STOP I. W. W. MEETING

Mayor of Milwaukee Denies Request of American Legion Delegation.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 13.—Mayor Daniel W. Hoan tonight denied the request of a delegation of American Legion members to prevent a meeting of I. W. W.s planned for next Saturday night.

"Persecution creates radicalism of the worst kind, and I don't want to increase the strength of the I. W. W.s here," said the Mayor. "I don't believe it is my duty to set aside the Constitution. Men have their rights under it to express their views, but are held to accountability for what they say. We have the Police Department and the Department of Justice to see that there is no disorder and apprehend any one whose utterances are disloyal or illegal."

A. F. OF L. COUNCIL MEETS.

President Gompers Able to Attend Session of Executive Board.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, had sufficiently recovered from injuries suffered in a taxicab accident several weeks ago to permit his attendance yesterday at two sessions of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor at the Hotel Continental. The Council considered only routine matters yesterday and discussed reports to be made at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor at Atlantic City, which begins on June 2. The remaining days of the Executive Council meeting, which began in Washington, but, due to Mr. Gompers's illness, continued here, will be devoted to the plans for the convention.

Discussing a report that American labor was dissatisfied with the peace terms as announced in the summary, James Duncan, Vice President of the Federation, said yesterday: "It is quite evident that labor did not get all it wanted, but I would not say that we were dissatisfied. I personally think it is a fairly satisfactory document."

When he was told of the intended visit to the United States of Arthur Henderson, the British labor leader, Mr. Duncan said: "Henderson is an old campaigner. He knows his business and we know how to run our affairs as well as outsiders. We would not butt into British affairs, and if we did Henderson and his people would very properly tell us to mind our own business."

CLOAKMAKERS WILL QUIT WORK TODAY

Strike Call States That Demand Is for Salary Basis and 44-Hour Week.

WILL AFFECT 2,400 SHOPS

Saul Singer, Representing Manufacturers, Says Union Took Arbitrary Position.

A strike affecting between 50,000 and 60,000 members of the Cloakmakers' Union, affiliated with the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, will commence at 10 o'clock this morning. Union leaders declared last night that about 30,000 workers would leave the 2,400 shops of both independent manufacturers and members of the Cloak, Suit, and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association promptly at that hour. It was pointed out that the entire union membership would not be affected directly or actively participate in the strike, because the slack season is on, and not more than 50 per cent. of the union members are employed.

The union demands seek to revolutionize the basis of operations of the industry by effecting a change from the piece work system to a salary system; the forty-four-hour week and a minimum wage scale. The final conference with the manufacturers was held yesterday at the Hotel Pennsylvania, when Benjamine Schlesinger and other officers of the union met Saul Singer, President of Singer Brothers & Co. and President of the Cloak, Suit, and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association.

After the conference the union leader said that, although friendly relations existed between the manufacturers and the workers' representatives, no agreemen had been reached. Shortly after 3 o'clock the strike call was issued by President Schlesinger.

"Each and every cloakmaker knows that, important as the previous struggles of the Cloakmakers' Union were, the present is the most important the union ever waged," the amendment reads. "This is not a struggle for a temporary improvement, but for a permanent secure existence for the cloakmaker and his family every day in the year. It will not take long before the entire cloak industry will be placed on the basis of all other organized industries—on the basis of week work, on the basis of the forty-four-hour week, and on the basis of minimum wage scales. It will put an end to the constant insecurity which has been the curse of the cloakmaker and his family."

Twenty-five east side halls have been hired by the union as meeting places for those who will leave the shops this morning. Mass meetings will be held daily, and the unionists will be kept informed of the progress of the strike. The Settlement Committee will establish headquarters at the Hotel Continental late today, to receive the applications of independent firms. The strikers include all cloak and skirt makers, operators, finishers, pressers, cutters, piece tailors, and sample makers, buttonhole makers, reefer makers, examiners, and bushelers.

Saul Singer, President of the Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' Protective Association, and head of the firm of Singer Bros. & Co., in a statement for the manufacturers last night said:

"The conference committee appointed by the association and the union have had numerous meetings during the last three weeks, and the demands made upon the association were thoroughly threshed out in the hope of finding a method by which a strike might be averted. Every argument was presented by the association representatives to get the union to recede from the arbitrary position it has taken, but without avail. Whenever the union is ready to meet the association in an earnest effort to adjust the present controversy the association stands willing to resume the conference in the hope of finding a solution of the existing difficulties."

France Helps Export Traders.

PARIS, May 13.—The French Government is aiding in the creation in foreign countries of numerous commercial offices to facilitate the growth of French export trade, Etienne Clementel, Minister of Commerce, told the Paris Chamber of Commerce Monday. He announced that a national bank of foreign commerce would be created to handle long-term credits and to encourage French merchants and manufacturers in the world-wide sale of their products.

Bolshevism and the Soviets

Read
"STRUGGLING RUSSIA"
A New Weekly Magazine Devoted to Russian Problems

Read "Struggling Russia" and you will understand the mischievousness of the Bolshevist and the Parlor-Bolshevist propaganda in this country which tries to convince the American people that Bolshevism and Sovietism are not one and the same thing, and that the Soviets are old, democratic Russian institutions like their Mir and Zemstvo.

Read "Struggling Russia" and you will understand, first, that the Soviets are new institutions having nothing in common with the Mir and Zemstvo, and, second, as the article quoted below puts it, that "the Soviets have degenerated into narrow, bureaucratic class organizations, brazenly trampling upon all the rights of civil freedom."

Soviets Are Not Democratic Institutions

M. K. Eroshkin, Chairman of the Perm Committee of the Party of Socialists-Revolutionists and former member of the Provisional Government of the Ural, who came to this country with Catherine Breshkovsky, says:

"THE SOVIETS are not democratic institutions, but merely the dictatorship of the Bolsheviki.

"According to the Soivet Constitution, Russia is governed by Soviets of Deputies, elected by the secret, direct and equal vote of all the working masses. In fact, there never was either a secret election in Soivet Russia, or one based on equal suffrage. Elections are usually conducted at a given factory or foundry at open meetings, by the raising of hands, and always under the knowing eye of the chairman. The majority of the workers very frequently do not take any part in these elections at all. The rights of a minority are never recognized, as proportional representation has been rejected.

"As regards direct elections, it is again a mere phrase. The Central Executive Committee, which is supposed to embody the supreme administrative organ of the country, was actually being elected through a four-grade system. Local Soviets send their representatives to the Provincial Congress; the Provincial Congress is represented by delegates at the All-Russian Congress, and only this last body elects the Central Executive Committee. Often the delegates are not elected by the regular meetings of the Soviets at all, but are sent by the Executive Committees, cleverly handpicked by the Bolsheviki after the system of proportional representation was rejected.

"The exclusion from the Soviets of all who think differently from the Bolsheviki developed gradually. They 'cleansed' the Soviets in Perm and Ekaterinburg in January, 1918; in Ufa, Saratov, Samara, Kazan and Yaroslav in December, 1917; in Moscow and Petrograd in February, 1918. They were excluding all Socialists-Revolutionists and the Mensheviki, to say nothing of the People's Socialists and members of the Labor Group. So, practically, there remained only Bolsheviki in the Soviets. And as there was no difference of opinion among them, regular meetings were soon abandoned altogether, and the ostensible 'rule of the working masses' thus definitely disappeared. A few persons, often appointed from above (the Bolsheviki often had recourse to bayonets to support the fiction of Soviet Rule: in Tumen the Executive Committee of a non-existent Soviet was brought from Ekaterinburg under a convoy of 800 Red Guards) would rule and lord it over the people, tired and weary of the war and a sterile social revolution."

Comparing the Soviets with the old Russian institutions—Mir and Zemstvo—M. K. Eroshkin says:

"HISTORICALLY, the 'Mir' was born in the Russian village to solve land problems and relations. The Zemstvo institutions were created in 1864, as a concession of the Tzar's Goverment to the popular movement, with a jurisdiction over certain local 'wants and uses.' The Soviets first came into being in 1905, and developed in 1917 as revolutionary organs aiming at the protection of the gains of the Revolution.

"Politically, the 'Mir' was a popular assembly of the holders of land lots in a village. The Zemstvos were organs of the popular will, elected on the basis of universal, direct, equal, secret and proportional suffrage. The Soviets, according to the Soviet constitution, are class organizations, a dictatorship of the proletariat, elected by limited, indirect, unequal, open and not proportional suffrage, i. e., elections conducted in full disregard of all democratic and Socialist principles.

"Practically, the 'Mir' concerned itself only with land and kindred problems in the peasant village. The Zemstvo, however, was the actual free expression of the general will of the people and was charged with the construction and regeneration of Russian life on the foundations of right and liberty. The Soviets have degenerated into narrow, bureaucratic class organizations, brazenly trampling upon all the rights of civil freedom. Instead of liberty—license; instead of legality—lawlessness; instead of democracy—tyranny, and instead of social peace—civil war, assault, homicide and rivers of blood."

The Future of Democracy in Russia

The Soviets will not rule Russia. They will either disappear or remain as class organizations without any governmental functions. Formulating the programme of the Russian democracy struggling against Bolshevism, Catherine Breshkovsky, the "Grandmother of the Russian Revolution," sets down, among others, the following points:

1. The re-establishment of municipal and rural (Zemstvo) self-government on the basis of the laws passed by the Russian Provisional Government.
2. The resumption of the work of the Committees assigned to prepare the plans for the organization of regional Dumas (Siberia, Ural, Northern Provinces, Southern Provinces, etc.), and the renewal of the functioning of the Regional Governments.
3. The declaration as null and void of all the decrees of the Bolsheviki, with the adoption of a policy of gradual transition from conditions under their regime to the newly moulded forms, on the basis of temporary regulations to be ordained either by the future Provisional Government or by the Constituent Assembly.
4. The summoning in the briefest possible time of an All-Russian Constituent Assembly on the basis of the election law promulgated by the Provisional Government. ("Struggling Russia," April 12, 1919.)

The first eight issues of the magazine contain articles by Catherine Breshkovsky, Nicholas Tchaikovsky, Alexander Kerensky, Leonid Andreiev, Paul Miliukov, Vladimir Bourtzev, C. M. Oberoucheff, Emanuel Aronsberg, M. K. Eroshkin, Vladimir Zenzinov, A. J. Sack and others.

Do not fail to read "STRUGGLING RUSSIA." The Russian problem is the central World Problem of to-day.

PERSHING REPORTS 312 NEW CASUALTIES

FIVE DEAD IN LATEST LIST

307 Wounded Also Named — Total Reported for All Branches Now Up to 290,555.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—One army casualty list, which contained 312 names, was issued by the War Department today, bringing the total for the army up to 284,605, after a weekly recheck which takes into consideration duplications and changes of status. This total includes also 4,534 prisoners released from German prison camps and returned to the American Expeditionary Forces. No Marine Corps list was issued today, but the total previously announced for that arm was 5,950. The total for the army and Marine Corps is 290,555.

TO URGE RIGHTS FOR NEGRO.

National Advancement Association Will Hold Conference in Cleveland.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will begin a drive to double its present membership of 50,000 by June 21, according to an announcement made yesterday by John R. Shillady, the Secretary. On that date a national conference will be held in Cleveland, Ohio, at which the program will be based upon the slogan, "To Make America Safe for Americans," and a campaign will be begun to attain a vote for every negro man and woman on the same terms as for white men and women, equal educational advantages, fair trial in the courts without discrimination because of race, the right to sit upon a jury, defense against lynching, equality on public carriers, equal right to community services for which he is taxed, an equal chance for a livelihood in public and private employment, and the abolition of color hyphenation.

Mr. Shillady asserted that more than four-fifths of the colored people of the country are denied these elementary rights, and declared that "when the fundamental rights of citizens are so wantonly denied and that denial justified and defended as it is by the lawmakers and dominant forces of so large a number of our States, it can be realized that the fight for the negro's citizenship rights means a fundamental battle for real things."

THOMPSON ON STAND TODAY

Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara will take the stand when the Judiciary Committee of the Senate meets in the City Hall today to resume its investigation into the $500,000 slush fund report which was begun after Senator Thompson had made a statement to the newspapers about the influences behind the Carson-Martin Increased Fare bill.

Senator Thompson, it was learned last night, will tell in detail his experience in connection with the Carson-Martin bill and will place in evidence a letter he wrote to Mayor Hylan regarding the traction situation in this city, and another which he wrote but did not send to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., urging the organization of a "white coal" corporation to carry electric current from Niagara Falls—in Senator Thompson's district—to every community in the State for lighting and power purposes.

PLAN TO REPAIR ARSENAL.

Old Central Park Structure Will House Safety Institute.

Alterations of the old Arsenal in Central Park for future occupancy by the Safety Institute of America will be begun at once. A meeting of the Board of Trustees of the institute was held yesterday at the office of Speyer & Co., 24 Pine Street. Arnold W. Brunner, an architect, of No. 1 Lexington Avenue, submitted floor plans for the sub-station of the Police Department, which is to occupy the north end of the basement, and also the north end of the first floor of the Arsenal. The plans will be submitted to Police Commissioner Enright today for approval, as provided by the lease between the institute and the city.

The following were appointed on the Building Committee: James Speyer, Chairman; Lewis B. Gawtry, Vice President of the Consolidated Gas Company; Charles L. Close, head of the Bureau of Safety, Sanitation and Welfare of the United States Steel Corporation; Robert A. Franks of the Carnegie Corporation, and Benjamin B. Thayer, President of the Anaconda Copper Company.

The interior of the Arsenal will be entirely reconstructed and made suitable for the exhibition of the safety devices of the institute. The exterior will be pointed up and repainted, and a new roof will be built. Fifty thousand dollars, contributed to the institute by James Speyer, is available for the work, although it is expected about $125,000 will be spent. Contributions to defray this expense are expected from concerns interested in protecting workmen and others against accidents.

The institute is now established at 14-18 West Twenty-fourth Street, in quarters inadequate for the display of its thousands of appliances. The Arsenal was built by the State in 1848. The ten-acre plot on which it stands became a part of Central Park by purchase by the city.

Smith will represent New York State. Former Governor Charles S. Whitman and General Cornelius Vanderbilt, National and City Chairmen, respectively, and the Rev. H. Pereira Mendes will also make addresses. Former President William Howard Taft, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Rear Admiral Sims and Archbishop Hayes have been invited to appear.

The League of Advertising Women will give a dinner at 47 East Twenty-fifth Street on Tuesday evening, May 20. Colonel Mortimer D. Bryant of the 27th Division will tell some of his experiences in France and Belgium, and R. W. Lillard will speak on the "Perpetuation of War Ideals." Mrs. Anne E. Tomlinson and Mme. SCIENCE HEALING INQUIRY.

Court Calls Child's Death to Attention of Grand Jury.

Attention of the Grand Jury in Newark was called by Judge William T. Martin yesterday to the case of Dorothy Walker, the 8-year-old daughter of Andrew Walker, of 889 South Sixteenth Street, who died while under the care of a Christian Science Healer of what was later diagnosed by the County Physician as diphtheria.

"Recently Andrew Walker and his wife," said Judge Martin, "noticed that their child, Dorothy, was ill. They called no physician, provided no medical attendance, and the child was allowed to remain in her condition for several days, and, I understand from that time persons were called in who were known as Christian Science Healers.

"After a week the child died and the report of the County Physician is that she died as a result of a clear case of diphtheria, which readily would have been detected from the symptoms originally exhibited by the child.

"The law is that the parents of a child, or any person upon whom the duty is imposed to care for a weaker person, owe it to that person to care for and protect him and to provide proper medical attendance, and if, as a result of gross neglect, evincing a reckless disregard of human life, the child dies, the parent is guilty of manslaughter."

B., and Lady Baden-Powell at a dinner at the Hotel Commodore on Monday evening, May 19. McAdoo will deliver an address and it is expected that Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt also will speak. Mortimer L. Schiff is Chairman of the Dinner Committee.

DE CISNEROS IS BANKRUPT.

Grand Opera Mezzo-Soprano Files a Voluntary Petition Here.

Eleanora de Cisneros, the mezzo-soprano who has appeared in grand opera in the principal cities of the world and earned much money, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the Federal Court yesterday. Much of her time during the war was devoted to singing for the Red Cross and other war charities, where her services alone, it was said, resulted in contributions aggregating hundreds of thousands of dollars.

But her greatest asset, the petition says, is an interest in a textile factory at Lille, France, which cost her $25,000, which Charles Yei, a citizen of France, brought for her. Lille, having been in the war zone, has no factories now and will have none for some years. Her other assets consist of needed wearing apparel and a few household goods, valued at $385. Her total liabilities are placed at $10,825.67.

To Paquin, Doucet, Edouard, and other dressmakers she owes $3,724.02 for gowns; to the Maison Lewis, in Paris, $1,180 for hats, and for "exploitation" and "musical advertising," $2,089.27. Mme. de Cisneros states that she owns no ornaments of any kind. Her attorney is Emanuel Lewin.

Workmen's Compensation Protection with 30 per cent Cash Returns

HOW has the Liberty Mutual policy provided such a big saving—a saving of about one-quarter the usual premium?

Because it pays no agents' commissions—no brokers' fees—no stockholders' profits.

You get the fullest protection at the actual cost of such protection. You get it without sacrifice of service. You get financial security. You get quickness and fairness in settling claims.

Liberty Mutual policy holders are getting service which they pronounce ideal. Safety service that helps them reduce the amount of their annual premiums. Service that includes prompt and just settlement of claims—a settlement which leaves the employee satisfied, and takes the burden of settlement from the policyholder's shoulders the moment he notifies the company of a claim.

This remarkable service—backed by the ample financial security of this strong New England company—plus the substantial cash return on each year's premium—has brought many of the country's largest employers of labor into the Liberty Mutual.

And these employers have never been assessed a single cent. Instead, they have received cash returns of 30 per cent of their yearly premiums.

Automobile Liability Insurance

may also be secured at cost in the Liberty Mutual. Liberty Mutual policies give fullest protection and prompt handling of claims. They have always paid cash returns—30 per cent of the yearly premium.

SAY PROGRESSIVES WILL FALL IN LINE

BUT BORAH MAY HOLD OUT

WASHINGTON, May 13.—On the eve of the conference of Republican Senators, which starts tomorrow morning at the Capitol, indications appeared tonight to point toward a crumbling of the opposition put up by the Progressive Republican Senators to the program of the Republican leaders for the reorganization of the upper body.

As it looks tonight, the Progressive fight against the Republican program will be waged in conference, and, so far as the majority of Progressives [illegible], will end there. Senator Borah of Idaho is the only Progressive who says he will fight the naming of Senator Penrose for Chairman of the Finance Committee and Senator Warren for Chairman of the Appropriations Committee on the floor of the Senate.

Republican leaders predicted today that the Senate would be organized with the Chairmanships as mapped out, including those assigned to Mr. Penrose and Mr. Warren. They insisted that the Progressive opposition would not go beyond the caucus, excepting that threatened by Mr. Borah.

Although the Old Guard leaders have offered to compromise with the Progressives in the opposition that has arisen to Senator Curtis of Kansas as President pro tempore, it was admitted by Mr. Borah and other Progressives today that they had been unable to agree upon a man for the place. The Republicans were willing to accept Senator Johnson of California as President pro temore, but Mr. Johnson declined to accept it. His reason, it is said, is that he felt the Old Guard only offered it as a sop to the Progressives and he was averse to any such compromises.

With Senator Johnson out of the race, the Progressives talked of Senator Lenroot as their last posibility. They tried to get in touch with him to ascertain if he would accept, but the Senator could not be reached. He is out on the Pacific Coast and will not be in Washington until next Monday, when the Senate convenes. If Mr. Lenroot will accept the offer of President Pro Tem., the Progressives will support him. Otherwise they will not oppose the selection of Mr. Curtis.

If Mr. Curtis is made President Pro Tem., it is possible Mr. Lenroot will be chosen as Republican whip in the place of the Kansan.

Progressive Senators foregathered once more today at the office of Senator Borah at the Capitol to talk over the situation. Only seven Senators attended the conference. Among the absentees was Senator McCormick, who went, instead, to a circus that had come to town.

According to the slate of the Republican leaders tonight, here are selections for the important chairmanships as they will be put through on Monday:

Foreign Relations—LODGE.
Appropriations—WARREN.
Naval Affairs—POINDEXTER.
Rules—KNOX.
Interstate Commerce—CUMMINS.
Commerce—JONES of Washington.
Judiciary—NELSON.
Banking and Currency—McLEAN.
Agriculture—PAGE.
Printing—MOSES.
Immigration—COLT.
Post Offices and Post Roads—TOWNSEND.
Railroads—NORRIS.
Philippines—KENYON.
Indian Affairs—GRONNA.
Manufactures—LA FOLLETTE.
Pensions—McCUMBER.
Public Lands—SMOOT.
Interoceanic Canals—BRANDEGEE.
Woman Suffrage—JOHNSON of California.

The extra session will start with the same number of committees, seventy-five, made up at the last session, but after July 1, under a readjustment agreed upon as a retrenchment measure by Democratic and Republican leaders, the number will be decreased to twenty-seven. Among the committees eliminated is the Woman's Suffrage Committee, which will be absorbed by the Judiciary Committee. This will leave Senator Johnson of California without a Chairmanship, but he will be no worse off in this respect than many other Republicans.

Senator Warren disposed today of talk that he might relinquish his claim, through seniority, to the Chairmanship of the Appropriations Committee, so as to bring about a compromise with the Progressives. Mr. Warren had been spoken of, in the event of stepping aside, for the Chairmanship of the Military Affairs Committee. But he stated emphatically today that he would not take that Chairmanship. Mr. Warren's reason for that, it is said, is because of his relationship to General Pershing, his son-in-law. Matters might come before the Military Affairs Committee involving General Pershing's official relation to army matters, it was stated, that would make it embarrassing for Mr. Warren to deal with as Chairman of the committee.

King Albert Decorates John Moffat.

King Albert of Belgium has conferred the Order of Leopold II, with the Gold Cross of Leopold, on John Moffat, Chairman of the National Allied Relief Committee and Executive Chairman of the French Heroes Lafayette Memorial Fund, in recognition of his work in behalf of Belgium during the four years of war. This is the third decoration Mr. Moffat has received, as he had previously been decorated with the Order of the British Empire and the French Medaille d'Academie.

Coast Artillery to Take Men.

Captain William J. Dunne, commanding officer of the Seventh Company, Thirteenth Coast Artillery Corps, has announced that the Seventh Company is now open for enlistments. The enlistment period is for three years, with time allowed for service in the United States Army during the world war. Applicants should apply either in the Seventh Company quarters or the recruiting office at the armory, Brooklyn, any night during the next three weeks.

STORM OF CABLED PROTESTS

PARIS, May 13, (Associated Press.)—Messages threatening violence if they sign the peace treaty have been received by the Chinese delegation from various parts of China. A dispatch sent by 35,000 citizens of Shantung Province, dated Tsinan-Fu, May, 11, says:

"Regarding the Tsing-tau problem Japan shows contempt for public right and never ceases to be ambitious. The people of Shantung refuse to accept as effective such illegal demands. The traitors to our country, Tsao Yu-Lin, (Minister of Communications, whose house was burned at Peking,) and Chang Tsung-Hsiang (former Minister to Japan, who was severely beaten by the Chinese) deserved death for the blow suffered by the Chinese people.

"Should you sign the Japanese proposal you must receive the same treatment upon returning to China. We cannot give ear to apologies. Do not fail us. We are much in earnest."

PARIS, May 13, (Associated Press.)—A message from the Province of Che-Kiang, dated Hangchow, May 10, and addressed to the Chinese Peace Delegates, says:

"The Assembly is extremely disappointed at hearing that the disposal of Tsingtau has been left to the discretion of Japan alone. All are prepared to do what the crisis demands, but are hoping that you will yet effect a change in the situation. If necessary, withdraw from the Conference without signing the protocol. You can depend upon the full moral support of the people at home."

Chinese colonies and associations in all parts of the world are also showering the delegation with resolutions against signing the treaty. The tone of the messages is such that responsible delegates like C. T. Wang, President of the Chinese Senate, say it will be quite impossible to sign unless the delegation receives a written assurance of the ultimate return of the Shantung political rights to China.

Washington Extends Time Limit.

William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue for the Second New York District, announced yesterday that he had received instructions to extend to June 15 the time within which organizations and individuals must file statements giving the names and addresses of persons to whom they paid more than $1,000 in 1918, in connection with their income tax return. The original time limit was May 15. He also announced receipt of a supply of Form 1065 for use in the final computation of partnership and personal service corporation returns. Mr. Edwards said he thought Form 1065 was among the last of the major forms to be sent out of Washington. He added that foreign corporations should be excluded from personal service corporation classification.

Hold Woman for Child's Death.

Mrs. Cona Hanglin of 54 Howard Street, Newark, accused of causing the death of Paul Esdorn, one of her four-month-old charges, was arraigned before Judge Frank A. Boettner in the First Criminal Court yesterday, charged with manslaughter. H. Edward Wolf, former Police Judge, counsel for Mrs. Hanglin, waived examination and she was held in $2,500 bail for action of the Grand Jury.

WASHINGTON HEARS DIRECT FROM PEKING

No Mention Made of Reported Decision by China Not to Ratify Peace Treaty.

RIVAL CABINETS MAY AGREE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The State Department is again in direct communication with Peking. The latest advices, it was stated today, contain no mention of disturbances there. It is assumed, therefore, that the recent disorders occasioned by the Chinese dissatisfaction with the Peace Conference's settlement of the Shantung question have completely subsided.

The department's advice from Peking make no mention of the reported decision of the Chinese Government not to ratify the peace with Germany on account of the determination by the Peace Conference of the Shantung issue.

The Chinese Peace Conference at Shanghai, which is seeking to find a basis of agreement between the North and the South and to assure the reunion, administratively, of the nation, is approaching a settlement, but the negotiations are slow, and the conferees have so far only indicated the outline of a possible compromise.

The position taken by the Southern, or Canton, Government is that the National Congress in Peking is unconstitutional, the legally constituted Parliament having been, it is charged, arbitrarily dissolved. It is the dissolved Parliament which is sitting in Canton. The compromise, as indicated in official advices received here, is likely to be the dismissal of both the Peking and Canton Parliaments and the election, under a plan to be decided upon, of a new National Parliament, which will include representatives from both sections of the country.

It is expected, also, that the compromise agreement will provide for a reorganization of the Cabinet, so as to permit of substantial Southern representation in the Government.

FINNISH ENVOY ARRIVES.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday from Copenhagen on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII. was Armas Saastaminden, formerly Finnish Minister to Denmark, who has been sent by the Government at Helsingfors to be its representative at Washington. When informed that the independence of Finland had been recognized by Secretary of State Lansing at Paris, May 7, and that he would be the accredited Minister to Washington, Mr. Saastaminden said:

"It is the greatest thing that has ever befallen the people of Finland. It places our Government on firm ground. The Finnish people will be eternally grateful to America for the shipment of 60,000 tons of wheat and other food when they were in need.

"Bolshevism has been entirely eliminated from Finland, and for more than a year the situation has been quite satisfactory externally and internally."

Mr. Saastaminden is 38 years old. He speaks English fluently. He was accompanied by his family and two secretaries.

When You Buy a Waltham Watch You Own the World's Leading Railroad Watch

There are more Waltham Watches in use by the railroads of the world than all other makes of railroad watches combined.

This fact alone proves with certainty that the Waltham Watch possesses distinctive and superior mechanical and time-keeping merit or this assertion could not be made to-day.

You will remember that the horological commissions of the world's leading nations, one and all, chose the Waltham Watch. That they did not decide on any other watch is of great value to you in choosing your watch. If they had decided on any other, it would have proved diversity of opinion, and you would not have had this valuable help to guide you when making the decision — what watch to buy.

These commissioners were trained watch men. They were chosen by their respective governments because they knew the works of a watch. They were not to be misled or guided astray by a fancy golden case that might hide a poor movement. Oh, no — they knew.

These watch men took the works of the world's watches apart — they laid the various pieces side by side — they tested the materials of which they were made. They noted the principles of their construction — how one maker did this, and another maker that. And after these watches were built up again they tested them for time-keeping.

That's what you buy a watch for — time-keeping — dependable time-keeping, year in and year out. And that is just what these wise watch experts were after. They knew that the works were the watch, not the case that held them. Clothes may make the man — but it's the works that make a watch.

Then, after these watches had run awhile, they discovered that the Waltham Watch gave certain results which placed it first in comparison with the other watches. It met the test in a supreme way. It did not excel in one particular at the expense of another. It was of such uniform high rating that it defeated its competitors in everything, and the decision was unanimous in favor of WALTHAM.

Please remember that in these tests Waltham defeated every other watch. There are many people who imagine that the Swiss watch is supreme. And there are thousands upon thousands of people who wish they had never bought one.

These skilled watch experts saw how Waltham Watches are made, what they are made of and in what scientific respect they are different from all other watches in the world.

Waltham Watches have now been made for nearly three-quarters of a century, and American genius and mechanical skill have discovered how to do things better than they are done abroad.

One instance will suffice. The balance wheel of a watch is a vital part of its time-keeping. It must keep its sphericity and its size. It is well known that metal expands and contracts in response to heat and cold. As a watch is carried into varying temperatures it is important to offset this resultant danger.

Waltham horologists designed a balance wheel of brass and steel, so forged, hardened and tempered that the static principle of one metal counteracts, in exact ratio, the elasticity of the other — that is one reason why Waltham Watches are such noted time-keepers.

We are giving the public a series of inside facts in the national magazines about the material and mechanical superiority of the Waltham Watch — facts that no other watchmaker in Europe or America can equal or deny.

And it's never been done before — but there is no reason why a man should not know something about the "works" of his watch just as he does about the mechanism of his automobile.

One thing is certain — when you buy a Waltham Watch you not only buy the world's leading railroad watch, but a watch which in material and mechanism possesses fundamental superiorities which insure you a watch to be proud of now and for many years to come.

Go to any Waltham dealer — and that means the leading jewelers in this city — and he will show you Waltham Watches ranging in price, for gentlemen, from the Cadet Strap Watch, with gold covered back, at $22 up to the Waltham Premier Maximus at $530. And, for ladies, the Jewel Series from $31.50 upward to that exquisite watch (its movement is actually smaller than a dime in diameter) which sells from $150 to $1,000 or more — according to the case.

WALTHAM

What Makes a Waltham

As far as the Waltham Watch Company is concerned, there is no more mystery about a watch than a horseshoe. The company takes its wonderful products apart and shows us all that makes the hands travel around the dial.

This information is especially useful now when so many watches are sold. Thousands are wanted as graduation gifts. And many a man who has for years carried an old-fashioned watch feels that it is high time for a better one.

Faithful to our policy of supplying our customers with the best of everything in jewelry, we have a full line of Waltham watches in all styles, solid 14-karat gold, gold filled, and sterling silver. We guarantee every one, not alone because we believe in the honesty and science of the Waltham watchmakers, but also because the Lambert watchmakers examine every watch as carefully as if it were to be carried by the conductor of the Twentieth Century.

Speaking of guarantees: Lambert Brothers guarantee everything they sell, including platinum and solid gold jewelry, platinum and solid gold rings, largely of Lambert manufacture, and fine diamonds that Lamberts import direct.

To get back to Waltham Watches: We here illustrate two styles, priced respectively, as you see, at $27.50 and $37.50. We will sell you a lady's solid 14-karat gold hunting case watch $32.50 to $125.00, or a man's solid 14-karat gold hunting case watch for $38.50.

Walthams are not the lowest priced watches. The knowledge, workmanship and material that go into them cost money. But they make as good a watch as ever ticked off the flying hours.

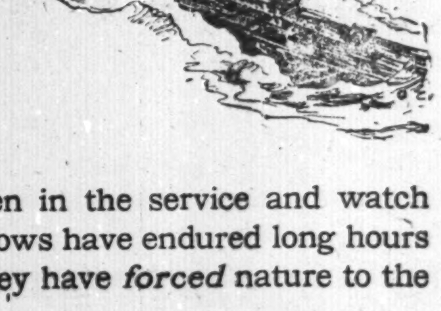
for the wheel & lookouts

Cold blasts and icy seas swept over the destroyer's deck. With numbed hands, strained eyes, and tensed nerves the lookout held his post until —eight bells—end of the midnight watch—then hot coffee in the galley!



JUST mention coffee to the men in the service and watch them smile. These brave fellows have endured long hours of hard labor with little rest. They have forced nature to the breaking point.

Coffee helped them. It cheered them and comforted them. Very often it actually sustained them. Its warmth rested and steadied them, and so gave them new courage for the great tasks ahead.

You men and women in every day life, waging the battle of business, striving to maintain place and power and health—you have great tasks, too. And you find coffee a real help in the day's work.

And the joy of it—the charm of it—the delight of it. It greets you at breakfast—it cheers you at luncheon—it revives you at dinner. And very often regales you at the late supper. Truly—what would your life be without coffee?

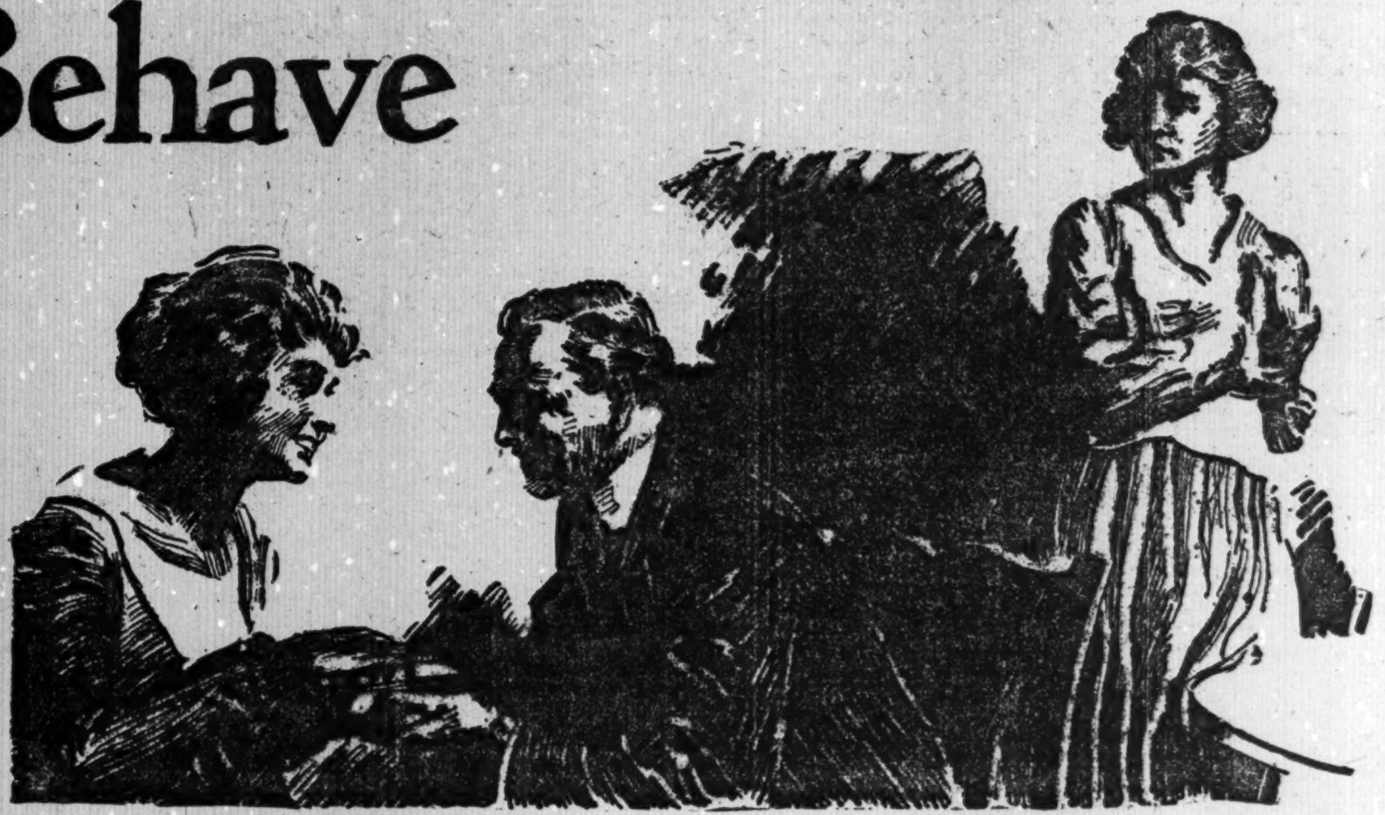
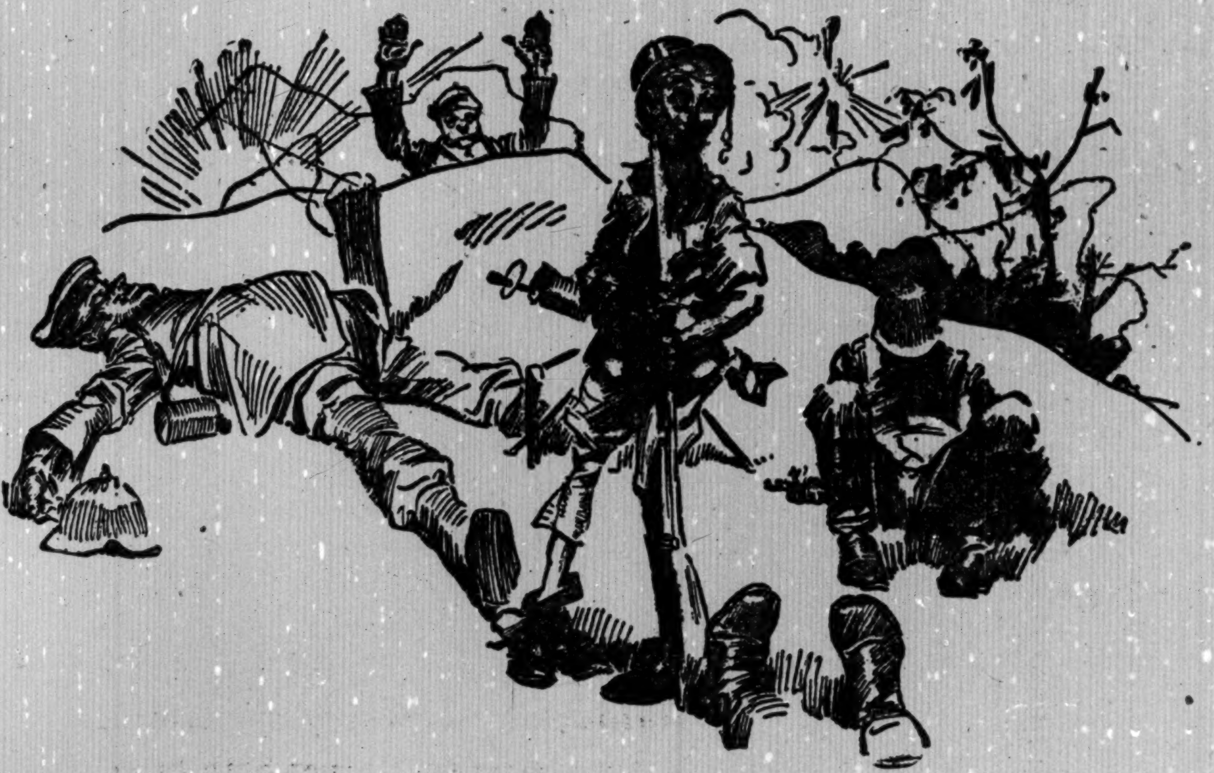
Making Mother Behave



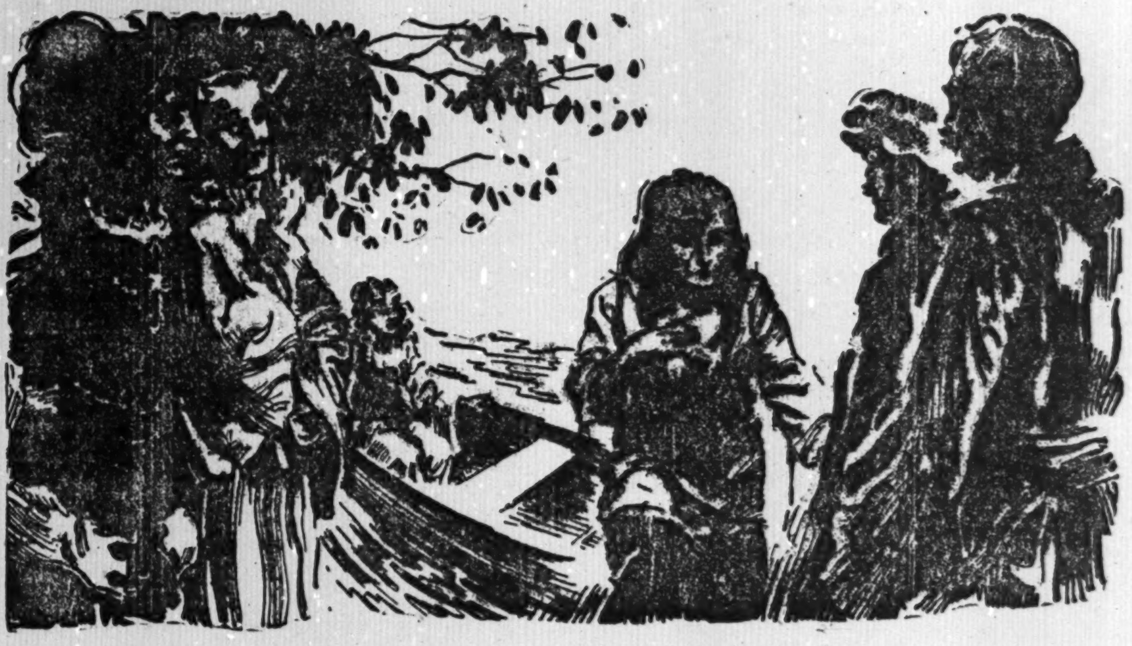
Mother WOULD be young and happy. She would play, and frolic and dance, and just be merry. And her big boy and girl were put to it to "keep mother dignified"—to "make her behave." But she just wouldn't. She would brush out a gray past and put in a rosy present. She would be so undignified as actually to swap chocolate peppermints with her daughter's dignified professor of English Literature. The daughter was in despair. The boy said "Mother is certainly some." But mother would just push back her stray, rebellious yellow locks of hair, and smile and go on to her next "idea."



The Professor Who WOULD Kill Germans

He didn't want to. He tried SO hard not to. But his gun would go off and then there was another dead German. And German upon German would throw up their hands and call "Kamerad" when he pointed his bayonet at them. He would stumble, and then what he stumbled over would prove to be a German machine gun. And then, to crown all, a French General kissed the Professor on both cheeks, they pinned a cross on him, the boys would call him "Hell-Cat Sam" and YET, as he says, "I am a peaceful man and not bloodthirsty. Will you not believe me?" Read about the Professor and see what you think—if you can, from laughing

The Girl Who Wanted To "Do Something" And She Certainly Did It



"Well, what you do know about that?" they said, and they wept from laughing. A quiet, ordinary girl had jumped into the water and rescued a girl in a boat. Or, she thought she had. Instead she had jumped into the "movies." And she had done "something"—something so thrilling that hundreds flocked to see her do her marvelous feats, and theaters were thronged to see her on the "screen." She had certainly "done something." But how did it turn out?

BAKER WOULD KEEP OLD NATIONAL GUARD

GOVERNMENT READY TO AID

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Secretary of War Baker said today that the War Department was in favor of the reorganization of the National Guard, and indicated that its rehabilitation would be facilitated in every possible way by the Federal Government.

Mr. Baker pointed out that there was nothing to prevent men who had served overseas and who were formerly in the National Guard from going back through re-enlistment, and he indicated that the department would like to see them do so.

When the Secretary was asked regarding the report of his speech recently delivered on shipboard, as printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES, in which he discussed the Selective Service law and the National Guard, he said:

"The report is substantially accurate. It has no relation whatever to the subject of universal military training. The presiding officer asked me a question which indicated a belief on his part that the passage of the Selective Service law was in some sense a reflection upon the volunteer, and I said that it was in no sense such a reflection; that the National Guard had done excellent service on the border and abroad, and that the volunteer principle would undoubtedly always be necessary to maintain a peace-time regular military establishment, but that the passage of the Selective Service law was a wise thing in the public interest."

Continuing, Mr. Baker said regarding the guard:

"The 69th Regiment, (165th U. S. Infantry)—we will take this regiment as an example—was called into the Federal service by the President. It was in the relationship then of a National Guard unit in the Federal service, and if it had been discharged at that time it would have gone back to New York as a National Guard unit. Later, however, the President drafted it into the service—you will remember that there were two steps in that. The draft operated upon it as though operating upon individuals. It was as though the President had said, 'I am going to take all men who are 5 feet 9 inches tall,' and the relation of the men of the 69th to the Federal Government, after they were drafted into the service, then became the relationship of a selective service man, or a drafted man.

"Now the draft of the Federal Government overrides every other subordinate military organization. Therefore, these men came into the Federal service and that operated to extinguish their military obligation to their State; at least for the time being. Whether that can be automatically re-established I do not know. Of course there is nothing to prevent these men going back to start National Guard organizations, and to re-enlist in these organizations.

TO WATCH ECLIPSE FROM A SEAPLANE

much clearer. The correctness of this will be proved by the test we are going to make."

The eclipse takes place every eighteen years. In 1901 the eclipse lasted six minutes and twenty seconds, and this year it will be thirty seconds longer. When it occurs again, in 1937, the time will be seven minutes and twenty seconds, and about the same time in 1955. In 1973 the eclipse will not last as long.

Several English, French, and American expeditions are on their way now to Bolivia and Peru and West Africa to take observations of this eclipse, and the Committee for Radiotelegraphic Investigation, of which Sir Oliver Lodge is Chairman, is arranging for signals to be transmitted across the zone of the shadow. He has requested a large number of stations in Argentina, Brazil, Peru, and other countries to receive the signals and record their strength from instant to instant.

The observation of signals from Annapolis will begin at the Falkland Islands at 11:30 and Buenos Aires at the same time, and Rio de Janeiro at 11:45. The waves from Annapolis will be 17,000 meter lengths.

"So important is a total eclipse of the sun to astronomers, mathematicians, weather men, physicists, and wireless telegraphers that no phenomenon of this striking character is ever permitted to pass unobserved," commented Professor Todd. "Curiously enough, the best time to study the sun is when it is entirely out of sight. This is because the overpowering radiance of this everyday luminary is itself an obstacle to solar investigation.

"No human eye has ever seen the corona which surrounds the sun, except when the sun itself is suffering total eclipse. The astronomers of all lands, therefore, congregate wherever the moon's shadow trails like a pencil point across the planet, and all the times when these extraordinary eclipses will happen have been computed with the greatest care and minute precision down to the year 2162.

"Few eclipses during the past forty years have escaped without my being on hand at the appointed time and place. I was at Dallas, Texas, on July 29, 1878; in Japan in 1887 and 1896; at Angola, West Africa, in 1889; at Tripoli, Barbary, in 1900 and 1905; the Dutch East Indies in 1901; Russia in 1914, and Florida in 1918.

"All these were brief in duration, averaging only three minutes for observation of the marvelous corona, the ruby red prominences, the huge streamers stretching millions of miles into space, and many other phenomena of absorbing interest to a great variety of scientific observers who are still hoping to find out the secret power by which the sun controls the weather here on earth and perhaps affects the transmission of wireless signals from continent to continent. Possibly they will succeed in actually weighing light.

"There are all sorts of theories as to what the corona really is; some astronomers think it is a sort of outer atmosphere of the sun, while others regard it as a sort of cosmic left-over from the far-away epoch when our sun is thought to have been a nebula filling huge caverns of interstellar space.

"To others the corona is a type of the electro-magnetic aureole which changes slowly, is never seen twice alike, and quite certainly has some obscure connection with the aurora borealis and even with the position in space of the other planets, Venus and Mercury, because in some past eclipses the streamers of the corona have been seen in photographs in slender filaments stretching out toward these planets themselves.

"The umbra intersects the earth's surface in an approximate circle of diameter about 234 kilometers, (126 sea miles,) and it moves at the slowest at a speed of about 0.57 kilometer (0.31 sea mile) per second. Between 11:30 and 12 noon (Greenwich time) it travels across Bolivia and Brazil, and it crosses the Atlantic close to the equator between 12 noon and 2:20. It then crosses the African continent from the French Congo to Mozambique. The British Admiralty stations at Ascension and the Azores will for the most part be asked to listen to Ascension for at least an hour round about the time when the umbra passes between themselves and the Ascension. There will also be an eclipse station at St. Paul's Rock, off the coast of Brazil."

Professor Todd said that he was deeply indebted to Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and Edward N. Hurley, of the United States Shipping Board, for arranging the trip, and the Secretary of the Navy for sending the hydroplane and the crew to make the flight.

Professor Todd holds many important posts in the Government astronomical service. He has written a number of books and articles on his experiments, and is a member of the leading scientific clubs of this country and Europe.

Three transports arrived yesterday from France with 6,178 troops, chiefly units of the 82d Division. Many of the soldiers were New Yorkers, drafted to Camp Upton and transferred and trained at Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga.

Among the 2,940 on the von Steuben, which arrived first at Hoboken, were the 120th Machine Gun Battalion complete, with 25 officers and 761 men; the 323d Field Artillery complete, 53 officers and 1,372 men, and the 158th Field Artillery Brigade Headquarters, 10 officers and 66 men. Among the officers on board were Major Gen. Leroy S. Lyon, Brig. Gen. Adrian S. Fleming, commander of the 158th Field Artillery Brigade, and Brig. Gen. Logan Feland of Owensboro, Ky.

The sum of $110,000 was subscribed by the passengers and crew toward the Victory loan. This betters the previous record for transports an dwarships, the officers said.

The Louisiana, which had 1,444 troops on board, brought the 107th Ammunition Train complete, thirty-four officers and 1,137 men. The 32d Military Police Company, 107th Mobile Ordinance Repair Shop, and casuals.

SMITH PLANS WORK FOR EX-SERVICE MEN

HAS $150,000,000 AVAILABLE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 13.—New York City officials are invited by Governor Smith to meet with him and the Reconstruction Commission in Albany on May 22 to arrange a program of co-operation between the State, county, and city Public Works Departments to aid in relieving the present conditions of unemployment by speeding up public works of every kind.

Those invited to the conference include Mayors of cities, Chairmen of the Boards of Supervisors, Borough Presidents of New York City, the President of the New York City Board of Education, the Chairman of the Public Service Commission, First District; Chairman of the Board of Water Supply of New York City, and the heads of State Departments.

On May 21, the Reconstruction Commission will also meet in Albany with Governor Smith and members of the Special Committee on Taxation and the General Legislative Tax Committee to consider remedies for the housing conditions in the State outside of New York City.

In a letter of invitation to those expected to attend the conference on May 22 the Governor points out that there is, according to a report of the Reconstruction Commission, more than $150,000,000 available in the State for public improvements. The Governor sent with the letter a report of the Reconstruction Commission, and said:

"The report of the New York State Reconstruction Commission advises me of the need of stimulating public works to bring about business readjustment, establish confidence of business men, stabilize prices, and thus provide employment for returned soldiers and sailors and others who are out of work.

"The United States War and Labor Departments have expressed their complete agreement with this report and have joined with the Reconstruction Commission in urging me to call a conference of the heads of the county and city governments of this State and of the State Engineering Department to talk over projected public improvements and to see what can be done to overcome obstacles and push this work."

The Governor today signed the Abeles bill providing that a liquor tax certificate may be issued for the period beginning Oct. 1 and expiring Jan. 31, 1920.

Governor Smith also gave his approval to the bill excepting newspaper women from the provisions of the labor law that regulate the hours of employment of women in factories.

"While technically a newspaper office is a factory," the Governor declared, "I am, nevertheless, informed by the State Industrial Commission that no attempt has ever been made to enforce the provisions of the law with reference to women engaged as newspaper writers or reporters.

"The fact that they do the writing in the building where the printing presses are operated has been held to mean that they were factory workers."

The Governor has signed the bill that no female under 21 years of age shall be permitted to work on any railway line, or be employed after 10 o'clock at night or for more than fifty-four hours in any week.

Representatives of automobile associations of the State today before Governor Smith protested the bill to increase automobile registration fees. The proposed new law would increase fees for Fords to $7.62 and provides a scale of increases for the larger and more powerful cars ranging up to about $60.

Autoists favored the approval by the Governor of the bills abolishing the toll bridges at Albany, Troy, and Schenectady.

BURGLAR OF 17, SHOT IN LONG CHASE, DYING

CASTS LOOT AWAY IN FLIGHT

After having been chased by two detectives and a policeman through hallways, across housetops, and over backyard fences yesterday afternoon James Buckley, 17 years old, of 230 East Sixty-second Street was finally cornered. In a final desperate dash for liberty he was shot by Patrolman Conrad Walters of Traffic C and was taken, so seriously wounded, to Bellevue Hospital that the last rites of the church were administered. During the chase he threw away a tin box containing $1,500 worth of silverware which he had stolen from the apartment of Miss Laura Gamble on the first floor of 175 West Seventy-ninth Street.

When Miss Gamble returned home at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon she found the door of the apartment jimmied, and as she entered she saw a man rush through the kitchen and jump out the window into the back yard. She telephoned to the West Sixty-eighth Street station, and Detectives Donohue and Devaney commandeered a passing automobile and rushed to the scene.

When they reached the yard they heard Mrs. Selma Chavick of 403 Amsterdam Avenue shout for help. They found that the burglar had run through her apartment and thence to the roof. The detectives followed, but after chasing him over a whole block of housetops they saw him disappear through the roof door of the house at Eightieth Street and Amsterdam Avenue. The chase then led into the street, and as Buckley turned the corner into Eightieth Street he threw down the tin box containing the loot.

Although the detectives fired shots into the air, Buckley hesitated only long enough to hurl a valise at his pursuers, and then dashed into the hallway of No. 165. Here all trace of him was lost until Mrs. George Morris, janitress of No. 163, yelled that a burglar had entered her apartment. By this time Patrolman Walters had been attracted to the scene, and when he heard Mrs. Morris's cries he searched her rooms, finding Buckley under the bed.

BOY TAKES $100,000 IN GEMS

A detective with a good memory for descriptions of men wanted by the police yesterday caused the arrest of a 17-year-old messenger boy, charged with the theft of diamonds valued at $100,000, after circuitous records had been traced through the police courts in this city and Boston. The diamonds were taken Saturday from the store of Meyrowitz Brothers at 170 Broadway by a boy who had been working there only a few months.

An operative for a private detective agency remembered that the description of the missing boy closely resembled that of a boy arrested in Boston last December while trying to sell a $1,000 Liberty bond. The police there charged him with complicity in the theft of $29,000 in bonds from a broker in this city. The boy had been returned to this city to await trial, and had been released on bail.

The name of the boy was Bernard Burgess. From the Parole Commissioner and his assistants the detectives learned that a boy named Bernard A. Marron, 17 years old, fitted the description of the boy who worked in the jewelry shop, and that he had served a term in the reformatory and had been released on parole. The boy's address was given as 292 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn.

At first, the proprietors of the jewelry shop refused to believe their messenger had taken the gems. They said he had brought with him to the store an excellent recommendation "signed" by the director of the business courses in the De Witt Clinton High School.

Two parole officers, with private detectives, started their hunt for the boy Monday. They found him yesterday at Forsythe and Canal Streets looking for another job. He admitted he was Bernard Marron, but denied he had worked in the Broadway jewel shop. After employes from the shop had identified him, he confessed he had taken the gems, and said he could return them.

The boy took the police to his room at 390 Hoyt Street, Brooklyn, where he returned seventeen of the twenty-two missing stones. The gems ran in weight from a fraction of a carat to twenty-nine carats, the last being a stone valued at more than $30,000. Meantime other policemen had found the boy's chum, Solomon Green, 19 years old, and had taken him to Police Headquarters. The boys then admitted they knew where the other stones were.

Green said he would find the missing gems if he were allowed to leave Police Headquarters as soon as he returned them, and if no policeman accompanied him. Detectives followed him to Roebling Street, Brooklyn, and back to headquarters, where he delivered the stones. He was arrested for complicity in the theft. The police say Marron's recommendation from the high school "teacher" was a forgery.

PERSHING THANKS Y. W. C. A.

Care of Women Workers, He Says, Helped Army to Win.

PARIS, May 10.—General Pershing has just written to Miss Harriet Taylor, Executive Secretary of the American Y. W. C. A. overseas, a letter expressing to the Young Women's Christian Association his appreciation and that of the officers and men of his command for the services which the women's organization rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces.

General Pershing's letter says:

"Commencing in the latter part of 1917, you steadily increased your facilities until you had established homes and social centres for American women attached to the army, and for British women serving with our forces, at all important points where they were stationed. Moreover, you instituted and developed to a point of large usefulness your work for the benefit of the French women employed in the great munition centres.

"No one who has served with the American forces in Europe can doubt the efficiency of the work performed, or the positive benefit of the influence exercised by the women, whether enrolled as members of the Sanitary Corps, the Signal Corps, or the auxiliary welfare agencies.

"In ministering to the comfort and well-being of these women, your society has performed with the utmost devotion a valuable and distinctive service, which entitles the organization and its individual workers to the gratitude not only of the women, but of every member of these forces, whom they in turn have helped to sustain and maintain at the pitch of efficiency and morale which was needed to bring the war to a successful conclusion.

There's a Film
On Your Teeth—Remove It
All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

See the Result

That slimy film which you feel on your teeth is the cause of most tooth troubles. Brushing teeth can't save them if you leave that film. Millions of people have learned that.

This is to urge a new method. Combat that film for ten days. Then look at your teeth and judge for yourself if it pays.

That film is what discolors—not your teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. The teeth have no enemy which compares with that film.

This film is not ended by the old ways of tooth brushing. The ordinary tooth paste cannot dissolve it. The film clings and hardens in crevices and elsewhere. So millions find that, despite their brushing, teeth discolor and decay.

Dental science has now found a way to combat that film. The way is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. Its results are quickly apparent. A ten-day test will be a revelation. We ask you to make it at our cost and see what clean teeth mean.

A Delightful Test

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

Science has discovered a harmless way to activate this pepsin. The old way was an acid, harmful to the teeth. Now, for the first time, you can daily apply efficient, active pepsin to the teeth. Now you can clean them as you never could before.

Dental authorities have for years been proving Pepsodent. They have come to regard it as the supreme dentifrice. Leading dentists all over America are using and advising it.

The results are beyond any question. A pleasant test will prove them to you—some at once and all within a week. We ask you, for your own sake, to make that test—and now. Look at your teeth—see them glisten—judge for yourself what it does.

Let us send you a 10-Day Tube.

OUTGUNNED WORLD WHEN WAR ENDED

THE RECORD OF PRODUCTION

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Behind the armies in France last Fall, before the armistice was signed, the United States was forging weapons gigantic and powerful. In the American artillery program alone there was in creation an agency believed by army men here to be of itself able to bring the victory.

An official and detailed account of that program is contained in the chapters made public today of "America's Munitions," the historical report prepared under the direction of Assistant Secretary Crowell, who was Director of Munitions during the war.

There has been much controversy because of the alleged failure to adopt at the outset of the war the French .75, famous for its performances in the war, as the standard American piece of this type. The report shows that the gun was adopted for combat purposes but that its production in quantity in the United States proved to be even more of a problem than the Government's experts had expected. For that reason the American 3-inch gun, redesigned for .75 ammunition, and the British 3.3-inch field gun, similarly rechambered, were both put into production to make use of every facility for manufacture.

Construction of the guns themselves and their carriages went forward swiftly. Under the agreements, the French and British were to supply the first American armies with all of their field artillery and intermediate batteries with the exception of the powerful American 4.7 rifle and howitzer which was taken over by the troops and which proved highly effective against German field guns. The American Expeditionary Force received from the French before the armistice was signed 1,828 75mm. guns and 772 155mm. howitzers. They had also received from the French 216 155mm. rifles and from the British 123 8-inch howitzers and with 40 9.2-inch howitzers completed and ready for delivery. Additional contracts were made with the British for 302 howitzers of 6-inch calibre for delivery by April, 1919.

The report shows that between April, 1917, and the conclusion of hostilities there were supplied to the Allies forgings for 1,102 guns of calibres ranging from 3-inch to 9.5-inch; additional gun tube forgings to the extent of 14,623 and shell forgings totaling 5,018,451.

There were only four gun makers in the United States when the country entered the contest, but by October, 1918, there were nineteen factories engaged on this work. During that month, with three of the nineteen factories still lacking their complete equipment, there were produced 2,031 gun forgings of calibres up to 9.5-inch, or at a rate of 24,000 guns a year, as compared to the capacity for 55 finished weapons a year in the Spring of 1917.

The actual production of completed guns up to December, 1918, was 4,039, including 1,813 of 75mm. calibre; 230 of the 3-inch anti-aircraft type; 218 of the 4.7-inch type; 1,456 of the 155mm. howitzers; 120 of the 155mm. rifles; 191 8-inch howitzers, and 2 of the monster French 240mm. howitzers, which would have supplanted the smaller British guns of this type in 1919. Over the same period the number of gun forgings produced totaled 8,440.

Summarizing the production of guns by the United States, as compared with France and Great Britain, the report says that between April, 1917, and November, 1918, the United States produced 2,008 complete artillery units, as against 11,056 by France and 8,065 by Great Britain, and during those nineteen months turned out 4,275 gun bodies, as against 19,492 by France and 11,852 by Great Britain.

Big guns are dealt with separately. A survey of the country immediately after the war declaration located 464 weapons, ranging from 7-inch to 14-inch calibre, which could be spared from coast defenses or by the navy to be placed on railway mounts for use in France. There was also available one giant 16-inch howitzer built by the army before 1917. From the seacoast defenses were taken 96 8-inch, 129 10-inch, 49 12-inch rifles, and 150 12-inch mortars, while the navy supplied 12 7-inch rifles and 21 14-inch, and 6 high power 12-inch rifles building for the Chilean Government were commandeered. Practically all of these were intended for the railway mounts of various types, and the great majority of them, together with new guns of these sizes, would have reached France in time for the campaigns of 1919 and 1920 had the war continued.

In all, there were in process projects to support the American Army with 300 of these tremendous guns, all of which were well advanced when the fighting ended. In addition to the navy's contribution of 14-inch rifles on railway mounts, three army 8-inch units went overseas. By the end of 1918 twenty-four units had been completed and the guns and mounts fully demonstrated. An interesting feature of the mount was that it had trucks which would permit it to operate over either standard railroads or the narrow gauge lines at the front.

Railway mounts for 36 10-inch rifles from the coast defenses also were ordered in co-operation with the French, machine work and assembly to be done in France. They were to be delivered at General Pershing's request by March, 1919.

One of the projects embarked upon was the mounting of 40 of the 12-inch mortars for use in the 1919 campaign. This proved to be the largest job of the whole artillery program and required the construction by the Government of a wholly new plant, which was completed on June 1, 1918. The first mount was finished in August of that year and passed all tests, and when the armistice was signed the castings, forgings, and structural parts for 91 mounts were on hand. In April of this year 45 complete units had been delivered, and the whole 91 guns could have been mounted by June.

The department ordered 16 mounts for 14-inch rifles, deliveries to begin in February, 1919. These were in addition to the five guns of this size manned in France by the navy. The armistice served to cancel the contract.

The 16-inch howitzer, largest of the whole gun family, was successfully mounted upon a railway carriage, and following its passage of severe tests General Pershing called for 12 of these weapons as soon as they could be produced. Orders were placed for 61 additional guns of this size, but none had been turned out by the time the armistice was signed, and the work of mounting them was never undertaken.

Turning Out Machine Guns.

Machine guns and small arms produced by the millions, ammunition turned out by billions of rounds, and tanks built by thousands when the armistice ended hostilities were a part of the War Department's preparedness

"The first twelve American divisions to reach France," the War Department's report says, "were armed with Hotchkiss heavy machine guns and Chauchat automatic rifles by the French Government. More than 1,000 Vickers heavy guns produced in the United States were traded to the French, as they were needed in French aircraft. During May and June, 1918, eleven American divisions sailed, all equipped with Vickers heavy guns built in the United States, and received Chauchat rifles in France. After June all divisions to sail were equipped with the standard American weapons, the light and heavy Brownings."

The work of the light Brownings is declared to have been so spectacular, as compared with any existing weapons of this character, that when they were demonstrated in France the officers of the American Expeditionary Force promptly desided to increase the equipment of infantry troops by 50 per cent., adding enormously to the production burden at home. The heavy Brownings functioned so well that an official report is quoted telling of the work of seventeen guns which were tested immediatly after they had been engaged with the enemy in a severe action and while they still were incrusted with rust and mud and bearing shrapnel scars. Without being cleaned in any way, each gun fired a belt of 250 cartridges without a malfunction. The demand for light Brownings was so heavy that when the armistice was signed the department was driving forward production to the end that British, Belgian, and French troops might be equipped with this weapon, these three nations having asked for supplies of this latest American addition to the fighting equipment.

Up to Nov. 11 the production of Browning rifles was 52,238, a majority of which were in France. In addition, 29,000 Chauchat guns had been purchased, so that enough light automatic rifles were on hand to supply 100 divisions, or an army of 3,500,000 men. In the same time 41,804 heavy Brownings and enough Vickers guns had been produced to make, with the Hotchkiss weapons purchased from the French, a total of 54,627 of this type, or enough to equip 200 divisions, or an army of 7,000,000.

"At the peak of our production," the report says, "a total of 1,749 machine guns and automatic rifles of all types were produced within a period of twenty-four hours," and the total production of machine guns in the United States between April 6, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918, was 185,039, as against 229,238 produced by the French, and 181,404 by the British in the same period.

Other production struggles described include items varying in size from trench knives t othe 45-ton Mark VIII. tanks of British design, of which 1,500 were being constructed in co-operation with the British and 1,450 additional wholly by American enterprise. Only one of these had been delivered up to Jan. 1, 1919, but it is noted that the work on each program on component parts was 50 per cent. complete when the armistice was signed. Orders for all but 100 of these tanks have been canceled. On Nov. 11 sixty-four tanks of the French six-ton type had been delivered and by Jan. 31 of this year 291. Of these six were shipped abroad. Orders for 1,000 Mary I. light tanks were canceled, as were orders for 15,015 three-ton tanks, fifteen of which had been completed on Nov. 11.

The history of the rifle production, including all of the considerations which led to the adoption of the standardized British Enfield weapon for American use, also is fully outlined. The department states that it sees no reason now to change its view that the wisest course was that which was followed. Army experts still hold that the Springfield rifle is the best military weapon made, but it is declared the rifle program would have been "hopelessly delayed" if it had been attempted to equip the forces with those weapons. It is reiterated also that the Enfield rifle, as it wa sin production in American plants when the United States entered the war, was an utterly inadequate weapon, while as it was modified, it became second only to the Springfield. Despite the delay due to modification and standardization, all American troops were equipped with modern, efficient, American-made rifles before they left the United States.

The total rifle production in the United States from the beginning of the war up to Nov. 9, 1919, was 2,506,307, of which a little more than 300,000 were Springfield rifles.

American Revolver Wins.

Considerable attention is devoted to the production of automatic pistols and revolvers for the troops. In the Colt .45, the standard army automatic developed as a result of Philippine experience by the army, and which also was an invention by Browning, the United States forces had a weapon which all Europe could not match for efficiency in action and which brought terror to the Germans when American troops reached the front. The European countries failed to appreciate the value of large calibre, hard hitting weapons of this type, and the chief use of pistols and revolvers in European armies had been as ornaments for officers' uniforms, it is said, rather than for active fighting.

With this weapon, it is stated, "any average soldier with average training can hit what he shoots at. In almost the first skirmish it proved its superior usefulness in trench fighting. Such incidents as that of the single American soldier who dispersed or killed a whole squad of German bayoneteers which had surrounded him struck the enemy with fear of Yankee prowess with the pistol."

This resulted in the addition of pistols to the fighting equipment of the American troops at a rate that overwhelmed the supply. Every effort to increase production was made, but the army was forced to resort to 45-calibre revolvers to supplement the supply. The actual rate of production, reached just before the armistice, was 1,993 pistols and 1,233 revolvers a day and the total number of the weapons built during the war was 743,663.

The standard American army rifle ammunition proved its superiority in action, adding materially to the accuracy of the American smallarms fire. Extraordinary measures to produce cartridges in sufficient numbers are recounted in the report and in the Fall of 1918 the United States achieved an average monthly output of 284,852,735 rounds, against a British average of 259,769,000 and a French average of 139,845,000. During the nineteen months the United States was in the war it produced 2,884,954,000 rounds, approximately equalling the French production and comparing with 3,486,127,000 produced by Great Britain.

MILITARY observation balloons are filled with inflammable gas. A small spark will ignite it. It is a regulation of the United States Naval Flying Corps that all men nearby when a balloon is being "gassed" shall either wear rubber heels or put cotton bags over their shoes. Why? To prevent sparks frequently caused by hard, nail-studded heels striking concrete floors.

That occasional spark proves one important fact—the unyielding hardness of the heel that jolts and jars your whole body with every step you take.

Leather heels served their purpose when we walked on country paths. On modern pavements they are as obsolete as sandals. The steady pound, pound of walking on hard heels all day taxes your energy and brings on fatigue.

O'Sullivan's Heels are guaranteed to wear twice as long as ordinary rubber heels; and will outlast three pairs of leather heels. Go to your shoe repairer today and have O'Sullivan's Heels put on your shoes.

O'Sullivan's Heels are furnished in black, white or tan; for men, women and children. Specify O'Sullivan's Heels, and be sure that you get O'Sullivan's—avoid the disappointment of substitutes.

COMPROMISE ENDING MANY RENT STRIKES

DEFENSE COUNCILS IN WORK

They Will Co-operate with Mayor's Committee—Court Holds Up 50 Evictions in Bronx.

Reports made yesterday to the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering and information obtained from the Municipal Courts indicated that the percentage of landlord and tenant cases being compromised to the satisfaction of both parties is increasing. It was said the publicity attendant on the operations of rent-profiteering landlords as well as the investigation instituted by Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield have had a beneficial effect upon some of the more grasping landlords.

Henry Kempner of the Law Committee on Rent Profiteering was instrumental in effecting compromises in the cases of seventeen tenants and the landlord of 1,483-1,485 Hoe Avenue, the Bronx. The landlord consented to give the tenants leases for a year, to make repairs, and in some cases to grant a slight reduction in rent.

It was announced that at a meeting of the interborough delegates of the Community Councils of National Defense, it was decided to appoint a committee to co-operate with the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering. There are in operation eighty-two Community Councils in the city and local committees will be appointed to obtain evidence of rent profiteering and report the cases to the Mayor's Committee.

Legislative Inquiry on Friday.

The State Legislative Committee which was appointed to study the housing and rent situation will meet on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the City Hall instead of tomorrow, as had been previously announced. Senator C. C. Lockwood is Chairman. At the meeting the present situation will be laid before the committee by Mayor Hylan, Nathan Hirsch of the Mayor's Committee, and by a representative of the State Reconstruction Committee. The members of the State committee are Senators Lockwood, Abeles, Dunnigan, Kaplan, and Carson, and Assemblymen McWhimnney, Caulfield, Hammill, Miller, and Mrs. Sammis.

Philip Rubin, who said he was landlord of 615 and 617 Watkins Avenue, Brooklyn, complained to the Mayor's Committee yesterday that the tenants in his houses had threatened his life because he had increased their rent $1 a month. He made an affidavit stating that his receipts for the last year were $1,750 and his expenditures $2,043, asserting that he had increased the rent in order to cover his expenses. The Mayor's Committee invited representatives of the tenants to appear today.

Acting for the Mayor's Committee, Captain C. A. Goldsmith arbitrated the cases of tenants on strike in three houses in Brownsville, who refused to pay rent because they felt the increases were unjustified. The settlements effected were at 331 Hinsdale Street, where twenty-three families were on strike; 534 and 540 Powell Street, containing thirty-four families, and 2,044 Berger Street, with twenty-two families. The landlords consented to raise the rents no more than $1 to $2.

Although Municipal Justice William Morris in the Bronx had given fifty tenants on a rent strike in the houses at 632-634-636 East 136th Street until yesterday to pay their rent or move, he refused to sign eviction warrants against them when City Marshal Jaffe presented them. He said he would not sign until he received affidavits that none of the tenants was dependent on any one in the military service for support.

Wait to Be Put Out.

The houses in question are those in which fifty tenants went on strike in April, when one of their number was dispossessed, but decided later to pay their rent. Later they went on strike again when five of the leaders in the first strike were served with dispossess notices. The cases of the five have not yet been settled. The tenants have packed their household goods and are ready to move, but refuse to do so until they are put out, thus entailing some expenditures by the landlord.

When Justice Morris refused to sign the eviction warrants, H. Bennett Solomon, counsel for the lessor, threatened to institute mandamus proceedings to compel him to sign. Meanwhile the City Marshal is busy attempting to obtain the affidavits demanded.

Compromises by which the tenants agreed to pay half the increases demanded by the landlords were effected before Justice Scanlan in Part II. of the Bronx Municipal Court yesterday. The cases were those of seventeen tenants in the apartment house, 1,121 Tinton Avenue, and twenty-five tenants at 2,419 Hoffman Street.

Twenty tenants in the apartment, 3,810 Park Avenue, who complained that their rent was raised from $18 to $21 in 1918 and since then had been increased to $35, were given until Saturday by Justice Scanlan to pay the increase or move. The Selmord Stanhodge Realty Company is the landlord.

Captain Goldsmith of the Mayor's Committee will meet a tenants' committee from two Brownsville apartment houses at 10 o'clock today in an endeavor to settle the dispute. The tenants of eighty apartments refuse to pay rent unless the increases demanded are reduced.

JEWS APPEAL TO WILSON.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 13.—The United States Grand Lodge, Order of B'rith Abraham, in annual convention here today, sent a cable message to President Wilson asking him to appeal to the new Polish Government to use energetic efforts to prevent massacres of Jews in that land.

The convention adopted a resolution of sympathy for the Zionist movement. Grand Master Samuel Dorf said it was a mistake to urge Jews to return to Palestine except those who desired to emigrate from States where they are persecuted. He did not think the Palestine Jews wanted self-government until they had populated the territory and decided upon what political rights they believed they should have and also what form of Government. To impose a Government on them from outside he believed would be a mistake. First he wanted to see the Jews in Palestine, and after that the question of method of Government could be better acted upon.

Mr. Dorf was elected head of the organization today over Alexander Katsky of Brooklyn, who headed the Insurgent ticket. Mr. Dorf yesterday announced that he would not stand for re-election after twenty-seven years of service, but his decision was overruled.

COPELAND ASSAILS STATE DRUG BODY

WAYS TO GET DRUGS

Cites Four Sources Through Which Addicts Can Multiply Their Supply.

In writing yesterday to Corporation Counsel William P. Burr on the drug situation in this city, Health Commissioner Dr. Royal S. Copeland declared that the Health Department is powerless because the Legislature took away much of its power when it created the State Commission on Narcotic Drug Control. Having this power, he charged, the State Commission will not use it. The Health Commissioner wrote to Mr. Burr in his efforts to get a legal ruling on what constitutes a drug addict and asked for an opinion on the legality of a proposed amendment to the Sanitary Code designed to regulate the dispensation of drugs to addicts.

"At present," wrote Dr. Copeland, "there are accessible to the addict four possible sources of narcotic drug supply—the Department of Health clinic, the honest physician, the dishonest physician and druggist, and the 'boot-legger.' Without some method of control there is nothing to prevent the addict from getting fifteen grains of morphine from the Department of Health clinic, fifteen grains from some honest physician who is ignorant of the fact that the patient is under treatment by the Department of Health, a further supply from the dishonest physician, and an unlimited amount from the boot-legger. So far as the dishonest physician and the boot-legger are concerned, of course we can have no control. It must be left to the Federal authorities and to the Police Department to ferret out the unlawful practitioner and the unlawful dispenser of narcotic drugs, but it will be simple, indeed, to prevent duplication of prescribing on the part of the Department of Health and the honest physician. A system of registration and identification will preclude the possibility of such duplication.

"Before any registration can be put into effect it is necessary, of course, that drug addiction should be defined.

"With drug addiction defined the drug addict should be required to register with the Department of Health, where he would receive a card to serve as his identification before the physician who is to prescribe for him."

Lee Clough

Master Solid Tire Builder of America

Why I Joined the Mason Organization

FOR seventeen years my work has been solid tire development. I helped build up the solid tire departments of three of the largest tire companies of the world, and then joined the Mason Tire & Rubber Company for the following reasons:

First: The live, aggressive, experienced tire men of the Mason Organization had built up a highly successful business, on pneumatic tires, mainly because of their policy of building more mileage into their tires regardless of cost.

Second: The Company was just beginning the manufacture of solid tires, and were free from precedent. They gave me free hand to build what my seventeen years previous experience had taught me to be the most advanced solid tire of the present time.

I pledge to all motor truck owners that Mason Solid Tires are the most scientifically and correctly designed, and to my knowledge the best solid tires made.

Very truly yours

Lee Clough

Why We Added Lee Clough To Our Organization

WHEN we decided to build solid tires we went after the man who had made the biggest success of solid tire building. Our policy of building more mileage into our pneumatic tires regardless of cost was adopted for this new line.

MR. LEE CLOUGH is the pioneer of solid tire building. His seventeen-year record in this work convinced us that he is the best authority upon solid tires and their development.

Mr. Clough with his staff of experts has developed the Mason Solid Tire—a truck tire of scientifically correct composition and design.

Already Mason Solid Tires are winning phenomenal success. They are proving their economy both in greater mileage and in that great resiliency which saves gas and protects trucks from wear and tear.

$176,166,065 LOSS IN RAIL OPERATION

MARCH INCOME $14,095,822

Railroad Administration Says Revenue Rose 2.9 Per Cent., While Traffic Fell 13 Per Cent.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13. — Figures made public tonight by the operating statistics section of the Railroad Administration, covering completely the financial results of the operation for the month of March on all the large railroads in Federal control, show that the net Federal income during March was only $14,095,822 and that the operating loss on the railroads during the first three months of the present year was $176,166,065. During the first three months of 1918 the net operating loss of railroads was $146,462,329. The operating loss during the first quarter of 1919 is, therefore, $29,703,736 greater than in the first quarter of 1918.

The figures given out tonight cover 231,466 miles of road out of a total of 240,944 miles actually operated by Federal control, and comprise 96 per cent. of the mileage and 98 per cent. of the revenues.

Taxes, rents, &c....	15,272,048	18,287,109
Operating ratio.....	92.9	77.3

While the operating revenues were $10,466,751 greater in March, 1919, than in March, 1918, the operating expenses were $63,104,894 greater in March of the present year. The ratio of increase in operating revenues was 2.9, but the jump in operating expenses was 22.6.

Say Troops Increased Travel.

The Railroad Administration in a statement issued tonight said:

"Inasmuch as present rates are about 25 per cent. higher than they were last year, the increase in operating revenues of only 2.9 per cent. means that total traffic has fallen off approximately 13 per cent. The falling off in freight traffic alone has exceeded this figure, as can be seen from the freight train statistics given below.

"This has been partially counterbalanced by a small increase in passenger travel due to the demobilization of troops, but the passenger returns are not yet complete enough to give out any figures for March. The freight business shows a slight increase over last month, but this is not as large as is usual at this time of year under normal industrial conditions.

"Comparison with 1918 is difficult because the increased rates were not in effect in March, 1918, and the increased wages for March, 1918, were not charged into operating expenses until subsequent months.

"The expenses for March, 1918, do not include the increases in wages allowed by the Director General of Railroads in May, 1918, and subsequently in that year, and retroactive to Jan. 1, 1918. It is estimated about $40,000,000 of such back pay was applicable to March, 1918.

"The expenses for March, 1919, include about $5,300,000 back pay applicable to prior months, but do not include the increases recently granted to the enginemen and trainmen and the dining car employes, which, it is estimated, will amount to about $6,000,000 per month."

Interstate Commission's Showing.

Figures published by the Bureau of Statistics of the Interstate Commerce Commission covering 232,816 miles of road, of which a small proportion is not in Federal operation, showed that the net operating income was $10,842,608, or $51,914,198 lower than in March, 1918. (89th.) Riverside 9463.

Heavy Traffic Loss After War.

"The freight train performance of March, 1919," asserted the official explanation, "does not compare favorably with last year, because of the severe loss in the volume of traffic, which made it difficult to maintain the trainload and carload to the higher averages which were possible while the abnormal conditions due to the war created a large volume of additional traffic, much of which was of a nature which tended to increase both the carload and the trainload.

"The heavy loss this year in coal traffic adversely affected both the average trainload and the average carload. In view of the heavy loss in traffic the slight decreases in the trainload and carload indicate close attention to this important feature of operation.

"The summary of passenger train performance for March, 1919, shows a decrease of 1.4 per cent. in passenger train miles compared with March, 1918, with an increase of 0.2 per cent. in passenger train car miles. The average cars per train were 6.2 this year, against 6.1 last year."

The figures for the three months period ended March 31, 1919, show that while the operating revenues increased $181,210,466 during the first three months of this year the operating expenses increased 26.6 per cent., or 213,767,608, as compared with last year. The showing follows:

RULES ON MEDICINE TAX.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Regulations governing the collection of excise taxes on toilet and medicinal articles have been issued by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The tax, which is on the consumer, is 1 cent for each 25 cents or fraction thereof of the amount paid for such articles.

The tax is collected by means of stamps which may be obtained at offices of Collectors of Internal Revenue. The stamps are furnished in denominations of 1 cent, 2 cents, 3 cents, 4 cents, 5 cents, 8 cents, 10 cents, 20 cents, and 40 cents. Dealers, after determining the selling price of the article, are required to affix thereto stamps of the proper denomination showing the correct amount of the tax.

The tax applies to patent medicines and the following toilet articles: Perfumes, essences, extracts, toilet waters, cosmetics, petroleum jellies, hair oils, pomades, hair dressings, hair restoratives, hair dyes, tooth pastes, tooth and mouth washes, dentifrices, aromatic cachous, toilet powders, (other than soap powders,) or any similar substance, article, or preparation.

Telegrams urging the repeal of the luxury tax when Congress convenes next Monday were sent yesterday to Senator Penrose and Representative Fordney, by the National Retail Dry Goods Association. To Senator Penrose the telegram expressed thanks for the stand he has already taken for the repeal of the tax, and assures him the members of the association know that the public is opposed to the burden. In conclusion the telegram read:

"May we urge the repeal resolution be introduced at the first possible moment and pressed to favorable action so that public and merchants may have speedy relief from the burden of these unwise taxes."

WAR RISK BUREAU NOTICE.

Particulars Must Accompany All Remittances—2,119 Unidentified.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Announcement was made tonight that nearly $28,000 in unidentified remittances are held by the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, representing 2,119 remittances received without sufficient information to indicate for what purpose the payment is made. Many of the remittances are for insurance premiums, but are not accompanied by sufficient information to warrant the bureau in issuing a receipt.

Hundreds of remittances are received every day, in checks, money orders, bank drafts, currency, and even postage stamps. Each day there are some remittances which give no information as to what they are intended for. Often a letter arrives at the Bureau of War Risk Insurance containing a remittance and simply states "This is for my son John's insurance," and is signed "Mrs. John Smith." In instances of this kind the bureau places the remittance in the fund for unidentified remittances and proceeds to attempt to identify it.

Bank drafts are often received by the bureau which give no information as to the name of the sender or for what purpose the draft is sent. As a bank draft does not contain the name of the remitter it becomes necessary for the bureau to correspond with the bank drawing the draft in an attempt to ascertain the name of the purchaser of the draft. Often the bank is unable to furnish the address of the purchaser, and the bureau must pursue its search along other lines.

In order to facilitate the crediting of a remittance, all persons sending remittances to the bureau are urged to indicate fully for what purpose the remittance is intended. In paying insurance premiums the name of the insured man should be given, with his certificate number, his army serial number and the present address of the insured.

ARMY RELEASES STUDENTS.

Gen. March Says Few Will Remain When Colleges Open.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 13. — General Peyton C. March today issued a statement dealing with the discharge of college students from the army and the War Department's plans for facilitating their discharge. According to the statement it is General March's belief that there will be very few college students left in the army by the time the colleges open. General March also asserted that the War Department was doing its best to provide educational advantages to our soldiers during their stay overseas.

"While there will be no special discharge of college students as a class from the army," General March said, "it is believed that by the time colleges open there will remain a very small number of college students in the army.

"By retaining the men of the regular army not now entitled to discharge and securing recruits it is hoped that most men who entered the service for the emergency will be replaced by Sept. 1. It is not considered just to other soldiers to discriminate in favor of college students. The college men now overseas or any one in the A. E. F. desiring to take up any line of education have many opportunities of doing so. Over 200,000 officers and men of the A. E. F. are now taking some form of instruction while they are in the army."

It is understood that her suicide was the result of an attack of neurasthenia.

SAYS HE CAN PROVE FORD AN ANARCHIST

JURY IS STILL INCOMPLETE

Judge Tucker Summons Twelve More Talesmen to be Interrogated This Morning.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., May 13.—"We are here to prove that Henry Ford is an anarchist. And we are going to prove it," retorted Elliott G. Stevenson of counsel for The Chicago Tribune today in Circuit Court when Alfred Lucking of Ford's counsel challenged his right to place before the jury any definition of the word "anarchist" during his examination of jurors in the $1,000,000 Ford-Tribune libel suit. Mr. Stevenson's success in getting before the jury a hint of just what definition of the word "anarchist" was in the mind of the writer of The Tribune editorial to which Mr. Ford took exception was a strong point for counsel for The Tribune, especially as it was entirely unexpected by the Ford attorneys.

The instant Mr. Stevenson began to discuss definitions, Mr. Lucking interposed objections to what he termed improper action on the part of opposing counsel. Alfred J. Murphy of Ford counsel also objected, but after the fireworks Judge Tucker ruled against Ford counsel.

Up to this period there had been little action in the examination of the jurors, and Ford counsel had apparently passed the jury at 11 o'clock. Then Mr. Stevenson took the floor for Tribune counsel, but before beginning the individual examinations stated that he wished to show what was desired in the examination of the jurors.

To best accomplish this, he said, it would be necessary that the jury understand what character of definition was given to the term "anarchist" in this particular case, and, further, to make it clear that in the editorial being considered as cause for suit, Mr. Ford was not regarded as a bomb-throwing anarchist, nor one who desired to overturn the Government.

Ford's Council Objects.

At this juncture Mr. Lucking literally leaped to his feet with: "This matter should not be argued before the jury, if your Honor please."

Mr. Stevenson—I am not going to argue it. I am simply stating our position in order that I may ask the jury if they have any decided views, just as you asked them if they were anarchists or not.

Mr. Lucking—It seems to me that counsel is going a little beyond what is the rule, perhaps considerably beyond. I think it should be limited to a statement of fact.

Mr. Stevenson—I am almost through, Mr. Lucking. I just wish to call the attention of the Court——

Judge Tucker—Go ahead, Mr. Stevenson.

Mr. Stevenson—To recognize the definition of anarchists so that I may proceed with the inquiry as to whether the jury would have any bias against the defendant for using the expression I have read to you in the editorial.

Counsel then opened Volume 194, United States Supreme Court cases, and read definitions of anarchy and anarchist.

He stated that they were not definitions made by the Supreme Court, but recognized and approved by the court in the cases in question.

Before Mr. Stevenson could read, Mr. Murphy objected.

Having placed before the jury the definition of anarchist as The Tribune editorial writer is assumed to have regarded it, Mr. Stevenson proceeded with the examination of jurors. He then built up a case before the talesmen, beginning with the instance of a court which was crippled in enforcing its orders because somebody sought to interfere with the work of the Sheriff. From this he progressed to a situation like that which existed on the Mexican border in 1916.

Mr. Stevenson extended his picture to the international complications and the loss of life by submarine warfare at the time of our entering the war. "Any one who would advocate crippling the Government in its power to protect itself in such a situation might properly be called an anarchist, might he not?" he asked.

"And if The Chicago Tribune was convinced that if Henry Ford spent millions to prevent military preparedness when the Government was about to protect the interest of its robbed, murdered, or ravished citizens on the Mexican border, he was deserving of the term anarchist, as they saw it, would you give them a fair trial? Would you feel able to sustain them if they proved themselves right?"

The answer was in the affirmative.

Summons Twelve More Talesmen.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., May 13, (Associated Press.)—More talesmen from which to select a jury in the libel suit of Henry Ford against The Chicago Daily Tribune were summoned by Judge Tucker tonight. The twelve men who occupied the jury box today and submitted to exhaustive interrogation as to fitness as jurors by counsel for both sides are still subject to challenge for cause, and also to peremptory challenge. Some of them will be dropped tomorrow, it was predicted.

In the morning session counsel for the Solomon News Company, co-defendants, introduced a motion to change their plea, but hearing on it went over until today.

The Solomon News Company, composed of Sam, Max, and Henry Solomon, became codefendants by reason of having distributed copies of The Tribune of June 23, 1916, containing the alleged libel.

The Solomons in their original plea stated they circulated The Tribune of June 23 in ignorance of its contents. The motion presented today was designed to add the plea of justification, and said, "the facts, expressly and impliedly stated, contained in the article declared upon are true in substance and in fact, the opinions, deductions, inferences, criticisms, and comments based upon said facts are fair comment thereupon, concern a matter of great public interest, danger, and discussion and were published in good faith, without malice and for a proper purpose."

Judge Tucker said he thought it unwise to alter the plea at this time, as it might necessitate two separate lines of proof. The motion was overruled and the examination of prospective jurors was taken up again.

R. R. McCormick, President of the Tribune Company, was in court most of the day, but Mr. Ford did not put in an appearance.

Clifford Raymond, who wrote the alleged libelous editorial, which was headed "Ford Is an Anarchist," and Floyd Gibbons, a correspondent of The Tribune, who is expected to testify to conditions as he found them on the Mexican border three years ago, arrived from Chicago.

THE SCREEN

A screen tragedy—not a movie melodrama with an unhappy ending—but a sincere, human tragedy—that is what D. W. Griffith has had the courage and the capacity to produce in "Broken Blossoms," which opened his repertory season at the George M. Cohan Theatre last night. Mr. Griffith chose a tragic story of impossible love, love impossible in this world of passions and prejudices and brutal forces; he absorbed it in its full meaning, recast it in his mind pictorially, translated it from the written words of the author into the scenes and action of a photoplay, added what was needed to make it live in pictures, left out what pictures could not have adequately expressed—and "Broken Blossoms" came to the screen, a masterpiece in moving pictures.

The original story is "The Chink and the Child" in Thomas Burke's "Limehouse Nights." The chink is far away from his native land, living in London, a dreamer and a poet lost in the Western Chinese quarter. The child is a girl, the daughter of a cockney pugilist, who makes her his punching bag when his temper and liquor control him, which is most of the time. The chink sees the beauty of the child, but always from a distance, until one day, when the pugilist has beaten her more unmercifully than usual, she staggers through the streets and falls in the Chinaman's door. He takes her up, bathes her wounds, and places her as a princess in his room. He robes her in silk, surrounds her with flowers, burns incense at her feet—and worships her. And for the first time in her life she smiles.

But some one tells the pugilist and he discovers family honor. His child with a dirty chink! He'll "learn" them both. And he does. He smashes the temple that the poet from China has built—and all three, the pugilist, the girl, and the poet, go down in the crash. It was inevitable from the beginning.

This bare narration of the story cannot hope even to suggest the power and truth of the tragedy that Mr. Griffith has pictured. All of his mastery of picture-making, the technique that is preeminently his by invention and control, the skill and subtlety with which he can unfold a story—all of the Griffith ability has gone into the making of "Broken Blossoms." Many of the pictures surpass anything hitherto seen on the screen in beauty and dramatic force. The whole is a photoplay that cannot fail to impress anyone who looks at it in any mood short of the most resolute hostility.

But though the photoplay is distinctly Mr. Griffith's achievement, it is not his alone. A number of unnamed persons must have contributed to it, in addition to the cast—and the cast was triumphantly equal to everything Mr. Griffith could expect. Leading all is Lillian Gish. Miss Gish has repeatedly, in varying rôles, proved her superior talent as a screen actress, but she has never been as human and at the same time as accomplished as in the character of the child.

The rôle is so difficult as to be beyond the reach of almost any actress whose name comes to mind, but it was within Miss Gish's grasp. She was such a child as the poor little delicate blossom must have been. Donald Crisp was violently realistic as the pugilist, Richard Barthelmess was a sensitive, convincing yellow man, and Edward Peil, as a Chinese of another character, made an impressive contrast.

The overture and orchestral accompaniment of the picture, described as themetic, and including original compositions by Mr. Griffith and Louis F. Gottschalk, heightened the effect of the photoplay, and the production was further enhanced by the suggestive decorations of the theatre.

The spectators, among whom were many well known persons, applauded enthusiastically after the presentation and refused to leave until Mr. Griffith had answered their calls for his appearance on the stage.

NEW HOME FOR ADELPHI.

A new and greatly enlarged Adelphi College is being planned by the Trustees. It is proposed to establish the college, which is now at St. James Place and Clifton Place, Brooklyn, on another and larger site at a cost of nearly $1,000,000. As a first step a tract bounded by Washington Avenue, Carroll Street, President Street, and the Brighton Beach Railroad cut is to be purchased.

The site is opposite to the Brooklyn Botanical Garden. It is owned by Frederic B. Pratt, who has offered it to the college at a price which is considered to be about half its market value.

It is proposed to raise the funds needed for the erection of the buildings by subscription. Tentative plans for the college structures have been prepared by McKim, Mead & White. According to the present plans, the main building will cost about $750,000. Accommodations for 1,200 students are to be provided.

Bert Leslie Sent to Ward's Island.

Bert Leslie, well known as a comedian, playing for many years in musical comedy, but recently appearing in vaudeville, was removed yesterday from the observation ward at Bellevue Hospital to the Manhattan State Hospital, on Ward's Island. Leslie was taken to Bellevue early on the morning of May 2 by a patrolman from the Fifth Street Station, who found him wandering around aimlessly and unable to give a connected account of himself. He is 45 years old and his home is at 7 Portland Place, Brighton Heights, Staten Island.

LAW AND BUSINESS.

When the Industrial Board wandered into politics and imputed political motives to those who differed from it, it prejudiced its case, already lost. That is a closed issue, but it ought not to be closed in such a manner as to obscure the merits of larger issues. That would seem to be the result of the Attorney General's lawyerlike opinion that reasonable trade agreements are obnoxious to the law because they are "unauthorized," and that the only way to make them legal is by application to Congress. The Supreme Court said the same thing and reconsidered its opinion. Perhaps in time the Department of Justice also will discover the rule of reason. The price-fixing fiasco at least serves the purpose of calling attention to the fact that the Attorney General holds his own quasi court and follows the precedents of his predecessors rather than the rulings of the courts.

There are points well taken in the Attorney General's opinion, but also points about which there are doubts among business men, whatever lawyers and Judges may think about them. If the Attorney General found price-fixing unlawful it was his duty to see that the law was enforced. But it will be unwelcome to business to learn that it can only do what is specifically authorized by statute, and that there is power in statutes to compel competition. Hitherto it has been lawful to do whatever was not forbidden, and the compulsion of competition has been recognized as something beyond the power of law to enforce. The theory of the Sherman law is that competition shall not be killed by conspiracy in restraint of trade, but it does not compel competition by those who prefer not to do business on unacceptable terms. The compulsion of competition rests upon statutes requiring that Government purchasing shall be done by competitive bids on advertisement, "except in cases of public exigency." The Attorney General does not rule upon the exigency, but annuls the agreement upon reasonable prices because of his dissent from the "assumption that the readjustment of prices to a peace business can be accomplished better by artificial action than through the operation of the natural laws of trade."

That is a lawyer's opinion on a point of business judgment, respecting which he is in conflict with business opinion as much as he seems to be with the Supreme Court on law. At the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce, which has just adjourned, it was resolved that "the very essence of civilization is that there be placed upon the individual only that degree of restraint which shall prevent his encroachment upon the rights of others, thus releasing to the utmost individual initiative in every proper direction." The agreement upon fair prices by the iron trade is an example of individual initiative in cooperation with the Government for a purpose deemed by both to be just and beneficial to both and in the general interest. The Attorney General rules against it because he has a different opinion as to how prices should be reduced from an artificial and temporary high figure. Thus he blocks not only this plan, but all plans by which the Government and men of business might co-operate with freedom of initiative. If he had prosecuted and won his case there could be no objection. The Department of Justice has lost more cases than it has won on questions of business policy, and it is going outside the statutes when it takes a position on price-fixing by agreement which is merely "unauthorized." If it is not forbidden the Department of Justice has no concern with it, unless the Government is to command what shall be done as well as what shall not be done.

The Attorney General is right in requiring that Government purchasing shall be done in a particular manner, for that is a Government rule prescribed by the Government. The statutes, however, do not require that the bids shall differ. If the bids for rails which the Director General is asking shall agree at the level which the Industrial Board and Federal Trade Commission have found fair, what shall be done about it? Shall the railways go without rails until some way is found to make the bids differ? Or, if the bids shall differ upward from the fair basis, will the position of the price fixers or that of the price unfixers be shown more reasonable and beneficial? How much further and longer is it desirable to carry the effort to compel business to conduct itself in a Government strait-jacket rather than in the reasonable freedom justified by the practice of the trade conscience and upheld repeatedly in extreme cases selected for the opinion of juries, grand and petit?

FOR AN EARLY CONGRESS.

If Representative McArthur's bill to advance the meeting of Congress to March 5 is merely his own, brought forward without consultation with the party leaders, then the party leaders cannot too soon make it their own. If he is putting it forward in their behalf, then he and they deserve equal credit. It is a reform which has been crying out for adoption for more than half a century.

Congress—no longer merely the House of Representatives, but Congress, so far as one-third of the Senate may give it that title—is elected in November of the even-numbered years. But it may not take its seat until December of the next odd-numbered year. It is, then, thirteen months after the election of Congress before it can meet, or can be existent at all, except as concerns the drawing of salaries. This ancient rule was adopted in a day when it might take many weeks for a Congressman to get to Washington, over swollen rivers and through unmapped woods and by blazed trails. It is an anomaly in the day of railroads. It was hardly excusable even in the days of the wagon trail, for there were few States west of the Mississippi then and only one west of the Missouri.

The will of the people, expressed at the polls in 1920, cannot take effect until December of 1921, unless the President sees fit to call Congress in extraordinary session. President Wilson has generally done just that; but there will be other Presidents, and why should the welfare of the nation be made dependent on their will?

Why has this reform never been adopted? It has been proposed in Congress many times, but each time it has been loaded down with amendments, some changing the date of the President's inauguration, some bringing the new Congress into being at a date which would cut into the salaries of sitting Representatives, and so on; and because of the amendments chiefly, not because of the principle, it has always been rejected. As for the principle, everybody is in favor of it, it has no enemies.

A DAY WITH BOLSHEVIKI.

How would our amateur Bolsheviki of the boudoir and the superior "intellectual" periodical like to see the sweet dreams of the gods of their idolatry realized here in New York? How comfortable and sympathetic would they feel if the jails of New York had been emptied, the "gunmen" and other criminals, the leaders of "gangs," the I. W. W., all the disorderly and dangerous parts of the community, released from the fear of the law and from the restraints of punishment, let loose and united to work their will or their revenge upon the decent, law-abiding, and productive elements of the population? How would they like to see a minority terrorize the majority? How would they like to see here that gospel of hate which is the foundation of Karl Marx's doctrine put into practice by savage violences and massacres unspeakable?

Look, for example, at the characteristic Bolshevist procedures at Munich described in yesterday's Times. In the courtyard of the Luitpold High School certain persons guilty of being respectable or intelligent or rich or distinguished have been held as hostages by the Bolsheviki. As an agreeable antepast to the banquet prepared for them, these hostages are marched into the courtyard to see two Prussian soldiers shot. After this spectacle one Willy Hausmann, 23, captain of the Bolshevist executioners, tells the hostages, between puffs of his cigarette, that they are to be shot in the afternoon. One sees Willy distinctly. He is common enough in every great city. He is of the criminal, a familiar criminal, type. He stands on many corners. He guzzles in the backroom of many boozing-kens. He and his brother gangsters are as careless with their "guns" as with other people's property. A hopeful youth, on his way to a long term of the electric chair. The criminal has become the executioner. There is no law but the "gun." Guilt exacts the penalty from guiltlessness.

Four o'clock P. M. The hostages are in the classroom, waiting for their death. The schoolhouse bell tells them the hour has come. Willy appears. The order from his Bolshevist authority is to shoot the prisoners, "but first pick out the best." This appeals to Willy's sense of humor. He lights a cigarette. He runs an elaborately dirty finger over the list. Where his finger pauses he makes a red mark with a pencil. Selective Bolshevist justice has marked the names of seven men and one woman. The Countess Westarp was guilty of being a Countess. Professor Berger, artist and scholar, is shot, amid jovial appeals from the firing squad, "Hurry up, grandpa!" Baron Seidlitz, landscape painter, is shot. He broke down. "I've never harmed any one. Why do you kill women?" He had cried. The young Prince of Thurn and Taxis, a family rather more ancient than Noah, is shot on general principles. He was not the Thurn and Taxis wanted, but one does as well as another, and he was on Willy's list. Before the murders began, some of the murderers capered gayly to the music of a mouth organ. The executions were treated as a show. It was an enjoyable day for the gang and Willy Hausmann and the sacred cause of Bolshevism. How would our boudoir Bolsheviki and sympathetic Reds of the intelligenzia enjoy an afternoon of that sort? The intelligenzia is not a good life-insurance risk wherever the gospel of Marx and social hatred is carried out by the Willy Hausmanns. The sinister figures that set up and manage this theatre of slaughter are everywhere and always an oligarchy or autocracy. As Secretary of Labor Wilson, whose department has steadily fought the I. W. W. and all the sister furies of Bolshevism, says:

> Bolshevism means the autocracy of the few. They even speak of it being an autocracy of the proletariat. It is not that. The proletariat is not even considered. A few set themselves up as a self-appointed advance guard, and permit only themselves to participate in the affairs of Government. These few undertake to rule all the rest, on the same theory that the Czar and the Kaiser undertook to rule, on the assumption of superior knowledge of the needs of the workers. Therefore, they say, the worker must obey them.

That is the Bolshevist polity. The Bolshevist practice has flowered in multitudinous savagery. The Munich specimen is only the most miniature of editions of the Bolshevist book of terror. Small as it is comparatively, does it content our sighing amateurs of the drawing room, our young sages of superior journalism? Do they really want it here? Would they like to have our copious collection of Willy Hausmanns thinning out our bourgeoisie and intelligenzia?

YOUNG COLONELS.

Chief Judge Willard Bartlett of the Court of Appeals, in answer to a correspondent of The Times who asked whether there was any other instance than that of a friend of his who reached the high rank of Lieutenant Colonel at 26, replies that his predecessor in office, Chief Judge Edgar M. Cullen, was commissioned Colonel of the Twenty-sixth New York Infantry in 1863 when he was less than 20. For that matter, at the same age at which our correspondent's friend reached his Lieutenant Colonelcy—26—Nelson A. Miles was a Major General in command of a division; and Miles had reached his Lieutenant Colonelcy at the age of 24.

The instances of youthful Colonels and Generals are so numerous that it would take a column of The Times to mention the most conspicuous; but Miles's case was peculiar, because he not only became a Major General at the time of life when most soldiers are glad to be Second Lieutenants, but played a large and brilliant part in the campaign that ended the civil war.

EBERT FINDS US WANTING.

President Ebert of the German Reich honors the American people by addressing to them a statement on the peace treaty. He calls it a monstrous document. He tells us that Germany lifts up the discarded banner of President Wilson, blazoned with the Fourteen Points. He says that the young German Republic has weighed the American Republic and found it wanting.

Not much disturbance is likely to be made by this "appeal." Aside from Ebert's language, which suggests that his statement was written for him by Count Reventlow, few Americans are going to be deeply distressed by being found wanting in willingness to help Germany evade the penalty of her crimes. But until the treaty is signed we may expect more of these German appeals, more craftily prepared and more plausible. America, it is quite evident, is the Germans' last hope.

We know, if they do not, that that hope is vain. The appeals of Ebert and his associates will fail for the same reasons that Germany's appeal for sympathy failed in the beginning of the war, because the truth is not in them. The Germans told us then that they were not responsible for the war, that they were fighting only to save themselves from annihilation by envious neighbors; they say now that the peace terms are unjust and impossible. They speak falsely now, as they spoke falsely then.

They convinced some Americans then; they will convince fewer Americans now. They will convince a few—a very few—of German blood who have not realized that men of German ancestry who have lived in this country half a century are truly a different race from those who stayed behind under the Hohenzollerns. They will convince those Americans whose hatred for England is so strong that they will do anything to hurt her. They will convince the professional revolutionists, who will seize any chance to try to upset democratic government everywhere. They will convince half-baked "intellectuals" who were afraid of the moral and intellectual effort required by the war, and are equally afraid of the trouble of thinking right and the effort of sticking to it in making peace.

But these same persons were won by the German appeals from the beginning. They were the ones who cried for neutrality, who denied atrocities, who attacked the Allies. Germany relied on them to keep us out of war as Ebert relies on them now; and the American effort of 1917 and 1918 showed how little they were worth. They could not stop the irresistible majority of the American people; they could not hamper our participation in the war; and they will be of no use to the Germans in the effort to make a German peace.

ALLIED AIR CONTROL.

When the Paris Matin says that "the air should belong to the League of Nations," its meaning is that the League should control the air, as it intends to control the sea, in order to prevent or to stop war. The Matin contends that "the Allies must remain masters of the air until Germany gives pledges of repentance and pacifism," which conceivably would not be enough. Is it a fantastic idea that the Germans, with fast and powerful airplanes in their possession, could cross the French frontier, or even the Channel to England, and in a few hours commit acts of war, by destroying arsenals, munition stores, munition plants, and railway junctions, that would give them in a long-planned conflict an advantage that might prove decisive? Strategic points could be seized by bodies of troops carried through the air, to be followed by supporting columns strong enough to deal with hastily assembled forces. It must be considered that invention will produce larger and swifter airplanes than any now known. Observers in the great war, including officers of high rank, have maintained that the next struggle between nations will be decided in the air, by battles fought there as well as by devastation wrought on the earth from the air.

But it will be said that the Peace Treaty, in Section VI., has declared that "the armed forces of Germany must not include any military or naval air forces, except for not over 100 unarmed seaplanes to be retained till Oct. 1 to search for submarine mines." Dirigibles are to go, too; and no aircraft or parts of aircraft are to be manufactured for six months. As the Matin says, "We cannot pretend to exclude Germany from the great currents of air traffic which in a quarter of a century will traverse the world." Germany is to be allowed to construct airplanes for trade uses. Some of them will be of great size, with a radius of hundreds, perhaps thousands, of miles. Vast numbers of them could be built for commerce but intended for war. Bombing attachments and machine guns could easily be installed.

How could Germany be prevented from building as many great airplanes for carrying her products as she pleased? If she were to construct hundreds when other nations were turning out tens or twenties there would be cause for alarm; and yet the reply to anxious inquirers could well be that the great German fleets were to be used only in trade. There is in Section VI. a provision limiting Germany in the production of war material to a sufficiency for the small army and navy establishments allowed her, but as time goes on it will become more and more difficult to enforce this provision. Explosives, for instance, are easily made in secret.

What, then, is to be done to avert a danger to the peace of the world that cannot be dismissed as visionary? Desire for a war of revenge will rankle in many German hearts, and politicians and military men will conspire to renew the struggle with France and England, even though Germany is admitted to the League of Nations when, after a period of probation, it gives "effective guarantees of its sincere intention to observe its international obligations," to quote from Article I. of the Covenant of the League of Nations. While the Covenant was born of ideals, it recognizes, in Article XVI., the possibility of insubordination and warfare by one of its members against the others. The Council is to recommend what military measures shall be taken against the offender, but in a few days what havoc he might do unexpectedly from the air with a great fleet of planes! The small navy allowed Germany could not be expanded into a great armada without detection, but apparently no watching, no precautions, would avail to prevent the filling of the air with warplanes that had been masquerading as ships of peace and commerce.

It is proposed by our French contemporary that the League of Nations charge itself with policing the air. Why not, if it polices the sea? Also that an international body be created "for the exploitation of the air, permitting Germany to participate only under its control." If this seems to be a difficult thing to contrive and enforce, the peril of permitting Germany to manufacture without limitation airplanes which could be turned into warplanes must point the way to a solution of the grave problem. Before the representatives of the Allies leave Paris they should find a way to control the air, as they have provided means to control the sea for peace and commerce.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

To Get in a Rage Unnecessarily. Quite unnecessary heat has been developed in the minds of people who have leaped from the announcement concerning the posting of certain traffic policemen on the Williamsburg and Manhattan bridges to the conclusion that the service expected of these policemen is to keep the roadways of the two bridges clear of vehicles, night and morning, from the time when the Mayor's car is expected until after it has passed. If that conclusion were true, the proceeding would be, indeed, one to make the country tremble for the safety of its justly celebrated institutions, and it would justify an immediate and serious raising of the question, "Whither are we drifting?" Fortunately the situation created by the Mayor's desire to reach his office on time in the morning and his home in the evening without the delay which has such disastrous effects on both the comestibility of dinners and the tempers of cooks is different.

What and all that the policemen on the bridges are to do in their newly assigned tour of duty is to see to it that no driver of a broad-beamed truck persists in remaining in the middle of the roadway and thereby so contracting the space on either side that the Mayor's car cannot pass. That, it seems, is the one intended effect of the new arrangement, and commentators who are as kindly and charitable as commentators on the acts of Mayors always ought to be will not have much trouble in finding colorable excuse for commending it as calculated to facilitate the movement of general traffic rather than for criticising it as the assumption of a special and rather lordly privilege by an official with no right to it in either law or custom.

Yet Critics Have Justification. Even, however, with the facts as to this bridge order clearly understood, there lingers in the mind a disquieting suspicion or fear that there is something wrong about it or at least unpleasant. That truckmen using the bridges should not take advantage of the strength and weight of their vehicles to delay and annoy other people is a truth beyond question, and no fault would be found—except possibly by truckmen—with the Mayor for taking effective measures to abate the familiar nuisance thus caused. But it is not obvious—it is the very reverse of obvious—why the abatement should be for the Mayor alone.

He holds a high and important position, of course, but it is perhaps less essential that he should always arrive at his office exactly when he wants to get there than that a good many other municipal officials and employes dealing oftener and more directly with the public than he does should be at their posts on time. On the other hand, that he should share occasionally the fate of other New Yorkers and reach home to find his dinner cold or burned, while calculated to elicit a commiserating "Too bad!" from his nearer relatives, is not a misfortune to make any very wide circle overflow with tears or tremble with horror.

The trouble with the Mayor's remedying of a real and general grievance is that he cures it only, or at least specifically, for himself, and leaves things as they were for his fellow-sufferers. That method is not quite democratic—not quite nice to contemplate—and it will be several days before the Mayor hears the last of it.

Misfortune Taxed as Luxurious. Whoever is looking for an excuse to repeat the ancient comparison of the law with the humblest relative of the horse can find it in a ruling just made by the Internal Revenue Department. That gold frames for eyeglasses and spectacles should have been classed among "luxuries" and taxed as such in the new Revenue act is rather absurd, for gold frames have certain practical superiorities over those of other material, and it is for that reason, not in pride or ostentation, that they are bought by those who like and can afford them. The absurdity, however, is a tolerable one, for it is a fact that frames not of gold will do well enough, and by some oculists are even advised as being almost as much better as they are uglier—which is saying a good deal for them.

But absurdity was carried grotesquely far by the revenue department when it decided that, in imposing the luxury tax on eyeglasses and spectacles, not only the frames but also the lenses were to be taken into account.

This ruling penalizes the unfortunate whose eyes require for the correction of their defects lenses of unusual and irregular curvatures—lenses, that is, which must be "made to order," and, consequently, are more than ordinarily expensive. Such lenses are a "luxury" just about as much as is an artificial leg or false teeth. They are almost necessary for existence and are quite necessary for comfortable and efficient existence—not infrequently for the earning of an honest living. To put a special tax on them is worse than absurd—it is imbecility with a touch of malice.

Seemingly All Clues Have Failed. Commissioner Enright, by announcing "for the information and guidance of all concerned" that a "substantial reward" will be paid to anybody in or out of the Police Department who will solve the mystery of the mailed bombs, in effect confesses that his detectives have failed in their attempt to discover the perpetrator or perpetrators of this particularly abominable crime.

There is nothing very surprising or humiliating in this admission, for the case undoubtedly was a difficult one, and success in dealing with it depended more, perhaps, on happy accident than on skill. A curious vagueness, however, marks the phrase "substantial reward," and it warrants the suspicion that it was used rather to put the criminal off his guard than to inspire professionals and amateurs to further effort. Certainly it will not have much effect in the way of leading accomplices to betray principals.

Why is it, by the way, that so little has been said, and so little, apparently, has been done, in regard to the wooden tubes that formed a peculiar and unusual feature of these bombs? Such tubes are not easy to make, and presumably they were not made by the maker of the bombs. If so, their common use is for something else and their source ought to be discoverable. As described, they were polished and carved and they would be neither if they had been manufactured merely to hold an explosive.

GERMANY'S WEALTH.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"The peace proposals mean Germany's ruin," whines Director Guttmann of the Dresden Bank. Certainly. Why not? What about the appalling ruin of property on land and water and the awful destruction of life the Allies have suffered at the hands of Germany during the four years of her mad carnival of blood and fire? And imagine, if you can, what her peace proposals would have been if she had won the war!

But let us see how much faith should be attached to these claims of insolvency made by squealing German bankers, manufacturers, and diplomats who are trying so hard to make the world believe that Germany's wealth has been overestimated.

In 1913 Herr Helfferich published a work—edition de luxe, it might be called, for it sold at the high price of 125 marks—that contained a careful study of the social and economic conditions of Germany. One special chapter in the book dealt with the national, public, and private wealth of the empire.

Now, Herr Helfferich is not the first comer. In his former capacity of Secretary of the Treasury and Director of the Deutsche Bank he may be presumed to know whereof he writes. No doubt he wishes today he had never written such a book; but how could any German's mind in 1913 foresee or even conceive the final catastrophe? Be that as it may, the Allies are grateful today to Herr Helfferich for the precious information he gave them. Information of this kind:

In 1886-1887 there were in Germany 2,143 stock companies, with a capital of 4,876,000,000 marks; in 1902, there were 5,186 companies, with 12,000,000,000 marks, and in 1911 the number of stock companies had increased to 5,340, with 16,000,000,000 marks.

The amount of money handled by financial concerns had increased thus: In 1890 deposits amounted to 1,400,000,000 marks, and in 1911 to 9,400,000,000.

Deposits in credit associations and societies for the production of manufactures increased from 600,000,000 marks to 3,000,000,000, and in savings banks from 4,550,000,000 marks to over 18,000,000,000 between the years 1887 and 1911.

But without entering into further enumerations, let it be stated at once that, according to Herr Helfferich's estimation, Germany's wealth in 1913 amounted in capital to over 410,000,000,000 francs, distributed thus:

Standing constructions.........	86,450,000,000
Mines..........................	7,410,000,000
Merchant vessels of all kinds..	7,410,000,000
Exported capital..............	24,700,000,000
Total.........................	410,020,000,000

Germany's annual revenue was estimated by Herr Helfferich at 50,000,000,000 francs, drawn from the following sources:

One-third of the national revenue corresponded with industrial revenues below 900 marks, that is to say with salaries; one-third with incomes from 900 to 3,000 marks, and one-third with incomes over 3,000 marks.

It was also estimated by the same writer that one-quarter of the total revenue, viz, 12,500,000,000 francs, was placed every year in reserve.

Such was the precious information the Director of the Deutsche Bank furnished the Kaiser in his 1913 report, and likewise furnished the Allies, who, you may be sure, took good note of it.

There was a time, and not so very long ago either, when Germany boasted of her great prosperity and of the wonderful development of her commerce and industries, and the boast was justified. Today, after her crushing defeat, she balks at paying for the fearful havoc she wrought, throws up her hands as on the battlefield, "Kamerad!" and whines that she is, or will be, ruined. Whose plaints are we going to listen to, the murderers' or their victims'? France alone counts 3,744,327 men, women, and children upon whom the Teutons wreaked their savagery.

Germany may consider herself lucky to be let off so easily, for she has not even been made to pay for the cost of the war she willfully brought on; nor has she been required to pay back the $1,000,000,000, plus interest for forty-eight years, of which she robbed France in 1871.

An end to all this camouflage! You have lost the game, Herr Guttmann; stop whining, and pay. Leben Sie wohl.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senator Borah is quoted as saying: "Our adoption of the covenant with Article X. in it would be treason." In support of this astonishing charge he adds: "Our men might be called upon to fight in wars in which this country would not have a particle of interest."

But this country cannot avoid having vastly more than "a particle of interest" in any imaginable war of the future, and our men could not possibly be called upon to fight unless both our representative in the League Council and our own Congress had so voted.

"Unless Article X. is taken out of the covenant," says Senator Borah, "the whole document ought to be rejected without further consideration."

In such a rejection we would abandon our loud and frequent pledges to help make the world safe for international decency. The Senator must know that further amendment of the covenant now is practically impossible. What he advises, therefore, is that we avoid "treason" by committing a nameless infamy of cowardice, hypocrisy, and desertion.

THE VIKINGS OF THE AIR.

On seas that stretched beyond their furthest ken,
And drank deep draughts of ocean's briny air
With keen delight, and sailed they knew not where,
So stand ye at the Atlantic's mist-bound shore,
Ready to leap into the buoyant air—
Ready to span, with wings outstretched on high,
The ocean turbulent, 'neath the wind-swept sky.
Faint not nor fear to risk the uncharted way
And taste the glories of the risen day.
Like you, we, too, into the unknown launch!
Each morn a misty vista doth unfold;

Statements of Germans While Germany Was Winning Accepted Responsibility for the War.

By JOHN QUINN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In his speech at the Peace Conference on May 7 Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau denied that the Germans were "the only ones guilty of the war," and asserted that "Germany and its people were convinced that they were making a war of defense."

In a book by Herr Thomas Mann, "Betrachtungen eines Unpolitischen," (Berlin, S. Fischer, 15 mk.,) he stated that the whole German nation was moved as one man in the war:

> The foreign peoples which seriously believed that the Germans were driven into war by their rulers, and were longing to be delivered from these "lords" by the armies of civilization, were taught better by a couple of months of warfare. They have learned long ago, every man of them, that in this war they have to do with Germany itself, with the people in its most comprehensive sense, and not with any of these imaginary "lords."

Then follows this very significant and uncompromising declaration:

> It is silly to try to deceive ourselves about the precise measure of the aggressiveness shown by the nation in demanding to be led as it was. We must not deny this aggressiveness. We must not pretend that the German people wanted nothing better than to be allowed to cultivate their cabbages in peace. We must not write, what I have read in so many words, that the prevailing emotion among us on the outbreak of war was one of "horror at the impending woes." We know better. * * * Not thus does a people arise, not thus does its youth rush millionfold, without a summons, to arms, when it really wants peace at any price and has been only seduced by crafty "lords" into deeds of wrong and violence. The world nation of the Spirit, now grown exuberant in its physical energy, had drunk a deep draught at the well of ambition—it desired, as God called it, to become also a world-nation, the world-nation, of the Real—even if this should be (as it manifestly could be no otherwise) by means of a violent outbreak. Had not Spain, France, England, had their portion and their hour of world glory? When the war was unloosed Germany believed fervently that hers was at hand, her hour of trial and of greatness. He lies who today says the contrary and prattles about "horror at the impending woes."
> The Germans are a people of heroic temper, ready to take guilt upon themselves, and not inclined to cringing moralizings. They have never complained of what was wrought against them by the pitiless enemies of their life, but neither have they ever doubted their own right to use revolutionary methods. They approved these methods, and more than approved them. They approved the invasion of Belgium, and had nothing to take exception to in that event except the Chancellor's phrase about the wrong he was doing. They approved the destruction of that insolent symbol of England's sea mastery, the giant pleasure ship Lusitania, and faced undaunted the hue and cry of humanitarian hypocrisy which then filled the world. They not only approved, they screamed for the unrestricted prosecution of submarine warfare, and strove to the verge of an outbreak with the rulers who delayed to give it free way. It is for our enemies, out of their democratic orthodoxy, for whom "the people" must always be good, as well as out of their political craftiness, to try to distinguish between the honest German people and their abominable leaders—not for us. And, however the war may end, we shall accept the German share of the guilt of it, every man of us—except perhaps a handful of pacifists and of the saints of literature—and seek for no scapegoats in the functionaries of the moment.

If Herr Thomas Mann was right in his conception of what Germany represents in world politics, then, as a reviewer of his book in The London Times Literary Supplement recently said, "most certainly a temper and character so deeply graven in a nation's breast will not disappear by magic in an hour of disaster and of turbulence. 'Civilization,' as Mann calls it with a sneer, has triumphed in arms, but until it has triumphed in spirit Germany will be a mortal danger to the world."

German militarism, which, like all isms, is a state of mind, may be temporarily crushed, but the utterances of Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau and of Herr Erzberger, Herr Scheidemann, Herr Dernburg, and other German vons and Herrs, in official or temporarily in private life, in the army or out of the army, those now high in power or temporarily in eclipse, show that sinister and criminal Germanism and Prussianism still survive. The Germans still believe in the superiority of might above right. In view of the almost universal threats of Germans high in authority in the present German Government and of Germans formerly high in authority in former German Governments that Germany will wait and prepare, it would seem that force, the force of arms as well as economic force, is the only argument that Germans are ever likely for long years to come to be amenable to.

The German Vorwärts, spokesman of the present German Government, says: "If we sign this peace it is because we are bound by force, but in our hearts we resolutely reject it." Quite so and as was to be expected! If the Germans had even a rudimentary sense of humor they would address their complaints to Herr Ludendorff, to Herr Hindenburg, to Herr Hohenzollern, to Herr Falkenhayn, to Herr Mackensen, to Herr Tirpitz and the other superstrategists and military geniuses who guaranteed to make Germany win; not to forget Herrs Bernstorff and Dernburg. Apparently those prophets are even without honor in their own criminal country.

So the Germans threaten and whine and snivel at the terms of peace, terms which, if we may venture a prophecy as to the verdict of future historians, will be regarded as the most moderate and scrupulously just in the whole history of mankind. It will be a fortunate thing for the world if history does not also record the fact that injustice is being done to Poland by depriving her of the ancient Polish city of Danzig. The war may yet be lost in the east if Germany can crush Poland. Poland is as much entitled to the unconditional return of Danzig to Polish sovereignty as France was entitled to the unconditional return of Alsace and Lorraine. Danzig was Polish up to 1815. In the history of nations there is little difference between 1815 and 1871.

The admissions of Herr Thomas Mann, made while Germany still hoped to win the war, corroborate the admissions of Prince Lichnowsky. Even if the German people in defeat have utterly failed to live up to Herr Mann's boastful conception of their character, his admissions throw an interesting light upon Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau's veracity. Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau spoke of "good will" and of subscribing to the treaty of peace "with good conscience." In the same breath he threatened that "it would cost the world dear if hatred and despair shall seize the German peoples." He had the audacity to say that a confession that the Germans were "the only ones guilty of the war" would "in his mouth be a lie." Apparently so anxious as to the quality of the veracity that comes from his lips, he had the effrontery in almost the next breath to repeat the stale, old, threadbare German falsehood, fathered by Bethmann Hollweg, sponsored by Michaelis, adopted by von Hertling, and rehashed again by Prince Max of Baden, that the German people "were convinced that they were making a war of defense."

Herr Thomas Mann stated the facts. Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau's pretense that "the German people were convinced that they were making a war of defense" was a pitiful attempt at a denial. To use Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau's own words and call it a "lie in his mouth" would be putting it too mildly. His insolent assertion before the peace delegates was one of the most stupendous perversions of the truth that history probably will ever be called upon to record.

THE LEGION AND POLITICS.

Mr. Duell's Study of Presidential Preferences Was Purely Private.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On my return from St. Louis I made the statement that Presidential sentiment, if one asked for it, among the delegates assembled there for the convention, was very pronounced—among the Democrats, particularly for President Wilson and McAdoo; among the Republicans, for General Wood and Senator Johnson. I cannot reiterate this too strongly. I regret exceedingly, however, that in some quarters the analysis, which I endeavored to personally make, of the Presidential sentiment, has been construed as "official" action on my part, as Vice Chairman of the American Legion in New York State, or as the "official" action of the legion. A proper interpretation of my "investigation and remarks" concerning the American Legion and the Presidency, would be more accurately stated as "unofficial, but true."

I cannot emphasize too strongly that the character of the American Legion as such is absolutely nonpartisan and nonpolitical. In that spirit it was born, and if it is to live it must continue in that spirit. I am sure every member of the legion subscribes to that basic principle. Individual opinions, which members of the legion may, and undoubtedly will, express from time to time on various subjects, political and otherwise, must be considered at all times, entirely unofficial as far as the American Legion itself is officially concerned. Too great care cannot be exercised in this respect.

Therefore, it seems to me a most opportune time to sound this "warning"—now, while the American Legion is in its infancy—"keep it out of politics."

Fiume and the Mississippi Mouth.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Senator Lodge says that there is great similarity between these points, as the Americans were unwilling to have a foreign nation own the mouth of the Mississippi which was so important for the commerce of the up-country. Before President Jefferson purchased the territory there were filibusters in the up-country preparing to come down and take possession of New Orleans and surrounding country. Henry Clay belonged to one of these organizations, which was being formed in Kentucky. The authority for this is Mr. Clay himself, who so informed one of his fellow-Senators in 1840.

WHITMAN AND WILHELM.

Poet Foresaw Trouble When Kaiser Succeeded Father.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Walt Whitman's comment on the ex-Kaiser, made at the time of his accession to the throne, caught my eye recently while I was perusing Horace Traubel's volumes, "With Walt Whitman in Camden." I venture to quote it as of general interest during these centenary days when American readers are finding many stimulating suggestions in Whitman's reactions to the war and peace problems of his time.

"He asked at once: 'Is it true that Frederick is dead? Ah, yes? It was to have been expected. And what a time there must be in Berlin tonight! I am not so sure of Germany now. There'll be a year or so's grief, or awe, following their loss, and then—who can tell what? I have no faith in the young Emperor now coming on—in William: he is a proud, narrow martinet—no more: a man who knew so little as not to respect a father and mother, noble, perhaps, beyond the measure of any who ever reigned: a man the reverse of his father in all the good things for which the father stood. I thought we had some reasons for believing that Frederick would make Germany a peace nation.' I asked: 'But what about getting rid of the Kings altogether?' 'That will come, too; the whole business will go. Meanwhile, we like the best Kings better than the worst Kings.'" ALICE D. SNYDER.

Poughkeepsie, May 11, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

George Renwick, your Berlin correspondent, states that Ludendorff, when asked for an interview, sent back this message:

"If these are the peace terms, then America can go to hell!"

This is interesting. It illustrates the workings of the Prussian mind. We were being fawned upon with the purpose of softening, for the Germans, the drastic peace terms they knew to be coming. So when the terms were published, and Ludendorff woke up to the character of the man representing this nation, we are told that "America can go to hell!"

Ask Ludendorff what the German terms to America would have been had we lost.

PRALL ELECTED HEAD OF EDUCATION BOARD

Personal and Political Friend of Mayor Hylan Succeeds Somers as President.

FOR HIGHER TEACHERS' PAY

Must Have Aggressive Americanism in Classrooms, He Says—Asks Patience for Building Program.

Anning S. Prall, a personal and political friend of Mayor Hylan, was elected President of the Board of Education over Arthur S. Somers yesterday by a vote of 4 to 3. Mr. Somers was nominated to succeed himself by George J. Ryan, seconded by Mrs. Ruth Russell. Joseph Yeska nominated Mr. Prall, the nomination being seconded by Mrs. Emma L. Murray. The attitude of Frank D. Wilsey was in doubt. Without his vote there were three members on the side of Mr. Somers and three in favor of Mr. Prall. Mr. Wilsey cast his ballot for Mr. Prall. On Mr. Ryan's motion the election was made unanimous.

In his speech of acceptance Mr. Prall said:

"The responsibilities of this office are not only equal to but greater than those of any elective or appointive office within the gift of this great municipality. While other departments and boards deal with the material aspects of our city life, the Board of Education bears the tremendous responsibility of initiating, developing and maintaining those educational policies that make or mar the citizenship of tomorrow.

"Let me express to our retiring President my most sincere appreciation of his unselfish devotion and abundant energy which under the most trying circumstances he has contributed to the administration of the affairs of this board. His election to the Presidency was a fitting climax to a period of twenty-seven years' service in the school boards of our city.

Grave Questions Before Board.

"I need not remind you as members of the board that during the last year there have arisen many grave questions with reference to the relation of the Board of Education to the City Administration. As you know, various issues raised by the Superintendent of Schools as a matter of duty and, in some instances, by the Board of Education itself, are now pending adjudication by the State Commissioner of Education, the Board of Regents, and the Supreme Court of the State. I am sure that I speak for all when I promise scrupulous regard for an honest enforcement of any final decision regarding our funds or status by any court or other tribunal of last resort.

"No one can deny that there is imperative need of upward revision of the salaries of the professional and the clerical staff. As long as the matter of increased compensation is dependent upon the joint action of the Board of Education and the Board of Estimate, we must co-operate as far as possible with the latter body, whose approval is in turn conditioned by the limited resources of the city. Moreover, I do not hesitate to say that the investigation I have made into the compensation paid to the employes of the department disclosed many injustices that should be remedied as soon as financial ability permits.

"There also lies before this board the execution of a vast building program which the city authorities have generously financed. I trust that the general public, impatient of delays over which we have no control, will not become unduly critical because of our inability to suddenly remedy a condition of abnormal overcrowding that was our heritage from a preceding administration, and which, because of governmental restriction, could not be remedied prior to the signing of the armistice.

"The movement to establish intermediate schools, initiated by our retiring President in order to relieve congestion and to supply wider opportunities for differential courses, has been carried on successfully, and is, I think, one of the achievements of the past year to which we can look with pride and which we should commit ourselves as a continuing policy.

"The morale of our teaching staff is to us a matter of serious concern. Let me not be misunderstood, however. We should not retain in our classrooms for one moment minds so corrupted by radical doctrines that they cannot be aggressively loyal Americans, who are reverent and sympathetic expounders of a democracy which is the most effective government the world has ever devised to insure to all men life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

The Teachers' Council.

"Nevertheless, I do think we should view with a critical eye such an organization as the Teachers' Council, and examine into the question whether it should not be exclusively a teacher council, organized on a direct representative basis. My thought is twofold. Not only should there be a professional body which all teachers in the ranks could regard as a channel for organized expression, responsive to their best opinion, but the said council would be a professional body to which the Board of Education would spontaneously turn for advice and counsel."

Among the matters of importance to which Mr. Prall said the board would give due consideration were the modification of the existing practice with reference to the time of the meeting of the board, the simplification of the calendar, committee assignments, and closer co-operation with the department heads; adoption of pending by-laws; the careful study of possible economies in all departments; the issue of monthly financial statements for the guidance of members of the board; the modification of conditions of eligibility for professional licenses, and also the methods of examination and the hearty encouragement of all local school boards.

Mr. Prall was born in this city and is a product of the public school system. He led the fight which finally resulted in the election of Dr. William L. Ettinger as Superintendent of Schools. He has for many years taken an interest in civic affairs on Staten Island and is a member of various bodies there.

On the nomination of Mrs. Emma L. Murray, seconded by Mr. Yeska, Mr. Wilsey was nominated for Vice President and on motion of Mr. Ryan the Secretary cast one vote for him.

Wins $25,000 Alienation Verdict.

A verdict for $25,000 for Dr. Anna H. Speare of 352 West 117th Street was given yesterday by a jury before Supreme Court Justice Giegerich against Miss Frances Goldstein, a music teacher of Brooklyn, for alienating the affections of Frederick Harvey Speare, an actor. The suit was based chiefly on letters written to the actor by Miss Goldstein.

M. KNECHT THANKS WOMEN.

The Junior War Relief Society celebrated its fifth anniversary yesterday afternoon with a luncheon at the Hotel Biltmore, at which addresses were made by Marcel Knecht, Colonel Norman Thwaites, and Colonel Henry W. Hodges. The President, Mrs. Walter Eyre Lambert, read excerpts from the five years' report, in which it was pointed out that the total number of articles shipped to the allied armies was 1,341,501, all of which were made by the members of the society.

Two hospital beds were equipped in Belgium and in England, and three ambulances were sent to France. At one meeting, in January, 1918, it was announced, 25,000 articles were turned out. The society's work hereafter will be confined to hospitals in this country and to the peasants in devastated France, whose need for clothing, she said, is great.

M. Knecht of the French High Commission told of the appreciation of France for hospital and clothing supplies which the women of America had sent, and gave especial praise to the society.

"I hope that some day France can show in an official way its thankfulness to this society," he said. "The peace treaty binds England, France, and America by an alliance which I do not think we need. What we want is a strong union and friendship."

Colonel Thwaites, the British Provost Marshal in New York, said: "This society, I believe, has sent more comforts to the British than almost any other society in New York. I wish the ex-Kaiser could see these women who contributed so much to his downfall.

"There is no more democracy in Germany," he continued, "than there ever was. If you look over the list of men now running the Government you will see that every one is a Junker at heart. Germany is unrepentant."

Colonel Hodges, who was with the 6th Engineers, related experiences in France and spoke of the need of clothing and comforts by the French peasants.

DEMANDS CLEANER STREETS

Merchants' Association Bureau Complains to Hylan and Enright.

Clyde A. Copson, manager of the Anti-Litter Bureau of the Merchants' Association, sent letters yesterday to Mayor Hylan, Police Commissioner Enright, and Street Cleaning Commissioner MacStay, asking them to co-operate with the association in cleaning up the city. In a survey of the various populous sections by the association, photographs were taken to show conditions that needed remedy.

Mr. Copson's letter to the Mayor called attention to the recent influenza and other epidemics and said that they had unquestionably been encouraged by unclean conditions. A part of the letter reads:

"There are accumulations of filth behind billboards, in vacant lots, areaways, openings under sidewalk gratings, in basements, and in many kindred places. Each accumulation of filth which exists is the breeding place of flies, germs, and vermin, all of which do their share in spreading disease."

To Commissioner Enright Mr. Copson wrote:

"We have many laws in this city. They are good laws, but a law not enforced is worse than no law at all. Your department is responsible for the enforcement of these laws. Upon your department and upon your shoulders, as Commissioner of Police, rests the responsibility of the healthy condition of the city. If your men do not enforce the laws which have to do with sanitation we cannot expect the population to hold the laws in regard."

Commissioner MacStay was told that if the city expected to ward off epidemics this Summer it would be necessary to keep the city clean. Mr. Copson said that the Merchants' Association was ready to co-operate with all of the city authorities in a general cleaning up job, and he suggested that there should be one general cleaning up day every week.

NURSES IN NEW YORK HONOR EDITH CAVELL

Coincident with the removal yesterday of the body of Edith Cavell, the martyred English nurse, from Belgian to English soil, New York County Chapter of the American Red Cross has hung in the living room of the new Nurses' Home, 38 West Forty-eighth Street, a photograph of Miss Cavell, with a framed copy, in French and English, of the remarkable letter the doomed nurse wrote on the eve of her execution, Oct. 12, 1915, to her nurses at the Ecole Belge d'Infirmières Diplomées in Brussels.

The letter has only recently been received in this country. In it Miss Cavell mentions the eight years in which she was Directress of the school, and in words surcharged with pathos she makes her farewell. It is an eloquent testimony to the nobility of the heroic women who fell victims to German ruthlessness.

The letter, which was originally written in French, is translated as follows:

My Dear Nurses:

I am writing to you in this sad hour to bid you farewell. You will remember that Sept. 17 brought to an end the eight years of my direction of the school. I was so happy to be called to help in the organization of the work that our committee had just founded. On Oct. 1, 1907, there were but a few pupils. Now you are already quite numerous—fifty or sixty, I think.

I have told you on different occasions the story of those early days and the difficulties that we encountered, even to the choice of words for your "hours on duty" and "off duty." In Belgium all was new in the profession. Little by little one service after another was established, graduate nurses for private nursing, pupil nurses, the Hospital of St. Giles. We supplied the Institute of Dr. Depage, the sanatorium of Buysinghen, the clinic of Dr. Mayer. And now you may be called upon—as you may be, perhaps, later—to nurse the brave wounded of the war. If in this last year our work has decreased, it is due to the sad days through which we are passing. In happier days our work will renew its growth and its power for good.

I speak to you of the past because it is wise occasionally to stop and look behind over the road that we have traveled and to note our errors and our progress. In your beautiful building you will have more patients and all that is needed for their comfort and yours. To my regret I was not always able to speak to you individually—you know I had much to occupy my time—but I hope you will not forget our evening talks. I told you that devotion to duty would bring you true happiness, and the thought that you have done your duty earnestly and cheerfully before God and your own conscience would be your greatest support in the trying moments of life and in the face of death.

Two or three of you will remember the little talks we had. Do not forget them. Having already traveled so far through life, I could perhaps see more clearly than you and point you the straight path.

One word more—beware of uncharitable speech. In these eight years I have seen so much unhappiness which could have been avoided or lessened if a few words had not been whispered here and there, perhaps without evil intention, but which ruined the reputation, the happiness, the life even, of some one. My nurses should all reflect on that, and should cultivate among themselves loyalty and esprit de corps.

If any one of you has a grievance against me I pray you to forgive me. I have sometimes been too severe, but I have never been willingly unjust, and I have loved you all, far more than you realize.

My good wishes for the happiness of all my young girls, both those who have graduated and those who are still in the school, and I thank you for the courteous consideration you have always shown me.

Your devoted Directress,

EDITH CAVELL.

The Dr. Depage mentioned in Miss Cavell's letter is now in this country to promote a plan for a memorial hospital in honor of Miss Cavell, and his wife, who went down with the Lusitania.

Dr. Depage is a Colonel by military rank and is head of the Belgian Red Cross. He knew Miss Cavell intimately as the result of the eight years the English nurse spent as Directress of his hospital. It was to the nurses of this hospital that the farewell letter was written.

"She was a most noble woman," said Dr. Depage yesterday, speaking of Miss Cavell. "I hope America will come again to the help of Belgium in assisting in establishing a suitable memorial to her splendid spirit and noble patriotism."

PERSHING PRAISES NURSES.

Message to Red Cross Expresses Army's Gratitude.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Gratitude of the American troops in France for the "devoted" service of the army nurses enrolled through the American Red Cross was expressed by General Pershing in a cablegram received today at Red Cross headquarters here.

"The successful organization by the Red Cross," said General Pershing's message, "of our nursing forces for war can hardly be overestimated. All of us in the American Expeditionary Force have only gratitude for these devoted women who cared for our comrades and brought many back to life and health. To the late Miss Delano, Director of the Department of Nursing of the American Red Cross, we owe a special debt of thanks and admiration."

Miss Knapp to Wed Dr. Ferguson.

Mrs. Edward S. Knapp of 31 East 63d Street announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Margaret A. Knapp, to Dr. Lee Hollister Ferguson of this city and Delaware, Ohio. Miss Knapp's father was the late Edward S. Knapp. She was introduced to society several years ago, and is a member of the Junior League. Dr. Ferguson is the resident physician of the Presbyterian Hospital, and is instructor of medicine at Columbia University.

Universal Sunshine Members Meet.

The reports read showed the greatest amount of work in the history of the organization done in the last year. The Rev. Mabel Irwin, Mrs. Owen Kildare, Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, and Mrs. Noble McConnell were the speakers.

Gas Kills Family of Three.

Joseph Blumberg, 22 years old; his wife, Celia, 18, and their four-month-old baby, Margaret, were found dead in their apartment at 469 Columbus Avenue last night. It is believed they were asphyxiated by gas escaping from a kitchen range.

PLAN TO AMEMICANIZE ALL.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Development of comprehensive plans for making citizens of foreign-born residents of the United States was placed in the hands of two committees of experts today by the Americanization Conference being held at the Interior Department. Recommendations by these committees will be made the basis of an extensive work already put under way by the department. The committees will report tomorrow or Thursday.

John J. Mahoney of Lowell, Mass., was named Chairman of the Committee on Training Teachers, which speakers at the conference have emphasized as one of the essentials to a successful Americanization program. Associated with him as A. E. Jenks of Minneapolis, Don D. Lescohier of Madison, Wis.; George Smith of Buffalo, Miss F. K. Wetmore of Chicago, William M. Candrew of New York, and E. R. Wiles of Akron, Ohio.

The other committee, headed by W. M. Roberts, Chicago, will undertake to develop more effective methods of teaching English to aliens. The membership includes H. H. Goldberger, New York; Dr. Peter Roberts, New York; Charles F. Towne, Boston; Charles E. Finch, Rochester, N. Y., and T. E. Spencer, St. Louis.

ASSAILS HIGHER PAY BILL.

In a letter to Governor Alfred E. Smith, made public yesterday, Controller Charles L. Craig calls the bill increasing the pay of teachers oppressive, ill-considered, and improvident, and states that it should be disapproved for these reasons, but more particularly because its enactment would constitute a blow to home rule should it be approved.

The letter reads in part:

"The bill cannot be defended upon the contention that education is a State function, and although education is a State function, the State is not attempting to perform it by this bill. If the State were assuming the burden of education in the public schools the appropriations required for their support would form no part of the budget of the city of New York. Such appropriations would be included in the appropriations of the State of New York made for the support and maintenance of various other State activities such as highways and care of lunatics.

"This bill is the deadliest blow ever delivered at home rule. It strips the local authorities of every vestige of discretion, yet it mandatorily imposes upon them the onus of explaining to taxpayers that the greatest municipal budget known in history is the result of the joint action of a Republican Legislature and a Democratic Governor."

RELEASE FRENCH EXPORTS.

Only Products Now Controlled Are for Reconstruction Needs.

PARIS, May 13.—The Cabinet today approved a decree abolishing all restrictions on exports, except certain foods and products connected directly with the reconstruction of the liberated region. The decree of Jan. 20, 1919, prohibited the exportation of 140 different articles. The new decree affects only nineteen articles.

The question of the prohibition of importations, it is understood, is being studied closely by the Government, with a view to making agreements with allied and associated powers.

BISHOP GREER UNDER SURGICAL OPERATION

Bishop David H. Greer of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, underwent an operation yesterday in St. Luke's Hospital, Amsterdam Avenue and 113th Street, for an intestinal disorder from which he has suffered many years. Bishop Greer demonstrated his wonderful vigor by quickly rallying from the ordeal, according to his physicians, and last night insisted on reading reports of diocesan matters. There was no cause for worry on the part of his friends, they said, and the Bishop would be able to return to his home shortly.

The operation was performed by Dr. Austin Hollis, Dr. Frank Matthews, and Dr. Charles H. Peck. This is the second time this year that Bishop Greer has been a patient in St. Luke's Hospital. In January he suffered a breakdown as a result of overwork and was compelled to undergo treatment at the hospital. Ever since the war began Bishop Greer has devoted much of his time to many war activities with telling effect on his health. His refusal to let up in his work aggravated his trouble, his friends said, and it was only on Monday that he finally consented to go to a hospital. Bishop Greer, who is 75 years old, had been confined to his home for several days with the recurrence of his old malady.

The 136th annual convention of the Episcopal Diocese of New York held its opening session yesterday in Synod Hall with Suffragan Bishop Charles S. Burch presiding in the absence of Bishop Greer. More than 900 clergymen and laymen were in attendance at the meeting. Bishop Greer sent a letter, read by Dean Robbins, in which he told them of his inability to be present because of illness. A resolution of sympathy was unanimously passed by the delegates.

Bishop Burch read an address prepared by Bishop Greer, in which the latter asked for the favorable consideration by the delegates of the proposed union of the Congregational Church whereby the pastors of that faith might be reordained into the Episcopal Church without severing their connections with their own denomination.

Among the lay delegates present at the meeting were Hamilton Fish, R. Fulton Cutting, Justice Vernon M. Davis, William Fellowes Morgan, and Alvin Krech. The sessions will be continued today.

BOOKS AID WORLD LEAGUE.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 13.—In opening the nineteenth annual convention of the American Booksellers' Association at the Copley Plaza today President Charles E. Butler of New York in his address pictured some of the opportunities which have come to the booksellers since the war.

Speaking of costs and credit difficulties, Mr. Butler said the publishers want to eliminate such wastefulness as may have grown up by establishing an ironclad trade custom, with the approval of the Department of Commerce, and this matter has been discussed by the publishers with Secretary Redfield.

"If under some plan for a League of Nations the method of deciding a quarrel between States by material force is brought to a close, we shall come to a period when the affairs of mankind are to be guided by moral ideals. Such a condition will bring fresh responsibilities upon authors, publishers, and booksellers, and a large increase in the demand for higher class literature."

David J. O'Connell, a member of Funk & Wagnalls, who has recently been elected to Congress, called upon the booksellers to use their influence as a means of combating Bolshevism.

Tomorrow, in addition to motoring to Lexington, Concord, and Cambridge, the members have been invited to be the guests of the Boston Nationals at Braves Field, and also to visit the Merrymount Press.

SUES ARMY MAN FOR $74,000

Stephen Baldwin Says He Aided in Obtaining $200,000 Settlement.

Alleging that he aided Lieutenant John Allen Dillon of the Bureau of Air Craft Production to secure a settlement of more than $200,000 from the administrators of the estate of Alfred M. Fuller, the millionaire owner of extensive coke fields in Pennsylvania, Lawyer Stephen C. Baldwin of Brooklyn has brought suit against the army officer for $74,000 for legal services. Lieutenant Dillon resides at 2,211 Broadway, Manhattan.

Mrs. Anna L. Dillon, a widow, mother of Lieutenant Dillon, for many years was employed by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Fuller of Perryopolis, Penn. Mrs. Dillon died on Sept. 15, 1917. Mr. Fuller died a month later. Mr. Fuller's estate was estimated to be worth more than $5,000,000. Shortly after the death of Mr. Fuller a woman known to both Mr. Fuller and Mrs. Dillon came to Lieutenant Dillon with two papers she said she had witnessed.

To whom it may concern:

This is to certify that I have had in my employ as managing housekeeper for many years, Anna L. Dillon, who has been faithful in the discharge of her duties to me and to my wife. Should she continue in my service until my death, I desire that in addition to any sum or sums that I have given her from time to time, she be paid out of my estate the sum of $500,000.

This paper was signed by Mr. Fuller. Lieutenant Dillon, in looking over his mother's effects, found among them an agreement made by Mr. Fuller to convey to her a block of improved real estate in Roanoke, Va., valued at $80,000.

Mr. Baldwin alleges in his complaint that Lieutenant Dillon engaged him as counsel with the understanding that he was to receive 25 per cent. of all moneys and real estate received from the estate of Mr. Fuller.

GILLETT ASSAILS WILSON.

Says President Will Not Be Elected for Third Term.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 13.—"President Wilson will not be elected to another term, even if he so desires," said Frederick B. Gillett of Massachusetts, next Speaker of the National House of Representatives here today. Mr. Gillett said before returning to Washington:

"I have been impressed by the widespread antagonism and dissatisfaction which the present Administration in all sections of the country.

"North and South, East and West, one hears the same complaint of waste, inefficiency, and meddling of the Administration with State affairs, the latter exemplified by the actions of Postmaster General Burleson.

"The people do not want a repetition of the indecision, apparent aimlessness and blundering of the past few years in Washington.

"President Wilson is something else besides a dreamer and an idealist. He is an egoist. He is not a man of practical affairs. Congress should have been in session all this time, hard at work on the many vital problems facing the country, but it was not called. It was not necessary that the President should have been in the country. Congress is fully capable of going ahead intelligently without Presidential guidance."

LIEUT. EUROPE'S FUNERAL.

Thousands Witness Procession—Prominent Men at Service.

While thousands of whites and negroes gazed sadly on, the body of Lieutenant James Reese, U. S. A., better known as Jim Europe, one of the leaders of syncopated song, who was stabbed to death by a member of his band in Boston, was carried yesterday through the streets of Harlem to St. Mark's Church in Fifty-third Street and then sent to Washington for burial in Harmony Cemetery.

At an undertaking shop in West 131st Street, negro Masons conducted brief services, and at 11 o'clock the funeral procession started marching to Seventh Avenue, north to 145th Street, east to Lenox Avenue, and thence to 125th Street, where the marchers took the subway to Columbus Circle, rejoining the hearse for the final march to the church. The procession was in charge of Major Herbert W. Jackson of the 369th (old 15th) Infantry, and marching at the head was a delegation from the Hayward Unit of the Women's League for National Defense, led by Captain Sadie Lavelle. Following were four automobiles filled with flowers. The new 15th Infantry band was followed by Companies C and D, led by Lieutenant J. A. Morris. The honorary pallbearers were officers and men from the dead Europe's old command.

Marching alone were members of the famous "jazz" band recruited and trained by Europe. Their instruments were stilled and each man wore a band of crape on his arm.

The service at the church was conducted by the Rev. Dr. William H. Brooks, former chaplain of the 369th, who was assisted by the Rev. Richard M. Bolden. Among those in the pews were John Wanamaker, Jr.; Colonel William Hayward, Major L'Esperance, and Major Hamilton Fish. The Allied Theatrical Association was represented by Charles Canfield, and the French Army by Lieutenant J. F. Gillespie of the 59th French Artillery. Among the floral tributes was one from Mrs. Irene Castle Treman.

Tanny Johnson, President of the Clef Club, which Europe founded, delivered the eulogy. At the conclusion of the service taps was sounded by Private Clarence Clark of Company D, 369th Infantry. Among the musical numbers sung during the service was "The Victor," composed by Europe. It was rendered by Harry W. Burleigh, baritone of St. George's Episcopal Church.

It was announced that a movement had been started to raise funds for a monument to the musician.

JOHN L. BURNETT DIES IN ALABAMA

IN CONGRESS SINCE 1899

Chairman of the Committee on Immigration Had Long Been a Democratic Leader.

GADSDEN, Ala., May 13.—Representative John L. Burnett, of the Seventh Alabama District, for several years one of the leading members of the House and Chairman of the Committee of Immigration in the last House, died suddenly tonight at his home here.

Mr. Burnett had seemed in excellent health during the day and was preparing to return to Washington for the convening of the extra session of Congress next Monday. Tonight he attended a lodge meeting, and while there complained of feeling ill. He was taken to his home by friends, and died within ten minutes after reaching his residence.

Representative Burnett was marked as one of the intended victims in the recent bomb outrage. An infernal machine was sent to him through the mails, being received in Gadsden on April 30. The lid on the package stuck, when Mr. Burnett attempted to open it, arousing his suspicions, and he turned the machine over to the police.

Late in the last session Mr. Burnett introduced bills for deportation of dangerous aliens and for the stopping of all immigration for four years after the declaration of peace. It is believed that because of his activity in behalf of the two bills Mr. Burnett was included in the list of more than a dozen high Government officials to whom infernal machines recently were mailed.

John Lawson Burnett was born in Cedar Bluff, Ala., Jan. 20, 1854. His father died four years later and his mother supported him and his brothers until they were old enough to work. When he grew up he worked on the farm and in mines, going to school between crops, and later studied law at Vanderbilt University, being admitted to the bar in 1867. He was a member of the Alabama House of Representatives in 1884 and of the Senate in 1886. In 1899 he was elected to Congress from the Seventh Alabama District and had served continuously since that time. He had been a member of the United States Immigration Commission since 1907.

ALEXANDER LOSES FIRST TO GIANTS

Soldier-Pitcher Allows Nine Hits in Six Innings and Cubs Yield by 3 to 2 Score.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, who recently returned from a walking trip in Germany, pitched for the Cubs in the opening game in the East against the Giants at the Polo Grounds yesterday. Alec pitched as if he hadn't quite made up all the sleep he lost during the war. The Giants hit Alec for nine hits in six innings and they won the game, 3 to 2, making all their tallies while the soldier was doing the flinging.

Alec's work yesterday cannot be taken as a fair test of what the big pitcher can do, because he carried a heavy load of worry on his shoulders. It seems that while coming to New York, Alexander's wife lost $8,000 worth of jewels. Mrs. Alexander is not on the stage, so no one doubts that her sparklers were lifted. It looks like a Jimmy Valentine job. The robbery took place near Pittsburgh, and the case is in the hands of the Pittsburgh detectives. No wonder Alec was worried and couldn't pitch.

A big week-day crowd turned out to see the start of the Western invasion. Alexander got a warm greeting from the 15,000 fans when he made his appearance. The Giants can consider themselves fortunate in winning the game, not because they didn't hit the ball often enough to win, but because they made mistakes which would ordinarily spell defeat. John Calhoun Benton used his left arm to good effect in the New York cause, and after the second inning no Cub shadow crossed the home dish.

President, Manager, and Member of the Board of Directors, Fred Mitchell, conducts himself with the dignity necessary for his high place at the head of the winners of last year's National League flag. Mitchell didn't raise his voice above a whisper, but that was because there was nothing to raise his voice about. He confined his activities in acting as caddy for the Cub batsmen who banged fouls outside of the third base territory.

Giants Play Badly.

On three different occasions the Giants acted as if they didn't give a rap whether they lost the game or not. Foolish Play No. 1 came in the second inning when with one out Benny Kauff was caught off second by the length of a city block after Zimmerman's single to left had sent Benjamin to that station. Kauff was fast asleep standing up, for when Mann stopped Zim's hit, Kauff stood like a wooden Indian down the base line while Leslie Mann threw to Pick and nailed Benny yards off the cushion.

The second bad play came in the fifth inning when Pick hoisted a high fly just back of the pitching slab. Chase and Fletcher both went after it. It didn't dawn upon either of them that it was something of a trick for two men to catch the same ball, especially at the same time. Chase's arms being longest, he got his hands on the ball first, and as Fletcher ran plumb into him Hal spilled the ball.

The third Giant misdemeanor came in the sixth when Hollocher hit a bunt to the infield which Chase fielded, but when he turned to throw to first, he found a "To Rent" sign hanging on the bag with all the Giant infielders gone to parts unknown.

In spite of these lapses of efficiency on the part of McGraw's lads they hit the ball so hard and often that their attack could not be suppressed by little mistakes of that kind. The Cubs started out as if they were going to run right away with the game. After Fletcher had thrown Flack out at first, Charley Hollocher pasted the ball into the right field stand for a home run. This was something of a surprise to Benton, naturally, but the southpaw kept his feet on the ground and the next two batsmen, Mann and Paskert, went out at first.

Finale for the Cubs.

In the second inning Fred Merkle singled to left and went down on Pick's sacrifice. After Deal skied to Young Bill Killifer singled to centre, sending Merkle over the plate. That was the end of the Cubs' run-getting activities. Benton, after that, had himself well in hand except in the sixth, when he got himself into a peck of trouble. With one down in the sixth Hollocher got an infield hit because no one thought it necessary to cover first when Chase raced in to scoop up the ball.

Paskert was patient and got a pass, filling the bases. This was a tough situation for Benton—the bases loaded and one out. Merkle hoisted a foul to Chase and O'Farrell, batting for Pick, shot up a rocket to McCarty and the danger was over.

It was in the last half of the sixth that the Giants' batting strength began to assert itself. George Burns, the first of McGraw's men to face Alexander in this inning, struck out. Young singled to centre, and while Hal Chase struck out Young stole second. Doyle slammed a single to right and sent Young home. Kauff singled to right and Larry went to second. Zimmerman drew a pass and filled the bases.

Here was a fine chance for Fletcher and he grabbed it. He hit a hard drive to right which looked as if it was ticketed for the fence. Doyle and Kauff romped over the plate while Flack was making a fine stop. Flack, instead of throwing the ball home as the Giants expected he would, heaved it to Hollocher and Fletcher was out trying to stretch his hit.

It was a poor day for Hal Chase. Alexander fanned him three times and when Speed Martin was pitching Hal made a sacrifice hit. Martin was effective when he took Alexander's place in the seventh and Young was the only Giant who got a hit.

LIMIT AGAIN TWENTY-FIVE.

The major leagues have taken off the restriction on the player limit and have gone back to the 25-player limit. The National League announced yesterday after its meeting here that on account of the unsettled conditions in the minor leagues and the difficulty in placing players out under optional agreements, the league favored the return to the 25-player limit. The American League has adopted the same policy. The change goes into effect tomorrow.

The limit in both major leagues was reduced to 21 at the joint meeting here last Winter. Last season the American League had a 25-player limit, while the National League was reduced to 22. The National League's return to the old limit is the first time in half a dozen seasons that its clubs will be able to carry 25 players.

National League managers have maintained for the last few years that the American League had a decided advantage over its rivals, because they were able to carry 25 men, while the National was not. Both leagues will be on an equal basis in the future.

Polo Grounds—May 18, Cincinnati; May 25, St. Louis; June 1, Boston; July 13, Pittsburgh; July 20, Chicago; July 27, Boston; Aug. 17, Chicago; Aug. 24, Pittsburgh; Sept. 7, Boston; Sept. 28, Philadelphia.

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn—May 18, Chicago; May 25, Pittsburgh; June 1, Philadelphia; June 29, Philadelphia; July 6, Boston; July 13, St. Louis; July 20, Cincinnati; July 27, Philadelphia; Aug. 10, Pittsburgh; Aug. 17, Cincinnati; Aug. 24, St. Louis; Aug. 31, New York; Sept. 7, Philadelphia.

PHILLIES BEAT PIRATES.

Jacobs Holds Pittsburgh to Three Hits and Wins, 3 to 2.

PHILADELPHIA, May 13.—Philadelphia defeated Pittsburgh today, 3 to 2, principally because of the effectiveness of Jacobs. Cutshaw's drive into the left-field seats and a tally handed to the Pirates by Jacobs's lapse from form in the seventh was all their scoring. Great outfielding by Bigbee and Meusel saved both pitchers.

ROBINS BEAT REDS IN GREAT TUSSLE

Ed Konetchy's big war club saved the day for Brooklyn yesterday when the Robins hooked up with Pat Moran's Cincinnati Redlegs in the opening game of a four-game series. Jake Daubert's successor twice poked out hits which settled the issue and sent 5,000 fans home happy over a 4 to 3 victory after eleven tense innings. Konetchy's first hit of the day came in the ninth inning, when the invaders were leading by 3 to 2. The big first baseman rapped out a single to left which sent Zach Wheat home with the tying run. In the eleventh another single bounced off the bludgeon of Konetchy which prepared the way for the winning run. Konetchy's blow sent Hy Myers to third from first, and Hy raced home with the winning run on Lew Malone's bump to right.

The game was an uphill battle for the league-leading Robins from the start. Big Jeff Pfeffer, Manager Robinson's hurling ace, had an off day, and the Reds collected eight wallops during the afternoon, some of them judiciously bunched with Brooklyn misplays.

Pfeffer started in the hole, but pulled his team up even with the opposition in the fifth inning when he cracked out a single, his second of the day. All this good work, however, was undone when Jeff allowed Cincinnati runners to crowd the base paths in the eighth and then hit Sherry Magee on the arm with a pitched ball, forcing in a run that put the Reds in front by 3 to 2. Luckily for Jeff, Konetchy and Malone got on the job with their cudgels.

Ray Fisher, who used to twirl for the Yankees and later for Fort Slocum's soldier team, was on the hillock for the Reds. Ray had considerable success against the league leaders until the uproarious eleventh, when, with two down, the deceptiveness left Ray's service so that solid blows were recorded for Hy Myers, Konetchy, and Malone. This was enough for the emergency.

Jake Daubert made his début in Flatbush as a Redleg and received a great ovation every time he came to the bat. Daubert had an opportunity in the eighth to jar his old friends, when he tripped to the plate with the bases crowded, one out and the visitors leading by 3 to 2. Here was Jake's chance to unburden himself of any resentment he might feel against the Brooklyn Club. A single would have put the game safely away in the Cincinnati bat bag, but Jake just hit into a force play on Neale at the plate and there was no further scoring for the Reds.

Again in the tenth Jake had a chance when the game was deadlocked at 3 all. Two were out and Neale was fidgeting nervously around the second corner. Jake, however, popped up to Olson.

A brace of hits and as many Brooklyn misplays put the Reds in front in the third stanza. Ivy Wingo started with a single to left, and while Zach Wheat juggled the ball the Reds' catcher raced to second. On Fisher's sacrifice bunt Pfeffer tried for Wingo at third but was too late. Pfeffer threw out Rath, Fisher taking second and then Neale drew a pass, filling the sacks. Groh then rapped a single to left, scoring Wingo. With Magee at bat Krueger tried to catch Neale at second, but threw wildly to Olson and Fisher scored. A lightning double play ended the inning.

The lead reverted to the Reds again in the eighth, when Rath singled to right. He went to third on Neale's blow to left, and then Groh was passed, filling the bases. Pfeffer hit Magee, forcing in Rath. Daubert forced Neale at the plate and then Kopf and Cueto skied out.

In the ninth Konetchy hammered in Brooklyn's tieing run. Griffith singled to centre, but was forced by Wheat. Zach took second when Myers was thrown out, and then Konetchy singled to left, scoring the Robins' captain. Then came the eleventh, when with two down Myers singled, took third on Konetchy's safe blow to right and rode home with the winning run on Lew Malone's rap to right.

Veteran Reinsman Will Campaign Notable Quartet of Trotters.

That Pop Geers, the veteran trainer and driver of light-harness racers, is still in the ring with all the energy of yore is shown by the announcement from Memphis that the elderly but physically elastic horseman is turning his eyes toward the scenes of his many northern triumphs. It is reported that, with apparently a surplus of fast record trotters for the season's campaign, the stable of Geers will soon be shipped northward from the Winter training camp at Billings Park. While no announcement of the destination has as yet been made, it is probable that the North Randall track will be the stopping place, so that no further shift will be necessary before the opening of the big ring, as "Pop" confines his operations exclusively to the major racing circuit.

Geers has a quartet of trotters in his stable the slowest of which is eligible to only the 2:09 trots. The leading money winner of these is the bay mare June Red, 2:05¼, with which the veteran won a lot of good races last season. The maer had been in the hands of J. B. Chandler, Dick McMahon, and the late Knapsack McCarthy, all experienced trainers, but none of them had been able to make a reliable racing tool out of the mare. In the hands of the silent Tennesseean she was the surprise of the season, and, as many of the associations are offering stakes for 2:06 trotters, she has a chance to add materially to her winning total.

In the same class with June Red, Geers has the big black trotter Heir Reaper, 2:05¼, also a warmed-over nag, as he has raced for several years on the Western tracks before finding his way into the stable of the dean of reinsmen. He won several times in the big ring, and trotted a sensational race, although defeated by Chilcoot, at Columbus. Then Geers has the now four-year-old colt Peter June, 2:06¾, the star two-year-old colt of 1917 and winner of the Western Horseman Stake last year. The fourth of the quartet is Gentry C., 2:05, a double winner at Lexington in 1917, but which was something of a disappointment last year, although he won a heat in 2:05 late in the Fall. With this quartet it looks as if Geers was well equipped for the fast class trots.

BROWNS POUND A ROOKIE.

CHICAGO, May 13.—St. Louis batted Roberson, a Sox recruit, hard in the first two innings today and won the final game of the series, 2 to 1. Kerr succeeded Roberson and shut out the Browns the rest of the way. Chicago's lone run was awarded by Umpire Chill on Austin's interference with Jackson after muffing a throw to stop a double steal.

SEASON'S RICHEST STAKE ON TODAY

PIMLICO, Md., May 13.—In the intervals between races today turfmen were busy discussing the chances of the candidates for the Preakness Stakes for three-year-olds, to be run tomorrow, and which, with the fees of fourteen starters and $25,000 added money, will be the richest event of the season. Commander J. K. L. Ross's Sir Barton arrived here yesterday, and looked fresh after his triumph in the Kentucky Derby. He will have to carry 126 pounds instead of the 112 which was his allotment in the Derby, and will meet Eternal, Dunboyne, and Sweep On on even terms. Sir Barton will have Milkmaid as a running mate, and this good filly is in very light, with only 109 pounds.

P. A. Clark's Dunboyne is likely to divide favoritism with the Ross entry. He has the credit of beating Sir Barton in last year's Futurity, and, though left at the post the only time he started this season, he worked a mile afterward in better time than was made by the winner of the race.

W. R. Coe has a strong hand, for, in addition to Sweep On, he has named the crack filly Terentia, 117 pounds; Over There, 114, and Natural Bridge, 114. All these have shown good form this season. Harry Payne Whitney's Vindex will also find favor with the speculators, in spite of his defeat in the Derby on a muddy track. The course bids fair to be fast tomorrow, and an entirely different showing is expected from the Whitney crack. Four of the starters in the Kentucky Derby have arrived, and are carded to start, including Vulcanite, a Western horse that ran fourth in the Derby.

R. T. Wilson, Jr.,'s Straight Forward ran a greatly improved race today to capture the Southern Handicap, which was the feature of the card. Carrying the light weight of 103 pounds, he was favored by a ragged start, which was particularly bad for Papp. McAtee on Straight Forward allowed Franklin to lead for the first quarter, then went to the front and never was in danger. After Franklin tired, Boniface, the top weight, went in pursuit of Straight Forward, but the Wilson candidate drew away in the stretch and won easily by three lengths from Boniface, which beat Franklin by six lengths for the place. Papp refused to extend himself after wheeling at the start and finished last. The time for the mile was 1:40 3-5.

Ral Parr added another to his remarkable list of steeplechase victories, Le Marsouin scoring easily from Margery Jaque and bringing the record for the stable up to eight victories out of nine starts at the meeting. Powers had the mount on the winner instead of the regular stable jockey, Crawford, who was temporarily disabled when he fell from Royal Arch after winning yesterday.

There was a stunning surprise in the sixth race at a mile and an eighth, when E. G. Vivell's Arbitrator led Firing Line and others at the finish and paid $123.40 for a $2 ticket.

Harrison won the net prize with a card of 89, 12—77, while H. Y. Barrow won the gross with an 86. F. B. Ryan proved to be the best putter, taking only 32 putts in his round.

FLAUGH GETS BEST CARD.

He and Atherton Win Foursomes in Newspaper Golf Play.

Ties were in order in the competition for newspaper men over the links of the Essex County Country Club yesterday. About forty members took part, conditions calling for fourball foursomes, and at the end it was found that F. K. Flaugh and Charles Atherton, 78—8—70, had tied with Leroy Thompson and Hiram Serine, 86—16—70. There was also a prize for the individual with the best net, and that will have to be settled later, as J. J. Kennedy and A. West finished on even terms, with respective cards of 87—9—78 and 93—15—78. The low gross award went to Flaugh with 86.

It was the first visit to the Essex County course for many of the scribes, and they enjoyed every minute of their experience as guests of the club.

Details of the inter-city affair were given out in an unofficial way some weeks ago. Findlay S. Douglas is again captain of the M. G. A. team.

NEW JERSEY GOLF TEAMS ARE BEATEN

Westchester and Staten Island-Long Island Women Score Without Trouble.

Playing at Scarsdale, the Westchester County team defeated South Jersey, 17 to 7, in the second of the series of matches under the auspices of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association yesterday. In the other match, at Cherry Valley, the Long Island-Staten Island forces won even more decisively over North Jersey, the final count being 26 to 3.

In this latter clash the visiting team was handicaped through being short one player, and it remained for Mrs. E. C. Koempel of Westfield to save her side from being completely swamped. She scored 3 points over Mrs. L. F. F. Wanner. A new player appeared on the North Jersey team in Miss Sylvia Highten, an English girl, who has been in this country only a few months. She halved her match with Mrs. A. C. Sumner.

One of the closest matches in the competition at Scarsdale resulted from the meeting of Mrs. A. S. Rossin and Mrs. Thomas Hucknall, who finished all square. The only woman to win 3 points for South Jersey was Mrs. S. P. Nash of Baltusrol.

ACCEPT GOLF CHALLENGE.

Hutchinson and Barnes Ready to Play for $5,000 Stake.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Local golfers, in behalf of Jock Hutchinson and Jim Barnes, Chicago and St. Louis, respectively, announced today these two will accept the offer of Alec Smith of Wykagyl, N. Y., and Gilbert Nicholls, unattached, to play any two professionals in the country for a purse of $5,000.

The proposition was for thirty-six holes at Wykagyl and thirty-six at a course to be named, and the probability is the latter will be Glenview, Huntchinson's club, or Sunset Hills, where Barnes is a professional.

KUMAGAE IS TWICE VICTOR AT TENNIS

TAYLOR ALSO A WINNER

Ichiya Kumagae of Nagasaki, overcame real opposition in the open tournament at the Harlem Club yesterday afternoon, defeating two worthy opponents in impressive style, and planting his name in an upper bracket of the fourth round. The victories of the Japanese left-hander were registered against Herbert H. Manchester, who won the Harlem tournament two years ago, and Harrison R. Hathaway of the single but efficient arm, both matches going in straight sets.

With a fast dry court and warm sunshine, weather conditions were far more to the little Oriental's liking than on the opening day of the tournament, and he cut loose with all his sizzling loop-drives, accurately placed and with uncanny steadiness. Manchester was slow in getting started, but after dropping a set he began to give Kumagae a real battle, exchanging drive for drive. A brilliant long-range contest followed, both players sticking to the base-line, and coming to the net, only when a sure opening for a volley presented itself. The American had several opportunities to develop a commanding lead by breaking through Kumagae's service, but lost the crucial points through errors of overcautiousness. In the last two games Kumagae raised his speed several notches and kept up an unbeatable streak to the finish, winning at 6—2, 6—4.

He was in even better form when he again took the court later in the afternoon. Hathaway is a steady and accurate volleyer, but he found it impossible to hold the net against the drives which Kumagae shot down the sidelines. The loser fought hard all the way, but was able to capture only one game in each set.

Three players advanced yesterday to the round before the semi-finals, the trio including Louis Bry, Chairman of the Tournament Committee; Harold Taylor, and Percy Kynaston. Bry's path was the easiest, although he required three sets to defeat G. Rodgers, after profiting by a double default.

Taylor, holder of the national junior title, had little difficulty in disposing of Augustin Healy, but found the going hard against Paul Martin for one set, after which his volleying paved the way for a speedy victory. Young Kynaston went through the newest Japanese visitor, Yamasaki, in surprisingly easy fashion, disposing of the Easterner's chops with a strong forehand drive, and allowing him only two games, both in the opening set.

Two matches in the third round contained an element of surprise. The first came when Ensign Alexander Iler took the measure of Wylie C. Grant, former indoor champion, in straight sets, 6—4, 6—1. The veteran, however, was obviously short of practice, whereas Iler is playing a very strong game this season, gradually acquiring a real control of what has always been a beautiful collection of strokes.

The unexpected also happened in the meeting of Dr. William Rosenbaum and Lieutenant Francis T. Hunter, which resulted in a straight set victory for the latter, 6—3, 6—4. Ordinarily this would have been entirely rational, but the former Cornellian has had little tennis since going to war, and was scarcely considered a match for the hard-hitting doctor. Yesterday, however, Hunter regained his eye in remarkable fashion, and while defeating H. Wiesethier in straight sets he developed his powerful forehand drive to something approaching its old effectiveness. Against Rosenbaum, who had meanwhile advanced by a victory over H. S. Cassel, the naval officer put on all speed, and as his confidence in his strokes increased any doubt as to the outcome was quickly removed.

Vincent Richards was again on hand yesterday, but as his suspension has not yet been lifted he was compelled to default in the singles. As Joseph M. Jennings, of Philadelphia, is the only member of the Amateur Rule Committee still to be heard from regarding the indoor champion's reinstatement, there is a possibility that Richards will be able to appear in the doubles event, which begins tomorrow afternoon. If declared eligible, he will enter with W. T. Tilden, Jr., with whom he holds the national indoor and outdoor doubles titles.

The summaries:

Harlem Club Singles.—First Round — H. Schwartz defeated W. M. Fischer by default; H. H. Manchester defeated Fred Letson by default; J. H. Steinkampf defeated Harry Sachs by default; C. E. Buchner defeated J. Hutton by default; Paul Goold defeated J. W. Mersereau by default; Dr. William Rosembaum defeated H. S. Cassel, 6—2, 6—0; H. Wieselthier defeated Vincent Richards by default.

Second Round—T. Keene defeated Dr. Moskowitz by default; Augustin Healy defeated S. G. Hartye by default; H. Pope defeated H. H. Galbraith, 6—1, 6—3; H. R. Hathaway defeated Gerald Emerson by default; Ishiya Kumagae defeated H. H. Manchester 6—2, 6—4; Allen Behr defeated J. H. Steinkampf by default; H. Norton defeated C. E. Buchner by default; Dr. Rosenbaum defeated P. Goold by default; F. T. Hunter defeated H. Wieselthier 6—2, 6—3; W. C. Grant defeated J. J. Mooyer by default; M. Abeles defeated A. S. Guiterman by default; G. Brinkerhoff defeated F. Pianisani by default; G. Rodgers defeated L. Cook by default.

Third Round—Percy Kynaston defeated R. D. Johnson by default; Ken Yamasaki defeated T. Keene by default; R. J. Sommer defeated H. Brunie, 6—4, 2—6, 6—2; J. W. Fox defeated P. C. Baker, 6—1, 6—1; Harold Taylor defeated Augustin Healy, 6—4, 6—3; I. Kumagae defeated H. R. Hathaway, 6—1, 6—1; Allen Behr defeated H. Norton, 6—4, 6—2; F. T. Hunter defeated Dr. Rosenbaum, 6—3, 6—4; S. Brubans defeated E. Bry, 6—0, 6—2; Alex Iler defeated W. C. Grant, 6—4, 6—1; W. T. Tilden, Jr., defeated M. Abeles by default; L. Bry defeated G. Brinkerhoff by default; G. Rodgers defeated P. Rooney by default.

Fourth Round—Percy Kynaston defeated Ken Yamasaki, 6—2, 6—0; Harold Taylor defeated Paul Martin, 6—4, 6—1; L. Bry defeated G. Rodgers, 6—0, 1—6, 6—3.

The postponement due to last Saturday's rain played havoc with the entry list, and the committee was forced yesterday to institute a stern system of defaulting, with the result that all the brackets of the first and second rounds were disposed of, making clear sailing the rest of the way. Although the bulk of the playing took place late in the afternoon, continuing until darkness, several matches were put on informally before the gallery arrived. In these, H. Pope of the West Side Club scored an easy victory over H. H. Galbraith, a member of the local committee, while S. Brubans eliminated another committeeman, E. Bry, by the unexpectedly one-sided score of 6—0, 6—2. R. J. Sommer was pushed to his limit by young Harry Brunie, who carried the veteran through three hard sets before losing, 6—4, 2—6, 6—2. Allen Behr cut short the career of H. Norton after an unsteady start, 6—4, 6—2.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was among the prize winners in the squash tournament at the Whitehall Club during the season just closed. When the prizes were awarded yesterday at a luncheon Mr. Rockefeller received second prize. For the handball tournament Class A prize went to J. I. Merritt and second to H. W. Lilly. The leader in Class B was Roger N. Black, while George H. Mitchell carried off second award.

WILL DEFEND NET TITLE.

Molla Bjurstedt Will Play in Women's National Tourney.

Despite various reports to the contrary, Miss Molla Bjurstedt has no intention of forfeiting the national women's tennis title in order to compete for the women's championship of England. Much as she might desire to broaden her field of conquest, she has decided to remain in this country and defend her title in the women's national championship tournament, which will be played on the courts of the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, during the week of June 16.

For some time there have been reports that Miss Bjurstedt intended to go to England and try for the title there, and as the English tourney will be played within a few days of the time when the national title will be competed for here it would obviously be impossible for the Norse girl to play in both tournaments. However, she has assured the officials of the Philadelphia tournament that she will be on hand and has relieved all uneasiness on that score.

It seems that the reports of her entering the English championships started when Miss Bjurstedt made a passing remark that she would like very much to visit her family in Norway this Summer, and, if she did, intended to compete in the greatest of the English events for women.

The entry of Miss Bjurstedt again assures the Philadelphia Cricket Club of an excellent tourney. There also have been definite reports from the Pacific coast that the two other famous "B's"—Mrs. Bundy and Miss Mary K. Browne—would come East this season to try conclusions with Miss Bjurstedt. Those who had the opportunity of seeing Miss Browne and Miss Bjurstedt in the long series of Red Cross exhibition matches played all over the country in 1917 will welcome the opportunity of seeing these two great players opposing one another on the courts again.

Mrs. Bundy has not competed on eastern courts for some time. The former Miss May Sutton is generally credited with being superior to either Miss Browne or Miss Bjurstedt, even at the present time. She has been playing the game as a champion since 1901.

The Californian was supposed to have reached her greatest heights in 1905 and 1907, te years in which she went to England and defeated that country's most brilliant players on the courts of Wimbledon and also retaining the national title of this country in the same years.

The national championships this year promise to be unusually important, even taking into consideration some of the great tourneys that have preceded it.

RICHARDS NOT SENT ON TRIP

George T. Adee, President of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, made this statement last night:

"With reference to the suspension of Vincent Richards, it has been stated that the U. S. N. L. T. A. erred in sending him to Canada while his amateur status was in question. The fact is that the National Association did not send him to Canada, and had absolutely nothing to do with the trip, which was arranged entirely by individuals.

"Several Canadians interested in a relief organization invited individual players to take part in an exhibition at the Montreal Indoor Tennis Club, and these players, including Mr. Richards, made that trip simply and solely as their invited guests.

"Furthermore, there is no rule of the National Association which forbids a player under suspension from taking part in a match which is not held under the official sanction of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association."

SEEK ATHLETES FOR PARIS.

In order to add new strength to the track team of the American Expeditionary Force for the approaching interallied games in France, army recruiting officers in this city, and, in fact, throughout the country, are conducting a lively campaign to interest American athletes to enlist in the next contingent of 1,000 recruits for immediate overseas service.

The interallied games have taken on the aspect of a real Olympic meet, and, according to Harry W. Maloney of Stanford University, head trainer of the American team, every other allied nation will be able to present an almost complete array of champions. The American Expeditionary Force organization numbers among its athletes such noted track men as Lieutenant Harry Worthington of Dartmouth College, three times national and intercollegiate broad jump champion; Sergeant Howard P. Drew, University of California sprinter; Pat Ryan, holder of five world's records in the hammer throw; Lieutenant Richard Byrd, winner of second place in the discus throw at the last Olympic; F. C. Thompson, all-around athletic champion of the A. A. A. U.; Lieutenant Earl Eby, University of Pennsylvania runner; Lieutenant Pete Maxfield, Lafayette College A. A. U. shot-put champion; Lieutenant William S. McCormick, Cornell hammer thrower; Captain C. K. Speiden, Cornell runner; Sergeant Spink, University of Illinois runner, and Lieutenant F. L. Marks, University of California high jumper.

This list shows the team to be lacking recognized men in several of the events one entry of recognized ability in the majority of contests, and it is with the idea of securing the enlistment of American athletes to fill these gaps that the army recruiting officers of this and other sections of the country are working. Nor are track and field athletes the only ones needed to strengthen the American team, for the interallied games will include rowing races, tennis matches, and other forms of competitive games, in all of which new strength is desired.

In addition to the opportunity such recruits will have to engage in this great meet, the army vocational and educational system will be open to them. Thousands of the men of the A. E. F. are now in attendance at European schools and colleges, while vocational training in more than 700 specialized trades and occupations is being conducted by the army, both overseas and in this country.

COLUMBIA OARSMEN COMPLETE TRAINING

Crew Is in Fine Shape for Childs Cup Regatta on Lake Carnegie Saturday.

Columbia's 'Varsity crew, which will row Princeton and Pennsylvania in the Childs Cup regatta on Lake Carnegie on Saturday, wound up its hard practice for the session yesterday. There is a chance that the crew will take a spin on the Hudson this morning, but as the racing shell is to be shipped to Princeton early in the afternoon it is believed that plans for an early morning row will be abandoned.

Both Schachtel and Abell, who were out of the boat on Monday because of boils, were in their places yesterday, Abell at bow and Schachtel at No. 6. The crew rowed in the Edwin Gould, Columbia's lucky shell, so-called because in it the Blue and White rowed to five victories. In practice brushes against the freshmen the crew showed the best form for a week.

Both 'varsity and freshman shells will be shipped to Princeton this afternoon, being taken from the Gould boathouse to the Pennsylvania yards in Jersey City by tug. The 'varsity will wind up its season in the Childs Cup regatta, but the freshmen will row in the Harlem regatta on Decoration Day.

NOTED GUNNERS TO ENTER.

Tournament of A. T. A. Will Be Run Along Novel Lines.

CHICAGO, May 13.—The American Handicap Trapshooting Tournament will be held over the traps of the South Shore Country Club Aug. 11 to 15, inclusive, under the auspices of the American Trapshooting Association. It has been thought for several years that, although the tournament was originally one for handicaps, there were too many handicap events, and that more and shorter events should be listed.

So the 1919 program committee has largely eliminated the handicap events, leaving only one handicap shoot on the program, namely, the Grand American. This will conclude the week's shooting. In the place of the handicaps dropped there will be a classification event, a team race between representative shooters of the East and the West, and an event for men who were or are in the service of the United States or allied Governments.

The South Shore Introductory of other years will be known as the American Amateur Championship at eighteen yards, and the event known for years as the Overture will be shot as the South Shore Country Club Special.

Shooting will begin at 9 o'clock on the morning of Aug. 12 with the American amateur eighteen yards championship at 200 targets. This event will be followed by the professional championship race, also at 200 targets, eighteen yards rise. The winning pro shot will be rewarded with a trophy emblematic of the American professional trapshooting championship.

N. Y. A. C. HONORS ITS DEAD.

Events at Annual Games Named After Victims of War.

The memory of New York A. C. members who made the supreme sacrifice in the war will be honored at the Mercury Foot organization's 102d outdoor track and field meet at Travers Island, June 7, according to the program announced yesterday. Each of the fourteen events has been named after some prominent member who gave his life in the battle for democracy. The list of events is topped with the Major James McKenna 100-yard handicap dash, with a limit allowance of six yards. A one-mile run, his special distance before he forsook competition for the sterner game of war, has been named in honor of the late Lieutenant John W. Overton, former Yale distance runner. For the late Lieutenant Arthur L. Engels the 120-yard hurdles race has been named.

Major McKenna 100-yard dash, Lieutenant Lederle 220-yard dash, Lieutenant Buermeyer 440-yard run, Sergeant Hamilton 880-yard run, Lieutenant Overton one-mile run, Seaman Dorgan three-mile run, Lieutenant Engels 120-yard hurdles race, Major Gill one-mile walk, Cadet Bradley putting 16-pound shot, Driver Myers throwing 56-pound weight, Aviator Grieb running high jump, Private Ferguson running broad jump, Commander Beecher throwing the discus, Lieutenant Peabody pole vault.

The Mercury Foot Club will conduct a limited meet June 11 under a similar plan. Five events will be contested on this day, all of them named after some member who died in the war. The program includes the Major Stewart throwing the 16-pound hammer, Captain Buckingham throwing the javelin, Commander Crank running hop, step, and jump, Cadet Collins standing high jump, and the Major Mitchel interscholastic relay race. All of these events, like the competitions scheduled for June 7, are handicap events.

WOLVERINES ENTER TEAM.

Michigan to be Represented in I. C. A. A. A. A. Championships May 30.

All doubt as to whether or not Michigan would be represented in the I. C. A. A. A. A. championship meet in the Harvard Stadium at Cambridge on May 30 and 31 was set at rest yesterday, when the entries of the Michigan team were received by the Secretary of the association. The Wolverines have entered a full team, including Carl Johnson, one of the best all-around athletes Michigan has had since the days of John Garrels.

Every college and university in the league has entered a full team, and the indications are that the meet will be one of the biggest ever held by the association. The complete entry list will be announced within a week.

AMERICANS TO BUILD SHIPS FOR EUROPE

LARGE ORDERS EXPECTED

Norway, France, and Italy Probably Will Place Contracts with American Yards.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Orders for possibly 3,000,000 gross tons of shipping to be built for foreign account in American shipyards may be placed as the result of an order by President Wilson permitting the building of such ships, provided it could be done without interfering with the construction of the American merchant marine. The President's action was announced today in a statement issued at the White House.

Officials of the Shipping Board would not venture more than a guess as to the tonnage American shipbuilders might expect as the result of the President's order, which it was said at the White House had been issued at the suggestion of Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board. Good, substantial orders, it was said by officials, may be expected for the Pacific and Atlantic yards.

Norway is expected to place large orders, possibly 1,000,000 tons, and France and Italy probably will let contracts for considerable tonnage, it was explained. France already has placed orders for 500,000 tons in England for delivery in three years, and officials believe she may give American yards a good share of the 1,000,000 additional tons required. Italy, it was said, probably will be in the market for approximately 500,000 tons, part of which may be built in the United States. England is not expected to place any orders in American yards.

At the Shipping Board it was explained that few orders could be placed immediately, as the capacity of the yards for foreign account was yet limited. Only five or possibly six yards are now in a position to take on foreign orders, but this situation will gradually be relieved, it was said.

In respect to the prices to be quoted by American shipbuilders to foreign interests, it was recalled that the last price made for ships built in American yards was $170 a ton. All contracts for foreign ships will be placed privately, Shipping Board officials said, but under the general supervision of the board.

The statement given out at the White House announcing the President's order said:

"Secretary Tumulty today announced that, upon the suggestion of Chairman Hurley of the United States Shipping Board, the President has taken action that will permit American shipyards to accept foreign contracts, so far as that can be done without interfering with the building program for American registry."

President Wilson, shortly after his first arrival in Paris, is understood to have told a high French official that American shipyards at that time would be unable to accept contracts to build ships for French account, as they were to be reserved for such naval construction as might become necessary dependent upon the negotiations at Paris.

Dollar Sales More Popular.

The dollar sales idea got its chief attention formerly in the country districts and smaller towns, but lately, according to an observer of retail conditions, the scheme has become quite popular in the local trade among the medium size and smaller shops. The dollar sale recently put on by a fairly large retailer, he pointed out, was the most successful ever run by this concern, despite the fact that practically every item offered showed a fair profit. The advantage of advertising the purchasing power of a dollar, he said, is a decided one over that of advertising a bargain or cut-rate price, for the reason that profits do not have to be sacrificed. The consuming public, he mentioned, is interested in what a dollar will buy, and there is no odious price comparison as when a bargain is offered.

American Goods Well Represented.

The manufacturers of stylish dress materials who endeavor to have their product represented in the models from Paris have been especially successful this season in achieving their purposes. This is particularly true in the case of the makers of fine-grade woolen dress goods. While they have been as active as ever in this propaganda, conditions in France, it was pointed out, have helped them as never before. The French industries were not in a position to get out their usual novelty fabrics for the Parisian designers, and the latter were compelled through circumstances to accept American materials that were offered.

Can Now Ship Coal to Neutrals.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The War Trade Board today announced that henceforth applications will be considered for licenses to ship coal to Norway, Sweden, Denmark, or Holland without requiring the importer to procure an import certificate. Applications for such licenses should be filed with the War Trade Board in Washington. Under this ruling shipments of coal need not be consigned to any association, but may be made directly to individuals in the countries of destination.

Sheeting Sales Were Active.

Along with other unfinished cottons in the local market, sheetings were in active demand yesterday. Sales of five-yard sheetings were put through for shipment in the Summer months at 11¼ cents, while 10½ cents was paid for similar deliveries of 5.50s. For 37-inch four-yard 56-60 sheetings 13 cents was paid. In the specialties for the clothing trades there was further activity, and among the more important business done were sales of 43-inch 64-112, 3.65-yard sateens at 28½ cents for delivery in August and September. Prices on all of these goods, as well as twills, are now higher than the recent Government "tops."

Glad Express Strike Is Over.

More than one member of the local cutting-up trades breathed an actual sigh of relief yesterday over the ending of the express strike. The virtues of a Government-operated express system had remained more or less unappreciated until its facilities were withdrawn, but the strike lasted just long enough to correct this situation without any one being seriously affected in a business way. At this season, especially this year, when the retailers are "sitting tight" and buying from hand to mouth, there is always a rush of small duplicate orders requiring prompt shipment. With these shipments delayed by the refusal of the express officials to accept them, the manufacturers had to resort to the slower parcel post. The package collection service operated for several days by the United Waist League of America will pass out of existence today with the resumption of regular express collections.

Printcloths Selling Ahead.

With the "weak sisters" in second hands cleared up, first hand sellers of gray goods in this market raised the bars yesterday and sold deliveries running into the Fall months. They raised the prices at the same time, with the result that 12¼ cents was paid for 38½-inch 64-60s for shipments ranging up to Oct. 1. Eighteen cents was paid for the same deliveries of 39-inch 80 squares, while 68-72s in that width brought 14 cents for similar shipments. Sales of fine-yarn cloths also continued active, prices being very strong on the basis of 18½ cents for 40-inch, 88-80, 8.50-yard combed lawns.

The decision of one of the large retail stores to install a merchandise laboratory in which materials and workmanship were to be tested has shown such good results that, according to a representative of the store, the idea will probably be followed by other stores. Not only are the buyers present when tests are made, but the salespersons in the department handling the goods examined are also witnesses of the tests and the audience at the lecture accompanying the experiments. In this way the salespeople are acquainted with the processes used in manufacturing and are given an intelligent idea of the merchandise they are selling. This has increased their interest in the merchandise and has consequently, it has been found, had very good results in placing their salesmanship on a higher plane.

High-Priced Goods Selling.

Neither the penalties imposed by the so-called luxury tax nor the recent need of floating a $4,500,000,000 Victory loan have had any material effect on the current sale of high-priced merchandise in the local retail stores. It was pointed out yesterday that a good deal of the slowness in retail circles that accompanied the floating of earlier Liberty loans resulted from observation on the part of many of the wealthier persons of the desires of the "men higher up" to have economy practiced. It was further asserted that the war had decreased the incomes of many of these persons, which made temporary economy necessary. With these factors removed now, there is no bar to the buying of high-priced merchandise by those who are expected to buy it. With the average consumer also going in for the better things, the outlook for future business in the stores is regarded as especially bright.

One Idea at a Time.

A question, aimed to get at the reason for the sales success of a prominent house, was answered by the sales manager in the following statement: "I have always been convinced that you can't tell a man everything about your product in one interview. The arrangement we have made is to put three men on a prospect. The first man really introduces our house and may push home just one argument. The second man starts in where the first left off and pounds in another idea. Finally along comes the third and closes the contract. The trouble with most salesmen, in my opinion, is that they attempt to push home too many ideas in too short a time."

BUSINESS NOTES.

An important meeting of the Silk Travelers' Association will be held in the large assembly room of the Park Avenue Hotel on the evening of Monday, May 26. A special program has been arranged, in which are included both "educational" and entertainment features. A dinner will also be served. The association now has more than 1,000 members and is still growing rapidly.

Louis Strauss & Son, millinery selling agents, 26 West Thirty-eighth Street, will remove on or about July 1 to new and larger quarters in the building at 15 and 17 West Thirty-eighth Street.

Charles E. Sholes has resigned from the Grasselli Chemical Company to become Vice President and Sales Manager of the Edison Storage Battery Company, Orange, N. J. Mr. Sholes has been identified with the heavy chemical industry for many years. He was an active member of the Creditors' Committee in the case of the Aetna Explosives Company, Inc., and served during the war as Major of Ordnance. In this capacity he was the army representative on many committees.

Reorders on Sport Skirts.

Reorders on sport skirts are showing up nicely in the local manufacturing trade, and one thing the wholesalers are especially well pleased with is the distribution of these duplicates. Practically every style that amounted to anything when the season began some months ago is represented in the business being placed. The most popular numbers are the belted models in white garbardine, pique, Poiret twills, and novelty silks. Linen and flannel goods are regarded, of course, as staples in the trade and are getting their usual call. Pin tucks, used in various effects of grouping, feature some of the most popular styles.

Beads Hard to Get.

Reports from various quarters of the fancy goods and notions trade indicate that about the best demand at the present time is for colored beads of all sizes and materials. Not only are they very much in demand, but they are scarce and hard to get, this applying to everything from the tiniest beads used in making designs to the large ones that are used in fancy necklaces. While several shades, notably dark blue, green, and red, are said to be particularly in light supply, the red beads are by all odds the scarcest.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

ELEANORA DE CISNEROS, an opera singer, residing at the Marie Antoinette Hotel, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $10,825 and assets of $25,000 in money invested in a textile factory at Lille. She gave the money to Charles Yei to invest in the textile factory at Lille, France. The debts are largely for gowns, millinery, and musical advertising. The creditors for gowns and dresses are Paquin, Paris, $4,960; M. J. Kraus & Co., New York, $1,518; Doucet, Paris, $890; Maison Lewis, millinery, Paris, $1,180. For musical advertising she owes The Musical Courier $1,396; Musical America Co., $324; Billboard Publishing Co., $218, and Music News, Chicago, $44. Other creditors are Albert D. Gould, $150 for exploitation, and Edouard, tailor, $144. She claims exemption for household goods, $150; wearing apparel, $200, and musical scores, $35. She paid her attorney $30.

JACOB SHEFF.—Judge Mayer has denied a discharge from bankruptcy to Jacob Sheff, who trades as Sheff Bros., manufacturers of braids and trimmings, formerly at 565 Broadway. Referee Cove, in his report, said among other things that the bankrupt concealed from his trustee $3,058 six weeks before the filing of the petition. "Innocent merchandise creditors were to be victimized for the benefit of certain selected family creditors, if true creditors at all."

WYCKOFF, CHURCH & PARTRIDGE, INC., manufacturers of autos and motor trucks at 1,739 Broadway.—Judge Mayer has signed an order that the Referee in Bankruptcy declare a dividend of 10 per cent. to the creditors.

ALTES & LEVINE, manufacturers of cloaks, at 12 West 27th St.—Judge Mayer has confirmed a composition with creditors at 20 cents on the dollar cash. Liabilities were $24,045.

and their correspondents throughout the world

The personal introduction, which obtains for the traveller the services and facilities of the Correspondents named in the list attached to the Letter of Credit should, in addition to its financial safeguards, recommend the Letter of Credit, especially in these times, as desirable in the highest degree as a financial arrangement for those contemplating foreign travel.

Investors and Labor Difficulties

As a natural result of the world war, many economic readjustments have had to be made and, because of the new position occupied by labor, some investors are favoring securities of corporations that can be but slightly affected by ordinary labor problems.

We have prepared some statistics regarding securities of this character which we shall be glad to send to those interested. We also suggest sending for our circular No. 120 which describes a type of bond issued by a corporation whose prosperity cannot be directly influenced by strikes.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Make Orderly Advance, with Business Less Active—French Exchange Falls.

In a calmer session than for some time past, stocks yesterday continued to display strength in several directions, notably among the railroad equipment, leather, metal, and oil issues. The rapid upbidding of a few showed the effect of pool buying and there were evidences of short covering in directions where the reactionary tendency of Monday had brought about fairly large declines. Speculation generally contained little of the hasty enthusiasm shown last week, and the healthy development was the better demand for railroad stocks. The slowing down of trading since last Friday's big market seems to indicate that the advice of brokers along conservative lines has received a hearing, and if the process goes far enough it will receive the approbation of bankers who have been hoping that the expansion of stock market operations might not become such as to interfere with the proper development of commercial undertakings at home and abroad. The money market was rather firm, for, while the renewal rate for call loans was 5½ per cent. as on Monday, the quotation rose in the afternoon to 6 per cent. The many new security offerings now making their appearance is adding temporarily to the weight of loans and may be expected to have reflection in money rates.

Buyers of securities found in the foreign news comparatively little to mould their judgment in respect to the future of the market, but this was rather more favorable than the day before. The tone of comment received by cable from Paris and Berlin suggested a secondary stage of sentiment among the German people over the peace terms, indicating that the shock of the allied demands had been somewhat eased. From this the deduction was easy to be made that the treaty would be signed in due course without serious objection, but the Street held positive mental reservations on the matter. It was realized that too many possibilities of a hitch remain to make it safe for definite commitments of a speculative order based on an assumption that peace would quickly be ratified. It is encouraging to see, however, that bankers are going ahead with the consideration of loans to foreign governments and corporations with the belief that the treaty will ultimately contain all the assurances of a lasting peace that the Allies and the United States desire. In connection with the expected stimulation of foreign trade it is well to view some of the handicaps to a free movement of goods that now exist. Not the least of them is the persistent decline of French exchange, which for the last week has made it increasingly expensive for French buyers to purchase goods in our markets. The cable rate yesterday receded to 6.22½, a figure which denotes a decline of about 12 per cent. from the "pegged" rate so long in force during the war period and after the armistice was signed. The way in which franc quotations have been reaching new low ground day by day of late forecasts the use of some means not yet defined for correcting this market. Sterling also fell away rather quickly yesterday, the cable rate of 4.68¾ showing a decline of a full cent to the pound from the Monday quotations.

The price of silver receded 5 cents per ounce, a not unnatural reaction in view of the confused state of the market here and in London and the sharp advance which had occurred since restrictions were removed from dealings. Copper was quoted higher, some moderate sales for future delivery being put through at 16 cents per pound. A steel company raised the price of plates $2 a ton and this advance, while not made general during the day, probably had effect in stimulating purchases of the steel stocks.

After a long period of Government control and "stabilization," exchange dealings in Indian rupees is again released for open market dealings. The British Government—and in New York, the Federal Reserve Bank—have controlled rupee exchange at the fixed rate of 35¼ for checks and 35½ for cables, for a long time, but at last the restrictions have been removed and yesterday Indian exchange was quoted at 40 for cable transfers. It was said that the Bank of England had advanced its rate from 1s. 6d., to 1s. 8d., and the advance in the open market here followed this alteration.

Silver Breaks 5 Cents.

Silver, which was quoted at $1.19¾ a fine ounce on Monday, yesterday broke to $1.14¾, and there were those in the trade who ascribed the break to the culmination of an alleged "corner" in the metal in London. Whether this was the actual reason or not, it was at least the only explanation forthcoming for the over-night break of 5 cents. The trade was still optimistic and predictions of prices which would be higher even than those of Monday were heard on account of the present world-wide demand for silver. However, against the possibilities of a further rise to new high records, there is the chance that the Government will step in and by placing embargoes on exports, force prices down to the "dollar an ounce" figure at which it may replenish the Treasury stocks of the metal.

Scandinavian Trade.

A delegation of Scandinavians has arrived in New York and, it is rumored, has opened negotiations with American merchants and bankers looking to the quickening of trade with this country. The Scandinavians are understood to want ships very badly, and are said to be willing to purchase on a fairly extensive scale if prices are made "right" and the proper financial arrangements can be made. Also, it is said, they want to buy American automobiles, hardware of many sorts—machinery, factory tools, and so forth. The Scandinavian countries are well supplied with funds, if the reports of their State banks are a true index of the financial situation there.

Belgian Bills Ready.

The initial block of $10,000,000 of the $50,000,000 Belgian acceptance bills, it was reported yesterday, is due to reach here today, and the bills will probably appear in the market today or tomorrow. The $10,000,000 to meet these bills was called a week or so ago, and it is understood the managers of the American banking syndicate have the stage all set for getting the bills distributed.

Rates for Credits.

The great success of the Victory Loan has caused some people to feel that there will have to be a revision downward of money rates, not only for private domestic borrowing, but also for the credits which it is expected will be floated here by foreign countries.

Copper Company Earnings.

The disrupted condition of the copper market during the first quarter of the year is clearly shown in the report of earnings by several companies. Not only were profits inadequate to meet dividend requirements but in several cases deficits were reported. Utah, for instance, one of the biggest earners and producers during the war period, for the first quarter of this year shows only 29 cents a share earned on the stock. The case is hardly an exception. All of the copper companies have been hard pressed to keep a balance on the right side of the ledger. It is believed now, however, that the worst condition has been passed.

Bids for Steel Rails.

The Railroad Administration, according to dispatches from Washington, has asked for bids on 400,000 tons of steel rails, half to be Bessemer and half open-hearth. This is an increase over the immediate requirements as announced by Director General Hines not long ago. When the stabilization plan was definitely cast aside he said that bids would be asked for 200,000 tons of rails. Delivery is to be asked before July 1, which shows that the demand is urgent. The interesting feature, however, is whether the Director General will get bids which conform to his idea of fair prices. The price of Bessemer rails is about $45 a ton, and on open hearth $2 a ton higher. It is the belief that the bids to be submitted will show an advance over these figures, which are at the old stabilization level.

Baldwin Stock in Demand.

The pyrotechnic action of Baldwin Locomotive in previous markets was recalled when the stock made an advance of more than 5 points yesterday without there being anything definite to account for the action. Furthermore, the gain was made with practically no reaction from the opening to the close. Assertions continue to be made by those in touch with the company's affairs that dividends on the common are remote.

Copper Price Advances.

The price for copper continues to climb without there being any sharp advance. Yesterday spot copper was sold at 15¾ cents for the major part of the day, but in the late afternoon one of the large companies was reported to have made a sale at 16 cents. It is said there is little copper to be had for future delivery under the 16-cent level.

The Victory Notes.

Much interest is being displayed as to when the Victory Notes will be listed on the Stock Exchange. In the past the listing has been made within a few days after the close of the sale. If such a policy continues to prevail the notes will probably be traded in before the close of the week. There is much debate as to what will be the opening price and the course of prices throughout the first trading day. Many are inclined to the belief that the notes will move above par.

The April Earnings.

While complete returns from the carriers are not available as yet for the computation of net operating revenues in April, some shrewd guessing as to the final result is being done in railroad circles. Most estimates show considerable differences, but the majority indicate a net operating deficit for April ranging from the conservative amount of $30,000,000 to the much more liberal figure of $50,000,000. It is thought probable that the April deficit will be at about the average of the first three months of the year.

As more detailed figures become available, railroad operators are re-estimating the average compensation of all railroad employes in the current year. Latest estimates make the average for all employes 1,505, as compared with $1,004 in 1917; for trainmen $2,010, as compared with $1,525 two years ago, and for employes, excluding trainmen, $1,400, as compared with $883 in 1917. These estimates are made on the basis of the present wage scale.

Rails in Favor Again.

The volume of trading in the railroad issues yesterday increased appreciably, and while there was evidence of a fair amount of speculation there was also evidence that a large amount of business was done for investment account in the old line standard shares. There has been a steady accumulation of such issues as Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, Reading, Great Northern preferred, and others, and while this in itself has not been broad enough to move the stocks forward as a group there have been some good individual advances. In the course of yesterday's market Chesapeake & Ohio, Great Northern, Norfolk & Western, Southern Pacific and New Haven gained a point or more and the remainder of the rail issues showed a definite upward trend. Missouri Pacific gained more than a point also.

TO MAKE FERTILIZERS.

Tennessee Copper & Chemical Co. Prepares to Finance New Project.

The Tennessee Copper and Chemical Company is preparing to manufacture fertilizers on a large scale, it was announced yesterday. To finance the new plans 400,000 shares of voting trust certificates will be issued, to which the present stockholders will have the right to subscribe on a share for share basis. The issue has been underwritten by Adolph Lewisohn & Sons and J. S. Bache & Co. It is understood that the underwriting price was $11 a share, with the offering to stockholders at $12.50. On yesterday's quotation it was figured that the rights were worth about $1.50.

A representative of Adolph Lewisohn & Sons said yesterday that the chemical company had obtained options on deposits of phosphate rock and that plants would be erected at several points for the manufacture of fertilizer. At present the sulphuric acid produced by the company is sold under contract to the International Agricultural Corporation. This contract will expire soon and then the Tennessee Company will begin the manufacture of fertilizers.

Many factors point to a broad revival of business activity within the coming year. Crop prospects are brilliant. The buying power of the people is large and demand for goods in many lines must soon speed the wheels of industry to a more rapid pace.

The value of an expert service such as ours during the years just ahead should be evident to every Banker, Investor, and Business Man.

Eight More Committees of Rainbow Division Report Their Victory Drive Quotas Filled.

Reports coming in yesterday at the headquarters of the Victory Liberty Loan Committee at 120 Broadway indicated that the oversubscription in this district would reach a total of about $60,000,000. To the $1,402,766,950 which was the figure given in Monday's report, late returns from the Rainbow Division and other sources added several millions. The quota for the district was $1,350,000,000.

Forty-five committees of the Rainbow Division have equaled or exceeded their allotted quotas, according to a statement from the Advisory Trades Committee. When the drive closed thirty-seven of the eighty committees had positions on the honor roll. The total for the division is now 85 per cent. of its quota.

The committees added since Saturday are: Florists and Allied Trades, Furniture, Gloves, Leather Fabric, Laundry and Allied Industries, Women's Neckwear, Retail Shoe Industry, Silk Industry, and Storage Warehouse and Van Owners.

Honor flags were awarded to forty-six additional communities in the Second Federal Reserve District, bringing the total number of towns entitled to these emblems up to 876. Ten of the communities reported oversubscriptions entitling them to stars for their honor flags. Eighteen communities that had previously been given honor flags for filling their quotas were awarded from one to twenty-six stars for oversubscriptions. Highest honor among this group was won by Schooley's Mountain, a town in Morris County, N. J., which oversubscribed its quota of $1,900 by more than 1,500 per cent. and won twenty-six stars. Brighton, in Munroe County, N. Y., and Walkill, in Ulster County, N. Y., each won six stars for oversubscriptions of 352 and 312 per cent., respectively.

Brooklyn's Mark $90,198,350.

Reports received from the Brooklyn Committee showed that the total subscriptions in the borough to date are $90,198,350. The quota for Brooklyn was $60,000,000. The Mechanics Bank subscribed an additional million dollars and the Corn Exchange Bank $332,650.

The Central Committee announced that on the final day of the drive, May 10, at a rally at the Bankers' Club, $7,534,000 had been raised. The individual subscriptions ranged from $100 to $1,250,000, the latter being turned in by George W. Van Tuyl, Jr., President of the Metropolitan Trust Company.

There were five subscriptions for a million dollars each, by the Chase Securities Company, through A. Barton Hepburn; Lewis L. Clarke, President of the American Exchange National Bank; the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, through C. H. Kelsey; the Guarany Trust Company, and Louis J. Horowitz.

Other subscriptions over $10,000 were as follows: Lewis L. Clarke, $400,000; American Trust Company, $250,000; Equitable Life Assurance Company, through Henry Greaves, $200,000; Thompson, Starrett Company, $150,000; E B. Thomas, $100,000; James Mitchell, $91,000; S. N. Bond, $90,000; Ulman J. Stevens, $20,000; Ralph L. Shainwald, $10,000; W. J. Morse, $10,000; Frank L. Chairmen of all the eight subdistricts outside of Greater New York are more than satisfied with the outcome of the campaign in their districts. The results in most cases exceeded their expectations and are fully up to the records of former campaigns.

FIRST STEEL PRICE ADVANCE IN PLATES

NEW RATE IS $2 HIGHER

Initial Gain in Quotations Under Free Market Since End of Stabilization Plan.

The first advance in steel prices since the creation of a free market for steel products by the abandonment of the stabilization plan as advocated by Secretary of Commerce Redfield, came yesterday when the Lukens Iron and Steel Company raised the price of steel plates $2 a ton. This concern is one of the largest manufacturers of plates.

The advance was held to be of especial significance as it had been the prediction of men identified with the steel industry that prices would advance if the stabilizing plan failed to achieve results. Whether the advance is a forerunner of higher prices in all lines of steel and iron, and by other companies as well, no one was prepared to hazard a statement.

When Judge Elbert H. Cary, Chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, was asked concerning the advance, he said that he understood one company had increased its quotations, but that he knew of no other instance. There is a belief that it will not be a great while before other companies follow suit, as it has been the contention all along that only the lowest cost companies could make money at the stabilization levels, which were designed merely to get the market under way. The steel men had no idea that the minimum prices agreed upon with the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce would be also the maximum prices. Their arguments were to the effect that once business increased prices would advance.

There have been reports for several days that the Railroad Administration would be unable to purchase rails at such a low figure as submitted in the stabilization plan. The steel men argued that those prices were concessions for the guarantee of Government purchasing. With that factor eliminated, it was stated by one prominent man in the industry recently, prices should regain approximately the level from which they were reduced to satisfy the Industrial Board.

It is believed that, if the steel men in general adhere to that viewpoint, there will be a substantial advance shown in the bids for steel rail orders. It was announced yesterday that the Railroad Administration would ask for bids on 400,000 tons of rails. The trend of prices, it is believed, will be definitely shown when these bids are opened.

If the bids are substantially higher than the stabilization figures, it is the opinion that it will foreshadow a corresponding advance in the price of all other steel products. Business, it is asserted, has been improving ever since the announcement of a free market for steel and iron without any Government restrictions. Furthermore, it is said that the coke and coal industry is improving. Coke prices have already been advanced and the demand is reported to be much better than two weeks ago.

The equipment companies, it is believed, will be in the market for steel on a large scale, as orders are increasing. Yesterday it was reported that the Italian Government had placed an order with the American Locomotive Company for 150 freight locomotives, these to be duplicates of 250 that have previously been supplied. The value of the new order is said to be approximately $6,000,000.

COPPER OUTPUT DECREASES

Utah, Ray, and Nevada Companies Report on First Quarter.

A decided falling off in earnings is shown in the reports of three of the porphyry group of copper companies, Utah, Ray, and Nevada, for the first quarter of this year. Utah shows only 29 cents a share earned on the capital stock, as compared with $2.05 a share in the December quarter, while both Ray and Nevada report an operating deficit for the first quarter of this year.

The net profits of Utah in the March quarter amounted to only $481,324, as compared with $3,331,728 in the December quarter and $3,810,664 in the March quarter of 1918. After dividend payments in the March quarter of this year there was a deficit of $1,955,410. The company produced 28,971,089 pounds of copper, as compared with 48,303,692 in the last quarter of 1918. The average cost of the copper was 13.72 cents, as compared with 16.42 cents in the preceding quarter. Both averages are after adjustment for all charges, depreciation, and Federal taxes, but before allowances for silver and gold and miscellaneous income.

The Ray Consolidated Copper Company reports a net operating loss of $152,298, as compared with a net profit of $401,118, or 26 cents a share earned on the capital stock in the December quarter. After dividend payments of $788,590 there was a deficit for the first quarter of this year of $940,888. The total production of copper was 12,471,729 pounds, a decrease of approximately 8,000,000 pounds from the preceding quarter. The average cost per pound of the copper produced was 15.15 cents, without making allowance for copper and gold values. The cost per pound in the preceding quarter was 19.30 cents.

The Nevada Consolidated Copper Company reports a net loss of $111,159 after depreciation and all other charges. After payment of dividends, the deficit amounted to $816,955. The production of copper was 12,201,444 pounds, as compared with 19,020,733 pounds in the last quarter of 1918.

U. S. Trade with Canada and Canadian Exchange

In the last twelve months Canada bought approximately $700,000,000 worth of goods from the United States and sold approximately $400,000,000 worth in the American market. Thus over one billion dollars worth of Canadian-American trade was affected by the fluctuations in Canadian exchange.

With 350 branches throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, the Union Bank of Canada, through its New York Agency, is in a position to offer valuable advice, based upon an intimate knowledge of actual conditions, to all American importers and exporters desirous of protecting themselves against unfavorable fluctuations in the value of the Canadian dollar.

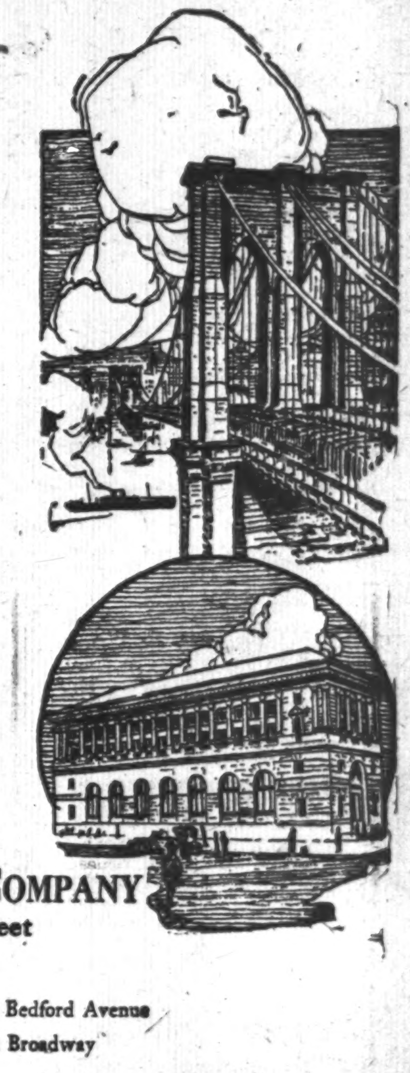
Tests of Value to You



Reliability and value of the service a Bank or Trust Company can give depends, in the last analysis, on the ability of the men who manage its affairs.

One aid to judging this factor in the case of the Brooklyn Trust Company is examination of the business standing and individual record in the community of this Company's Trustees.

The Brooklyn Trust Company, chartered in 1866, has grown steadily through more than half a century in Banking and Trust business, in resources and facilities for service.

COTTON IN STRONG RISE AT THE CLOSE

SPOT QUOTATIONS ALSO UP

Most of the activity in yesterday's cotton market, along with the most pronounced strength of the session, was crowded into the final hour. Prices were steady, and had undergone a fair advance up to the middle of the afternoon, but in the closing hour the market became very strong, and held its strength well to the end. At the finish May was up 60 points, July was up 43 points, and the distant months, which were the most active, ranged at prices which showed gains on the day of 53 to 58 points.

The spot market, too, was strong, finishing at 29.60, a gain of 60 points on the day, and the best price seen in some time. Southern spot markets were higher, also, and at Galveston, New Orleans, Savannah, Memphis, and Little Rock the quotations were up 25 points, while at Houston the rise was 40 points. Liverpool spots were up 6 English points, and futures were advanced as much as 17 points for the far months.

In the early part of the session there was some hesitation. Liverpool and the South were inclined to sell on the firm opening, and for a while held the market in check by supplying the staple in fairly substantial quantity. Buying by Western houses and by Wall Street people gradually absorbed this supply, and after Liverpool closed the market began to go ahead.

The late months attracted most of the speculative buying, probably on account of the reports of more rain over the Atlantic portion of the belt, which is expected further to hinder the new crop. As the crop is already some two weeks late, this condition is regarded as very bullish. The weekly weather report will be out today, and the trade and the speculative fraternity look for a none too favorable exhibit. The Census Bureau report on April consumption will also come out today, and the bulls are counting on this to supply them with additional ammunition.

The United States Rubber Company has offered to employes the right to subscribe to common stock at $70 a share. It is selling around $95 a share. The company has two profit-sharing plans for employes and under them probably 20,000 shares of stock will be subscribed at the $70 price. SAYS D. & H. LACKS ROADWAY MATERIAL

Loree Asserts Federal Supply Has Been Inadequate in Quality and Quantity.

PLENTY OF MOTIVE POWER

But President Reports Situation Regarding Freight Cars Is Not So Reassuring.

Leonore F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson Company, told stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday that maintenance of way has been inadequate both as to quality and quantity in the year just passed. In a statement which was read at the meeting Mr. Loree said:

> When your property was taken over by the Government a rental was fixed which, while in no sense generous, was yet sufficient to meet your requirements if regularly and promptly paid. Some embarrassment is experienced in this regard because of the failure of the last Congress to place at the disposal of the Railroad Administration funds sufficient to meet its obligations. Especially is this so now, when the financial results are so disappointing and when many of the roads are failing to earn even their operating expenses.
> The President in taking over your property gave assurance that your property would be maintained during the period of Federal control in as good repair and as complete equipment as when taken over by the Government.
> In the matter of locomotive power you need feel no present apprehension. Your shop equipment is ample and it has been used to keep in repair not only your own locomotives but as well some owned by connecting lines. The situation in regard to your freight cars is not so reassuring. Whereas formerly the great majority were on your own rails and the balance were returned thereto at frequent intervals, now nearly 90 per cent. are on foreign lines. No clear idea can be had of their condition. During the last year 131 freight cars were dismantled by the Railroad Administration for various causes, and none of these vacancies has as yet been filled.
> In the matter of maintenance of way there has been a serious falling off in the application of material. During the test period the average annual tonnage of new rails applied was 8,117 tons. In 1918 the new rail applied was 5,836 tons, a deficiency in tonnage of 2,281, or 28¼ per cent. Assuming a price of $45 a ton, the deficiency in money would be $102,645. At the present time there is in stock about two-thirds of the amount applied annually during the test period. During the test period the average annual tie renewals were 339,575 ties per year. In 1918 the new ties applied were 241,504. The average price per tie in 1918 was $1.12, at which rate the deficiency in money would be $109,839. Moreover, the quality of the ties used in 1918 was much below that of the ties used during the test period. At the present time there is in stock not more than 21 per cent. of the ties accumulated at corresponding dates in the test period.

Mr. Loree told his stockholders that the season for open track work in this latitude is comparatively short and that not only should the deficiency in maintenance of 1918 be made up, but there should be no repetition of that deficiency this year. In concluding he said:

> The investment in the railroads of this country represents one-tenth of all the moneys all of our people have been able to save in the nearly 300 years we have been in this country. If your property right in the Delaware & Hudson Company cannot be successfully defended, then the property rights of your neighbors, whether in manufacturing plants, farms, or homesteads, cannot be successfully defended. Should the value of your property be in any way impaired by the Government, which I do not for a moment believe possible, no mistake will be made in fixing the responsibility therefor, and an honest-minded public may be depended upon to promptly redress the wrong.

American Investors Should Know About Brazil

THE present economic strength of the United States of Brazil is indicated by the following facts:

AS a producer of two of the most essential staples, rubber and coffee, she ranks first among the nations of the world. Brazil is second only to the Gold Coast of Africa in the world's production of cocoa. Brazil ranks third as an exporter of tobacco and fourth as to the number of her cattle available for food. Brazil stands sixth as a producer of raw cotton and seventh as a producer of cane sugar.

BRAZIL ranks second among the countries of South America in her manufacturing industries and in the mileage of her railroads. Her mileage of navigable rivers exceeds that of all other countries. Her area exceeds that of all countries except Russia, China and Canada.

THE above facts concerning Brazil's present economic strength are not fully appreciated by American investors, nor are the tremendous future possibilities of this rich but undeveloped country fully grasped by the American business public.

BRAZIL'S future economic power lies in the greatness of her resources as yet untouched and unexploited. Her present production of world staples represents but a small proportion of the attainable production.

HER known mineral resources have limitless possibilities, particularly as many are accessible to water transportation. Her cotton yield is but a fraction of its possibilities, there being comparatively little of the available cotton land under cultivation. The Brazilian Government is making an energetic effort to develop agriculture, factories and transportation and has sincerely sought the lead and assistance of the United States.

IMPORTS from the United States enjoy special privileges and American money invested in Brazil is money invested in our only South American Ally in the European War.

SINCLAIR CO. BUYS 33-STORY BUILDING

PRICE IS NEAR $2,500,000

The scarcity of office room in the financial district was again emphasized yesterday when the Sinclair Oil and Refining Corporation of 120 Broadway, finding it impossible to lease space sufficient to meet its requirements, purchased the thirty-three-story Liberty Tower Building at 55 Liberty Street.

The property, which is assessed by the city at $1,950,000, was held at $2,500,000. It is said to have brought close to that figure. Its rented value is approximately $254,000, or about $20,000 more than in July, 1918.

Fronting on three streets, the "Tower" occupies a site that is unique in the financial district. It has a frontage on Nassau Street of 22.1 feet; on Liberty Street, 57.9 feet, and on Liberty Place, 81 feet. The northerly line is 65.8 feet in length, extending from Nassau Street to Liberty Place. Directly opposite, in the west side of Liberty Place, is the four-story Chamber of Commerce Building.

A decade has elapsed since April 30, 1909, when Henry Ives Cobb, architect, filed plans for the construction of an office building, to be erected by the C. L. Gray Construction Company of St. Louis as a memorial to William Allen Bryant on the site of the old Bryant Building which, with the Sutherland Restaurant opposite, long had been a Liberty Street landmark. The plans were filed for the Liberty-Nassau Building Company as the owners, and the building was called the "Liberty Tower." It is 385 feet high, and was designed in modified Gothic style, adorned with three tall tiers of bays, set between pilasters crowned with a mansard and having pinnacles finished with carved stone eagles perched thereon.

Moses Greenwood of St. Louis, promoter of the enterprise, undertook other large operations and eventually became involved in financial difficulties. In 1911 the property was transferred to a new corporation for a consideration reported at the time to be approximately $1,000,000 over and above an outstanding indebtedness aggregating $8,150,000. At about the same time the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company loaned $1,600,000 on the property, which also carried a bond issue of $550,000.

Harry F. Sinclair, President of the Sinclair Corporation, announcing the purchase, said:

"We have purchased the Liberty Tower Building because we require more office space than we have found it possible to lease in the financial district, and because we regarded it as essential to our future development that the Corporation have a permanent and substantial home office in New York."

Joseph P. Day, who recently sold the Empire Building to the United States Steel Corporation for $5,000,000, negotiated the sale, the owners of the Liberty Tower Building, the Garden City Company, being represented by Frederick M. Hilton of William A. White & Sons, managing agents of the property.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER—Receipts yesterday, 12,917 packages. Trade fairly good, including some speculative purchases for storage and a little new export demand. Prices weakened about ½c under some pressure to sell, but the market closed fairly steady. EGGS—27,374 cases, not including 800 cases in transit for export. The market maintains a strong tone on high qualities fit for the best class of trade, many of the best marks are still going directly to storage, and the offerings on the local market are hardly sufficient to supply urgent needs except at a further improvement in prices. On the trading reported, further advance is established, but there are a good many receivers who consider the position strained at present quotations and doubt the permanency of present values. The express drivers are delivering goods pending a settlement of the recent difficulties; many of the accumulations that occurred during the last week have been sold by the express companies. Some of these are coming on the market through roundabout channels. There is a fair demand for the average best goods and values are somewhat unsettled; sales reported are fairly covered by the quotations given. Fresh gathered, extras, a dozen, 49½@50c; storage packed, extra firsts, 49c; firsts, 47½@48½c; gathered, extra firsts, 48½@49c; firsts, Northerly sections, 46½@48c; Southerly sections, 46@47c; seconds and poorer, 42@45½c; dirties, No. 1, 42@43c; No. 2 and poorer, 38@41½c; checks, good to choice, dry, 40½@41½c; undergrades, 35@40c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 54@55c; ordinary to prime, 50@53c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 49@53c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 48@52c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 51@52c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 45@50c.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Wide price movements and unusually heavy transactions in the equipment shares were the outstanding features in the trading on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday. On this buying Baldwin Locomotive made a net gain of 6⅛ points and American Car and Foundry of 5⅝, while others of this group moved along similar lines. The railway shares were benefited by the prospect of Congressional aid. The oil shares were active and erratic.

HINES ASKS BIDS ON STEEL RAILS

200,000 Tons Sought at Once to Supply Needs of the Railroad Administration.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Bids for 200,000 tons of steel rails were asked today by the Railroad Administration, in line with Director General Hines's announcement of policy after a conference last week with steel producers. The bids will be received next Saturday, and contracts will be let at once.

In view of the controversy between the Railroad Administration and the defunct Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce over steel prices, unusual interest attaches to the bids which will be submitted. The standard price for open hearth steel rails, as announced by the Industrial Board, was $47 a ton.

The Navy Department announced that eleven steel companies submitted practically identical bids today for 14,000 tons of steel plates and shapes for the navy, duplicating the situation which caused the rejection of bids on the same material submitted on April 4. The steel is required for the construction of four battleships, two at the New York Navy Yard, one at the Norfolk Navy Yard, and one at the Mare Island, Cal., Navy Yard.

Navy officials are concerned over the possibility of further delay in awarding the contracts, as it might imperil the authorization for two of the ships that have not yet been started. Under the law, actual construction of these vessels must begin before July 1 or the authorization for them lapses.

Some of the steel companies resubmitted detailed bids on the material today, while others referred the Navy Department to their old bids submitted on April 4. The former bids were based on the steel price fixed by the Department of Commerce's Industrial Board, and because of the identical proposals of the various companies all were rejected.

While no final action will now be taken in the matter until after Secretary Daniels's return from Europe, it was said at the Navy Department today that all of the new bids probably would be rejected and the contracts readvertised.

In this event it probably would be necessary for the Secretary to go before the extra session of Congress and ask that the time limit of beginning construction on the ships be extended beyond July 1.

OILS and CAUTION
A leading New York Daily pertinently remarks:
"During the last few weeks the speculative craze for oil stocks has created fertile ground for the flotation of many companies, which offer nothing more tangible as to real oil development than hope."
We echo this sentiment. There are, however, many substantial and meritorious issues in which commitments should prove profitable. Remember that intelligent investment is based on three fundamentals

ROOT URGES LIVING RATE FOR RAILROADS

APPROVES OWNERS' PLAN

Says Congress Should See That Local Rates Are Fixed to Assure a Fair Return.

ST. LOUIS, May 13.—Compulsory Federal incorporation of railroads, Government guarantees of income, and the removal of the roads from the jurisdiction of the present State Commissioners, as steps proposed prior to the return of the railroads to private ownership, were condemned by Elihu Root in a letter read today before the Missouri Bankers' Convention in session here. Mr. Root's letter was read by S. Davies Warfield, President of the National Association of owners of Railroad Securities, who had requested an opinion from Mr. Root as advisory counsel to the association.

As an alternative, Mr. Root unqualifiedly indorsed the plan put forward by the Security Owners' Association, under which Congress would fix a fair rate of return for the railroads of each rate-making district as a whole, and require the rate-making authorities to fix rates which would presumably yield that return. In the event of any road making more than the prescribed return, the excess would be taken by the Government and used to promote public interests in transportation.

A general rate fixed by the Government for all railroads, Mr. Root contended, has this defect: If the rate is fixed so as to give a fair return to weak roads it will give an excessive return to the strong roads, while if the rate is fixed on the basis of an equitable return to the strong roads, it would drive out of business their weaker competitors.

Must Prevent Bankruptcy.

Mr. Root's letter to President Warfield said in part:

"I think you have put your hook into the key log of the jam in which our railroads are piled up without power to move forward, and I think no one else has. We are now about to terminate the abnormal condition of Government operation for war purposes. It is apparent that the people of the country do not wish to enter upon a permanent system of Government operation. The railroads are to be returned to private ownership, and they cannot be permitted to go back to the uncontrolled operation of the earlier period. Surely, also some provision must be made to prevent the continuance of the steady progress toward bankruptcy which characterized the decade before the Government took possession in 1917.

"The destruction of values in the $17,000,000,000 of securities representing the railroad investment of the country, in which one-half the people of the United States are interested directly or indirectly, is reason enough. The fact that one-quarter of the savings of the 30,000,000 people holding policies in the great life insurance companies is invested through those companies in railroad securities should be sufficient in itself. That, however, is only a small part of the reason for some arrangement which will maintain the value of those securities.

"Railroad securities are a chief basis of credit upon which depends all the business of the country, and if that business be destroyed, the consequences to all American prosperity will be incalculably disastrous. Moreover, our country must go on in our development. We are only beginning; we must not stop, and enterprise cannot go on without the development of transportation, which is impossible if the credit of the transportation companies be destroyed.

Federal Rate-Fixing Plan.

"If Congress follows your suggestion and fixes a fair rate of return for the railroads of each rate-making district as a whole, and requires the rate-making authorities to fix rates which will presumptively yield that rate of return, and then requires that in case any particular road makes more than the prescribed return, the excess shall be taken by the Government and disposed of equitably, as you propose, to promote the public interest in transportation, there is no reason why railroad credit should not be re-established and railroad development proceed promptly, and with it the development of the business of the country.

"This being done, all the rest of these elaborate plans become mere machinery—much of it unnecessary machinery—including doubtless many useful provisions and some necessary provisions which are adequately provided for in your plan also."

In regard to Federal incorporation, Mr. Root said:

"There is only one avowed purpose which could be accomplished by the plan, and that is to withdraw the railroads entirely from the jurisdiction of the State Commissions. This is unnecessary because Congress has power to authorize the Federal rate-making authorities to overrule the State Commissions in respect to rates which interfere with the interstate commerce rates.

"The State Commissions ought not to be destroyed. The people along the lines of the railroads in the several States ought to have near their homes bodies to which they can go for redress of grievances against the railroads. They ought not to be compelled to go to Washington for that purpose. The State Commissions have been of great value hitherto, and they ought to continue their useful service under the limitations imposed by the paramount necessities of interstate commerce."

Government Guarantee Opposed.

The proposal for a Government guarantee was objected to by Mr. Root on the ground that, as the Government must make the guarantee good, there would be neither opportunity nor incentive for private enterprise in the management or development of railroads.

"The guarantee plan," he says, "gives them their living whether they work for it or not. This is fatal to enterprise and efficiency."

In closing his address, after reading Mr. Root's letter, Mr. Warfield said:

"The danger that confronts the country is not that there is a sentiment at this time for Government ownership or Governmental control and operation, but that, in the multiplicity of plans that have been suggested for the relief of the railroads, legislation may fail altogether at the special session of Congress, and Government ownership may be forced upon us because of nonaction. If the railroads are returned without adequate legislation financial chaos will result. Senator Root has clearly stated the situation."

$10,000 for Community Centre.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 13.—Charles W. Anderson of this town has offered to give $10,000 toward a community centre in the north end of Montclair, provided the project, which is proposed as a substitute for a motion picture theatre, be an altruistic or community one and not an embarkation in the motion picture business to make money. Cards will go out this week to 3,000 people in the district interested for the purpose of determining the sentiment for and against the application to license a motion picture theatre. Those who favor the granting of a license for a theatre there contend that it would aid in solving the servant girl question. The opponents contend that it would not have sufficient financial support to enable it to offer first class programs and that the morals of the community would suffer as a result.

FRAME BIG COTTON PROJECT

$100,000,000 Corporation Proposed for Financing Exports.

NEW ORLEANS, May 13.—The proposed plan of organization for the American Cotton Export Financing Corporation, a pool of cotton producers and dealers, for export trade, as made known here today at a conference of cotton interests, provides for a corporation capitalized at $100,000,000, to be paid largely in Liberty bonds.

The corporation would be empowered to accept a wide variety of foreign securities and to market them in this country or to issue bonds of its own. It could also acquire control of foreign cotton manufacturing plants.

Provision is made in the organization plan for the corporation to lend money to dealers or shippers on the security of warehouse receipts in cases where cotton is being assembled for export. Thus it would finance the entire export transaction.

The draft of the proposed powers for the corporation will be submitted later this week to a conference of representatives of cotton interests at New Orleans, and adoption of the plan without material modification is expected. The corporation would be authorized to begin business when the amount of capital stock subscribed reaches $20,000,000, with 50 per cent. paid in.

In addition to finding a market abroad for cotton and cotton products and making the necessary contracts, the corporation would be empowered to deal in notes, drafts, checks, bills of exchange, acceptances, cable transfers, or other evidences of indebtedness.

It could take the bonds of foreign Governments or of foreign banks, syndicates, or other private business firms, and make loans to those interests on the security of their obligations. By this means the corporation would virtually sell its cotton to foreign purchasers on credit, raising money in this country on the security of the foreign bonds to finance the operations.

The organization would be barred by anti-trust laws from operating in domestic trade within the United States.

CALLS B. R. T. LINES UNSAFE

Passengers' Protective Association Demands Structure Changes.

F. T. Hibbard, an engineer, has prepared a report in behalf of the Passengers' Protective Association of Brooklyn, which was created shortly after the Malbone Street disaster, in which certain dangerous points on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system are indicated, and the need for their removal is strongly stated. The points are on the Flatbush Avenue surface line near the scene of the Malbone Street wreck, where nearly 100 persons were killed; on the Brighton and Fulton Street elevated line between Sands Street and Franklin Avenue, and on the same line between the Avenue H and Sheepshead Bay stations.

On the surface line, the report says, the street is supported by insufficient structure, which is likely to give way and drop a car into the subway below. The structure at the other points, it is alleged, is also unsafe.

When Public Service Commissioner Nixon was told yesterday about the report he said he would take action as soon as it reached him, and that the B. R. T. would be held responsible for immediate repairs. Mr. Nixon directed the commission's engineering department to investigate the spots indicated and to prepare a report, including the changes needed to avert danger.

SHOEMAKERS GO TO COURT.

Employes Ask for Injunction to Restrain Alleged Lockout.

SALEM, Mass., May 13.—An injunction to prevent the members of the North Shore Shoe Manufacturers' Association from continuing an alleged lockout is asked for in a bill in equity filed in behalf of the Heel Workers' Union in the Supreme Court today. The bill sets forth that as a result of the refusal of the Donn D. Sargent Company of Salem and the J. H. Baker and T. A. Field Shoe Company of Beverly to grant a new price list, a strike was caused in these three shops.

After this, the bill asserts, all the manufacturers connected with the association locked out all the heel workers and others in their employ despite the fact that there was no grievance presented by the men in any of the shops aside from the three mentioned.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Another skyscraper in the financial district changed ownership yesterday, when the thirty-three-story Liberty Tower Building, at 55 Liberty Street, held at $2,500,000, was sold to the Sinclair Oil and Refining Corporation.

A couple of weeks ago the United States Steel Corporation purchased the Empire Building, at Broadway and Rector, held at $5,000,000.

Lack of available office space in the financial district influenced both purchases, which were negotiated by Joseph P. Day.

A transaction involving realty values of about $2,000,000, was closed yesterday by L. J. Phillips & Co., who sold to Frank N. Hoffstot of the Pressed Steel Car Company, and a large owner of real estate in this city, the Manhasset Apartment house, occupying the entire block front on the west side of Broadway, 108th to 109th Street, 201.10 by 100.

The Manhassett, which was built sixteen years ago, by J. D. Butler, is eleven stories high and contains six apartments on a floor, ranging from six to nine rooms, with a rent roll of over $162,000.

The Broadway front of the building contains twelve stores, and the property is fully rented. The block has exceptional light, with private houses to the west and the large open square to the south, formed by the junction of West End Avenue, Broadway, and Straus Park.

The selling syndicate, composed of Gilbert & Kramer, S. Morrill Banner, and William L. Levy, purchased the property some time ago from the Marbrick Realty Company, intending to alter the building into an apartment hotel, for which it is admirably adapted, but negotiations for the sale changed their plans.

Mr. Hoffstot is also the owner of Euclid Hall, occupying the block front on the west side of Broadway, between Eighty-fifth and Eighty-sixth Streets. He has no present intention of altering the Manhasset. The selling syndicate purchased from Mr. Hoffstot a residential plot in the Squirrel Hill section of Pittsburgh, unrestricted, and a downtown business property in that city.

HYLAN DENIES ORDER TO CLEAR HIS PATH

Mayor Says He Did Not Direct Police to Keep Bridges Open for His Auto.

TO CURB RECKLESS DRIVING

Tells Commissioner Enright to Have Bluecoats Enforce Traffic Laws Strictly.

In a letter to Police Commissioner Enright yesterday, Mayor Hylan denied that he had given secret orders to the police to detail traffic policemen to keep the road on the bridges clear for him when he went to and from his home and the City Hall in his limousine. This is the letter:

Richard E. Enright, Esq.,
Police Commissioner.

My Dear Commissioner—

I wish to call your attention to the deliberate and false statement in the press that orders have been given by me to you and that you have given secret orders to the police to detail traffic officers to keep the road on the bridges clear for me. This, as you know, is absolutely untrue. These lying articles destroy discipline and encourage vicious violators of traffic regulations to continue their disregard for life and property by violating the rules and regulations of the road.

Many drivers of automobiles in this city, and particularly of many of the big, heavy commercial trucks, show an utter disregard for the rights of those who are unable to ride in automobiles and for life or property. It is a common occurence to see upon the bridges, as well as on the highways of the city, heavy motor vehicles driving at a reckless rate of speed, turning out and passing other vehicles without warning, forcing lighter automobiles and other vehicles against the side of the bridge, smashing the vehicles and injuring the occupants.

A short time ago a police officer was killed on the bridge by one of these heavy vehicles, and others have been severely injurd.

I wish you would begin a most vigorous crusade against drivers of all vehicles—pleasure and commercial alike—who violate the rules of the road. The driving around corners, over street crossings, and through the highways at a reckless rate of speed and the rapid driving of motor cars over intersecting streets which pedestrians are crossing must be discontinued.

Hundreds of people are run down and many killed every year in the streets of this city because of careless driving. The way to stop this is to put an end to reckless driving and to compel a strict compliance with the rules of the road. Very truly yours, JOHN F. HYLAN.

The Mayor also sent a letter to F. A. Muschenheim thanking him for the dinner that the Hotel Astor prepared for the welcome to the soldiers of the old 47th Regiment of Brooklyn yesterday.

Start New Employment Bureau.

The Society of the Genesee is arranging to establish an employment bureau for the purpose of assisting men from the Genesee Valley in securing suitable situations in New York, according to a circular issued yesterday by James W. Gerard, president of the society. Harry C. Michaels, treasurer of the organization, at 404 Fourth Avenue, will have active charge of the bureau.

FORUM CLUB ENTERTAINS.

Women Appear in Skits to Aid Reconstruction Fund.

The annual performance of the "Forum Follies," given by members of the Woman's Forum, took place at the Rivoli Theatre yesterday. The performance began at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and the playhouse was crowded with an audience of the clubwomen of the city.

The forum generally devotes its activities to problems of the day, but it stoops to conquer once a year with frivolities and adds a great deal of money to its patriotic and philanthropic fund, which this year is being devoted to reconstruction work in France. "The Children's Hour," an annual skit, is always the feature of the "Follies," and it was yesterday. "Some of Shakespeare's Lady Friends" was the title of another skit. An ode to the "Follies" by Louise Beranger Niver was printed on the program.

Miss Helen Varick Boswell, President of the club, did her annual number, in which she appears as Little Helen. Mrs. Walter Seaman Comly took the part of Little Mary, and Mrs. John Francis Yawger portrayed Little Eva Jane Pinkham. In the Shakespere skit the parts were played by Mrs. Anna Lazear Allan, Miss Boswell, Mrs. W. V. Goldie, and Mrs. M. M. Marks.

MOTOR CORPS WANTS MEN.

Col. Taylor Says Foreign Service and Special Courses Are Offered.

Colonel Brainerd Taylor, Motor Transport Officer of the Eastern Department, who was Chief Motor Transport Officer in the advanced section of the A. E. F., is making a vigorous drive for recruits for the Motor Transport Corps of the army. A service park repair unit has been established at Centre and Pearl Streets, and, with its exhibition of practical repair work, has proved a magnet for young men during the last week. Major John A. Broderick, who is Adjutant to Colonel Taylor, and who recently returned from active duty overseas, is taking an active part in the organization. Those enlisting now, it is said, have the opportunity of foreign service and the prospect of rapid advancement to noncommissioned grades. In explaining these educational features Colonel Taylor said:

"We have extracted from college manuals the best parts of their courses, and have co-ordinated them into the course to be given our enlisted students. The proof of the value of our work is that manufacturers are ready to take men who have had our training as fast as their enlistments expire."

Good Stock Keeping is Just Good Bookkeeping

412 Greenwich Street

"It makes no difference to a Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine whether it records dollars, pounds, dozens or quarts. In our business it handles 14,400 different cooperage articles from six different warehouses; each of which carries approximately 2,400 articles in stock. It will handle any units you determine, and show you an automatically computed, accurate balance every day.

When the Burroughs representative calls he will have some valuable information for you about what other business men are going to get automatic accuracy and labor saving into their accounting.
